Legislators Face Hectic Time Battle

Most Of Major Fights Over; Fireworks Seen

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Louisiana lawmakers, weary from fussing and fighting, open the eighth week of the 1958 Legislature Sunday with hard work ahead before the July 10 adjournment.

Most of the major battles are over. House and Senate now must grind out legislation at a frantic pace to keep hundreds of bills from dying on the calendar or in committee.

When the House and Senate return at 7 p.m., only one bit of essential business remains — the 384 million dollar general appropriations bill.

The bill probably will pass the Senate Monday or Tuesday. A flurry of fireworks may erupt when the House is asked to agree to Senate amendments knocking out two House amendments.

100 Bills Ready

The Senate has stayed pretty well on schedule, but faces a heavy calendar Sunday night with more than 100 bills ready for action.

The House has been clogged with controversy. Lawmakers jumped administration traces Monday in doctoring the general appropriations bill and Long control collapsed with defeat of the wine tax hike next day. Three Long floor leaders switched to vote against the bill the governor endorsed earlier in the session.

Thursday the Senate angrily passed a resolution directing the House to "get to work.'

House Speaker Robert Angelle responded by tongue lashing House members, driving them to a marathon bill-passing session that sent the first Senate bills of the year to the governor.

Sends Telegram

Angelle next day sent a telegram to all representatives, reaching those not present in the House Thursday. He told them there was "an enormous amount of work to be done and many bills will die unless they are acted on at once."

The Senate Finance Committee wiped out two House amendments to the mammoth money bill providing funds for most state agencies.

But by a 7-4 vote, the committee refused to trim a $1,050,000 grant to continue a city police pay hike despite a threat by the governor to veto it.

Long threatened to close down every trade school in Louisiana if the committee didn't knock out

Strong Attacks By Rebs Beaten

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Army troops supported by rocket-firing planes broke up strong rebel attacks on every army position in and around Tripoli Saturday, the government announced.

An army communique said the rebels used 60 and 81 millimeter mortars for the first time and that eight rebel mortar emplacements had been spotted.

The rebels claimed earlier they lost 5 men killed and 20 or 30 wounded in a night of fighting. They said government losses were one killed and four wounded.

Rebels Driven Off

The army said it launched a counterattack following an all-night battle which one rebel leader called the fiercest in Tripoli since the rebellion began several weeks ago.

It said its troops and planes firing rockets broke up the rebel attacks Saturday afternoon.

The army communique said that rebels fired on army positions at Sidon in southern Lebanon but were driven off. The rebels also fired on a tanker-truck convoy in the Sidon area but were repulsed it said.

Five Irish army officers arrived, meanwhile, to bring the United Nations observer team to full strength of 100, enabling an extension of observer operations.

The fighting in the northern port city of Tripoli broke out Friday night and still was going on Saturday. Tripoli is one of the key spots in the fight between the rebels, who are trying to overthrow the pro-Western government and install a government that favors President Gamal Abdel Nasser and his United Arab Republic.

Farewell

Greeting with lasting farewell a job that had been his for 28 years as city of Monroe building inspector, Sam H. Awl Saturday paid final visit to his desk. He expressed his deep appreciation of the little party given him Friday and to fellow workers for the handsome gold watch which they had given as a final token of their regard.

Incidentally, Sam declared that he and Bob Ed Tucker who retired last November from many years as P. A. Poag's assistant, were the only two that to his knowledge received a handsome gold watch as token of appreciation from fellow City of Monroe workers.

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Sheriff William Coci of Jefferson Parish broke a small pelvic bone Saturday when he was thrown by a horse.

U.S. Deficit Of $3-Billion For Year Due

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government is due to wind up this fiscally unhappy year at midnight Monday with a deficit of 2¾ to 3 billion dollars.

High administration officials predicted this Saturday. Looming ahead for fiscal 1959 beginning Tuesday is the even more dismal prospect of red ink aggregating 11 billion dollars, or perhaps close to 12 billion.

This would carry the federal budget farther off balance than in any year since World War II, not excepting the period of the Korean War.

Upturn

The business upturn which the administration expects this fall could improve the budget outlook, but not substantially. The lag in payment of corporate income taxes would delay much of the effect of a recovery until fiscal 1960.

Even for the bookkeeping year now closing, however, officials acknowledge that present guesses may be wide of the mark by as much as a few hundred million dollars. It will be two or three weeks before the final vouchers can be tabulated at the Treasury.

The business recession was the chief villian in transforming fiscal 1958 from what the Eisenhower administration expected to be its third successive year of balanced budgets into the start of a new period of deficit financing.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — A power golf cart a defective switch and a 5-year-old boy combined their talents Friday and did $1,200 damage in an electrical appliance store.

FROM CUBAN REBS

Official To Try To Get Men Back

HAVANA (UPI) — A U. . government official walked into the Sierra Cristal Mountains Saturday night to negotiate directly with the Cuban rebels for the release of 10 Americans and two Canadians kidnaped from the American-owned Moa Bay Company mine in Oriente province.

Park Wollam, U.S. consul in Santiago, acting under orders from the U. S. embassy here, drove to Moa Bay accompanied by Val Darnell, a company representative in Santiago.

To Foothills

The rebel hideout was believed to be about 20 to 25 miles south of the American mining properties.

The Cuban Army announced it had cancelled all patrol activities in the area and had grounded reconnaissance aircraft in an attempt ot avoid military activity in the area during the negotiations.

Kidnap Scene

Wollam was sent to the kidnap scene Friday when word of Thursday night's attack on the mining company reached Havana. He was instructed to "contact the Cuban rebels immediately for the purpose of obtaining the immediate release of the Americans and Canadians."

An embassy spokesman said Wollam's latest instructions were a reversal of policy and negated the orders he received earlier not to negotiate directly with the rebels.

He said Wollam's first orders were given because Ambassador Earl Smith "did not want to jump into the matter feet first."

Report Rebs Hold Sailors As Reprisal

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Twenty nine American sailors from the U.S. Naval Base at Guantanamo were reported missing Saturday night after a picnic trip off the base.

(The National Broadcasting Co. said in New York it had received a report from its Havana correspondent that the sailors had been seized by Cuban rebels).

Checking

In Washington, a State Department press officer said the department is checking into reports of the "incident in an effort to see what has happened to these men."

U. S. Embassy sources indicated there was a possibility the sailors had been kidnaped by rebels.

Reprisal

The rebels in seizing the engineers declared the action was a reprisal. They charged the United States had permitted Cuban army planes to use the Guantanamo Navy base airport for operations against rebel forces.

U. S. Ambassador Earl E. T. Smith denied the rebel charges.

Sen. Ellender And Benson May Push Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—An unusual team play between Secretary of Agriculture Benson and Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D - La) may push a new federal farm bill through Congress.

Ellender, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he was not surprised at the 214-171 House vote last week that junked an omnibus farm bill vigorously opposed by Benson.

This opened the door for a less sweeping Senate farm bill—limited to cotton, rice, corn and other livestock feed grains—which has Benson's blessing.

In other years, Benson usually has been battling to revise farm bills that came out of Ellender's committee.

This time, the secretary called the Senate bill workable legislation and in the long-term interests of the farmers.

Sen. George D. Aiker (R-Vt), senior GOP Farm Committee member, agreed with Ellender that the Senate should act on its farm measure as soon as possible.

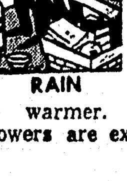
Major provisions of the Senate bill, by commodities:

Corn — All planting controls would be removed and growers could get a government price support of 90 per cent of the farm price average of the three past years, or not less than $1.10 a bushel.

Cotton — A minimum allotment of 16 million acres would go into operation with no reductions for growers with allotments of 10 acres or less. Farmers could get a support of from 75 to 90 per cent of parity if they stayed within allotments, parity being a standard calculated to be fair in relation to farmers' costs.

Thundershowers Loom For Area

Scattered thundershowers may be the order of the day in the Twin Cities today and tomorrow, according to the federal weather forecaster.



The high recorded here yesterday was 84 degrees. The low was 61.

The outlook for today in Arkansas is for clear to partly cloudy and a little warmer. Widely scattered showers are expected tomorrow.

IN NORTH LOUISIANA

Anthrax Spread Causes Outlined

BATON ROUGE, (UPI) — A deadly combination of floods, horseflies and lack of vaccination are the factors veterinarians blame for a serious outbreak of the dreaded anthrax bacillus in northern Louisiana.

More than 800 head of stock have died in the outbreak, worst in the normal anthrax-free section since a wave of the disease gov't ered 44 parishes in 1924.

One man has been stricken this year.

Reports from nearby counties of Arkansas and Mississippi indicate the disease is striking there, too.

Dr. H. B. Wheeler, state veterinarian, quarantined 11 parishes soon after the deadly disease started its sweep, generally following the Ouachita river.

Under Control Saturday

The outbreak is under control now, Wheeler said, and the ban has been lifted from two "buffer" parishes. But he warned today that fast - spreading anthrax spores could easily turn up south and east of the affected area. One case was reported in Winn parish last week.

Wheeler blamed a combination of conditions which made north Louisiana ripe for an outbreak of anthrax.

First, the raging Ouachita river hit the region last month, probably uncovering old anthrax

MILLION-DOLLAR SETUP

Shopping Center Project Launched

Construction has been started on a million dollar shopping center here, it was disclosed yesterday.

Primos said the ultra-modern construction would be located in the 2500 block of Louisville Avenue in Monroe in the heart of the motel area.

The center is being constructed on an area 667 feet wide across the front, 1,000 feet wide across the back and 900 feet deep.

It will be built in three units, Primos said. The main building will have 76,000 square feet. Another unit will be a one-story office building which will have 5,000 square feet, while the third unit is a bowling alley which will face Hudson Lane and will have 22,500 square feet.

In addition, there will be a 6,000 square foot cafeteria which Primos said he would operate personally.

There will be room for 12 stores in addition to the bowling alley and office building.

Signed Up

"We already have four nationally known companies which have signed up for locations of stores in the center and a number of local people have expressed tremendous interest in it," Primos said.

"The development of a shopping center of this magnitude will have a tremendous influence in the development of our community," Primos said. "I consider it an honor for me to be able to be a part of such progress."

Primos cited the venture as "a reflection of our faith in the strong economic health of the Monroe area. I am sure that the inevitable growth of this section of the state will dictate a strong demand for the facilities we will offer in the new shopping center," he said.

Background

Primos goes into the shopping center venture with a long established background of business leadership. In addition to other interests, Primos has been a pioneer developer in the oil and gas

Claim Britain Promised East Europe To Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secret documents published by the State Department Saturday claimed Britain gave Russia a "half promise" in 1941 that the Soviets could dominate eastern Europe after World War II.

They quoted a British official as saying London gave Russia that impression but never really expected the Soviet Union to be able to gain such strict control of the area which is now behind the Iron Curtain.

'Half Promise'

The story of the "half promise" was told in a memorandum by Adolf A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state in 1941, on a talk he had with Ralph C.S. Stevenson, principal private secretary of the British Foreign Office.

Berle said he asked Stevenson whether Britain had entered any "real agreements" with Russia. He reported Stevenson said he thought the United States knew Russian officials had entered into negotiations with Poles, Czechs and Yugoslavs in London.

Berle replied he was aware of proposed Russian arrangements for a "federated system" linking the four nations. He asked Stevenson whether that didn't really mean Russia "were to dominate that entire area."

'Highwayman' Author Is Dead

ISLE OF WIGHT, England (AP)—Poet Alfred Noyes, whose poem "The Highwayman" was made into a movie, died in a hospital Saturday. He was 77.

One of Britain's most prolific writers, Noyes was known for his poetry throughout the English-speaking world, especially the United States where he lectured extensively and taught for 10 years.

His best-known work is "The Barrel Organ" which contains the familiar line "Come down to Kew in lilac time." But it was "The Highwayman," a poem about a romantic robber, that furnished the basis for a film story.

Few poets looked less like the public conception of a sensitive versemaker than Noyes. He was 6 feet tall, weighed 200 pounds, and was broad - shouldered, clean-shaven and short-haired.

Perfect Attendance For Six Lawmakers

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — With the House coming back in at 7 o'clock tonight amid warnings from the Senate to go to work a check with official journals revealed that only six northeast Louisiana legislators have perfect attendance records. However, the official roll calls show that only three legislators from the Monroe area have more than five absentees, including Rep. J. C. Seaman, Waterproof, who has missed 17 of 31 opening roll calls, the records reveal. Legislators sometimes leave their desks to appear before a committee to speak in behalf of their bills being considered. It is because of these meetings that some legislators are absent when the roll call and votes are taken.

But as House Speaker Robert Angelle pointed out when he said the House has been 30 and 40 members short at times during the past week, committee meetings are not always the excuse for the many empty desks.

Had Difficulty

Angelle has had difficulty in obtaining a quorum to conduct business in the House. As a result, the Senate warned the House Thursday to go to work.

Actually, there is no accurate record of members absent. Some legislators arrive after the roll call has been taken. Others leave after it has been taken.

For instance, there were 15 House members absent when the roll call was taken Wednesday, sometimes later, 40 were gone when a vote was called.

The three who missed more than five opening roll calls, besides Seaman, include Rep. T. H. Gaharan, Jena, eight; and Sen. Andrew Sevier, Tallulah, seven.

However, Sevier, who has been under doctors care, said before the session he would be unable to attend all meetings be-

Capt. Harry A. Pribble, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. "Bob" Pribble of 1800 Filhiol Ave., was killed instantly yesterday morning when his jet fighter plane crashed on take-off at Cherry Point Marine Base, North Carolina.

A career man in the service, Capt. Pribble was a pilot in the Marine Air Corps, and was logistics officer for the Marine All-Weather Fighter Squadron 114 at Cherry Point, where his wife and four children reside.

The base chaplain notified the Rev. Wayne W. Gray of Monroe, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian Church, of the fatal crash. He in turn informed Mr. and Mrs. Pribble, who attend the church.

They left by plane for North Carolina yesterday noon. Time and place of funeral services was still unknown late last night.

Capt. Pribble was a graduate of Neville High School and of Annapolis Naval Academy. He saw action with the Marines in Korea and had been stationed at Cherry Point since June, 1956.

Paul J. Neal, Neville principal, described him as "an honor student at Annapolis ... and a very fine student at Neville. He was also one of our best football players," Neal recalled.

Neighbors remembered him as always being a "fine person. He was a good, all-round boy," they added.

Although details of the crash were sketchy, it is known that he was killed instantly as his F4D Skyray jet was taking off early in the morning. Air station

Reds Seize U.S. Airmen; Ship Burns

MOSCOW (AP) — A U.S. Air Force plane with nine men aboard was forced down by Soviet fighter planes Friday night inside Soviet teritory, the Soviet Union said Saturday night. The Soviets reported the plane burned and the crewmen were seized.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was said to have assured U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson the men are alive.

A note handed by Gromyko to Thompson protested what the Soviets called a crude violation of their frontier. They said the plane had crossed the Soviet Armenian border and had flown up to 105 miles inside Soviet territory. They said the plane traveled almost 50 miles more before it was forced to land.

Protest Note

The protest note said the plane was a four-engine military craft of the U.S. Air Force and that its crew wore U.S. military uniforms.

(The U.S. Defense Department in Washington said Saturday night it had received a report that a transport type aircraft, believed to be a C118 with nine persons aboard, was unreported on a flight from Nicosia, Cyprus, to Teheran, Iran, by way of Turkey. The C118 is a military version of a Douglas DC6A four-engine transport.

(The department said it had no further details immediately.)

Thompson, asked for comment, said he had no details or information other than the statements made in the Soviet note.

Embassy sources, who said the plane may have lost its way on its way on a flight to or from adjoining Turkey, said there was no indication of the type of plane or its mission.

There was no indication whether the plane was forced down by gunfire after pursuit.

Men Alive

But it was learned later that Thompson asked Gromyko:

"Are the men alive?"

The foreign minister replied: "Yes."

(In Wiesbaden, Germany, headquarters of the U.S. Air Force in Europe said it had no knowledge of any of its planes being missing and referred further queries to the U.S. State Department.

(In Washington, the State Department press office said the department had not yet received the Soviet note. The Soviet Foreign Office usually presents its notes in Russian and they are translated at the embassy in Moscow before being transmitted to Washington.

(At the Pentagon, a spokesman said no report had been received of the incident up to late afternoon but that a request for report had been sent to the Air Force in Europe.)

The Soviet protest, also broadcast by Radio Moscow, charged that the plane came across the border south of Yerevan, capital of the Soviet Armenian Republic, which is a scant 10 miles from the east Turkey border.

The Soviet note said the plane flew over the border about 6:30 p. m.

"The American plane was met by two Soviet fighters which by means of signals proposed to it to follow them to land on a nearby airdrome," the note continued.

"The plane border violator did not obey this demand. The Soviet fighters forced the plane border violator to land. It landed on Soviet territory in a district at a

WASHINGTON (AP)—An unusual team play between Secretary of Agriculture Benson and Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D - La) may push a new federal farm bill through Congress.

Ellender, chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, said he was not surprised at the 214-171 House vote last week that junked an omnibus farm bill vigorously opposed by Benson.

This opened the door for a less sweeping Senate farm bill—limited to cotton, rice, corn and other livestock feed grains—which has Benson's blessing.

In other years, Benson usually has been battling to revise farm bills that came out of Ellender's committee.

This time, the secretary called the Senate bill workable legislation and in the long-term interests of the farmers.

Sen. George D. Aiker (R-Vt), senior GOP Farm Committee member, agreed with Ellender that the Senate should act on its farm measure as soon as possible.

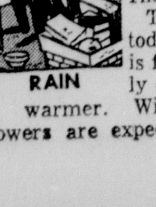
Major provisions of the Senate bill, by commodities:

Corn — All planting controls would be removed and growers could get a government price support of 90 per cent of the farm price average of the three past years, or not less than $1.10 a bushel.

Cotton — A minimum allotment of 16 million acres would go into operation with no reductions for growers with allotments of 10 acres or less. Farmers could get a support of from 75 to 90 per cent of parity if they stayed within allotments, parity being a standard calculated to be fair in relation to farmers' costs.

Thundershowers Loom For Area

Scattered thundershowers may be the order of the day in the Twin Cities today and tomorrow, according to the federal weather forecaster.



RAIN

The high recorded here yesterday was 84 degrees. The low was 61.

The outlook for today in Arkansas is for clear to partly cloudy and a little warmer. Widely scattered showers are expected tomorrow.

IN NORTH LOUISIANA

Anthrax Spread Causes Outlined

BATON ROUGE, (UPI) — A deadly combination of floods, horseflies and lack of vaccination are the factors veterinarians blame for a serious outbreak of the dreaded anthrax bacillus in northern Louisiana.

More than 800 head of stock have died in the outbreak, worst in the normal anthrax-free section since a wave of the disease gov't ered 44 parishes in 1924.

One man has been stricken this year.

Reports from nearby counties of Arkansas and Mississippi indicate the disease is striking there, too.

Dr. H. B. Wheeler, state veterinarian, quarantined 11 parishes soon after the deadly disease started its sweep, generally following the Ouachita river.

Under Control Saturday

The outbreak is under control now, Wheeler said, and the ban has been lifted from two "buffer" parishes. But he warned today that fast - spreading anthrax spores could easily turn up south and east of the affected area. One case was reported in Winn parish last week.

Wheeler blamed a combination of conditions which made north Louisiana ripe for an outbreak of anthrax.

First, the raging Ouachita river hit the region last month, probadly uncovering old anthrax

MILLION-DOLLAR SETUP

Shopping Center Project Launched

Construction has been started on a million dollar shopping center here, it was disclosed yesterday.

Primos said the ultra-modern construction would be located in the 2500 block of Louisville Avenue in Monroe in the heart of the motel area.

The center is being constructed on an area 667 feet wide across the front, 1,000 feet wide across the back and 900 feet deep.

It will be built in three units, Primos said. The main building will have 76,000 square feet. Another unit will be a one-story office building which will have 5,000 square feet, while the third unit is a bowling alley which will face Hudson Lane and will have 22,500 square feet.

In addition, there will be a 6,000 square foot cafeteria which Primos said he would operate personally.

There will be room for 12 stores in addition to the bowling alley and office building.

Signed Up

"We already have four nationally known companies which have signed up for locations of stores in the center and a number of local people have expressed tremendous interest in it," Primos said.

"The development of a shopping center of this magnitude will have a tremendous influence in the development of our community," Primos said. "I consider it an honor for me to be able to be a part of such progress."

Primos cited the venture as "a reflection of our faith in the strong economic health of the Monroe area. I am sure that the inevitable growth of this section of the state will dictate a strong demand for the facilities we will offer in the new shopping center," he said.

Background

Primos goes into the shopping center venture with a long established background of business leadership. In addition to other interests, Primos has been a pioneer developer in the oil and gas

'Highwayman' Author Is Dead

ISLE OF WIGHT, England (AP)—Poet Alfred Noyes, whose poem "The Highwayman" was made into a movie, died in a hospital Saturday. He was 77.

One of Britain's most prolific writers, Noyes was known for his poetry throughout the English-speaking world, especially the United States where he lectured extensively and taught for 10 years.

His best-known work is "The Barrel Organ" which contains the familiar line "Come down to Kew in lilac time." But it was "The Highwayman," a poem about a romantic robber, that furnished the basis for a film story.

Few poets looked less like the public conception of a sensitive versemaker than Noyes. He was 6 feet tall, weighed 200 pounds, and was broad - shouldered, clean-shaven and short-haired.

Claim Britain Promised East Europe To Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secret documents published by the State Department Saturday claimed Britain gave Russia a "half promise" in 1941 that the Soviets could dominate eastern Europe after World War II.

They quoted a British official as saying London gave Russia that impression but never really expected the Soviet Union to be able to gain such strict control of the area which is now behind the Iron Curtain.

'Half Promise'

The story of the "half promise" was told in a memorandum by Adolf A. Berle Jr., assistant secretary of state in 1941, on a talk he had with Ralph C.S. Stevenson, principal private secretary of the British Foreign Office.

Berle said he asked Stevenson whether Britain had entered any "real agreements" with Russia. He reported Stevenson said he thought the United States knew Russian officials had entered into negotiations with Poles, Czechs and Yugoslavs in London.

Berle replied he was aware of proposed Russian arrangements for a "federated system" linking the four nations. He asked Stevenson whether that didn't really mean Russia "were to dominate that entire area."

Perfect Attendance For Six Lawmakers

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — With the House coming back in at 7 o'clock tonight amid warnings from the Senate to go to work a check with official journals revealed that only six northeast Louisiana legislators have perfect attendance records. However, the official roll calls show that only three legislators from the Monroe area have more than five absentees, including Rep. J. C. Seaman, Waterproof, who has missed 17 of 31 opening roll calls, the records reveal. Legislators sometimes leave their desks to appear before a committee to speak in behalf of their bills being considered. It is because of these meetings that some legislators are absent when the roll call and votes are taken.

But as House Speaker Robert Angelle pointed out when he said the House has been 30 and 40 members short at times during the past week, committee meetings are not always the excuse for the many empty desks.

Had Difficulty

Angelle has had difficulty in obtaining a quorum to conduct business in the House. As a result, the Senate warned the House Thursday to go to work.

Actually, there is no accurate record of members absent. Some legislators arrive after the roll call has been taken. Others leave after it has been taken.

For instance, there were 15 House members absent when the roll call was taken Wednesday, sometimes later, 40 were gone when a vote was called.

The three who missed more than five opening roll calls, besides Seaman, include Rep. T. H. Gaharan, Jena, eight; and Sen. Andrew Sevier, Tallulah, seven.

However, Sevier, who has been under doctors care, said before the session he would be unable to attend all meetings be-

PROTEST BORDER 'VIOLATION' — Map locates Yerevan (underlined), capital of Soviet Armenia, where Russia said U.S. Air Force plane flew over border from eastern Turkey and was forced down by two Red fighter planes. (AP Wirephoto)

Capt. Harry A. Pribble, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. "Bob" Pribble of 1800 Filhiol Ave., was killed instantly yesterday morning when his jet fighter plane crashed on take-off at Cherry Point Marine Base, North Carolina.

A career man in the service, Capt. Pribble was a pilot in the Marine Air Corps, and was logistics officer for the Marine All-Weather Fighter Squadron 114 at Cherry Point, where his wife and four children reside.

The base chaplain notified the Rev. Wayne W. Gray of Monroe, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian Church, of the fatal crash. He in turn informed Mr. and Mrs. Pribble, who attend the church.

They left by plane for North Carolina yesterday noon. Time and place of funeral services was still unknown late last night.

Capt. Pribble was a graduate of Neville High School and of Annapolis Naval Academy. He saw action with the Marines in Korea and had been stationed at Cherry Point since June, 1956.

Paul J. Neal, Neville principal, described him as "an honor student at Annapolis . . . and a very fine student at Neville. He was also one of our best football players," Neal recalled.

Neighbors remembered him as always being a "fine person. He was a good, all-round boy," they added.

Although details of the crash were sketchy, it is known that he was killed instantly as his F4D Skyray jet was taking off early in the morning. Air station

Reds Seize U.S. Airmen; Ship Burns

MOSCOW (AP) — A U.S. Air Force plane with nine men aboard was forced down by Soviet fighter planes Friday night inside Soviet teritory, the Soviet Union said Saturday night. The Soviets reported the plane burned and the crewmen were seized.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was said to have assured U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson the men are alive.

A note handed by Gromyko to Thompson protested what the Soviets called a crude violation of their frontier. They said the plane had crossed the Soviet Armenian border and had flown up to 105 miles inside Soviet territory. They said the plane traveled almost 50 miles more before it was forced to land.

Protest Note

The protest note said the plane was a four-engine military craft of the U.S. Air Force and that its crew wore U.S. military uniforms.

(The U.S. Defense Department in Washington said Saturday night it had received a report that a transport type aircraft, believed to be a C118 with nine persons aboard, was unreported on a flight from Nicosia, Cyprus, to Teheran, Iran, by way of Turkey. The C118 is a military version of a Douglas DC6A four-engine transport.

(The department said it had no further details immediately.)

Thompson, asked for comment, said he had no details or information other than the statements made in the Soviet note.

Embassy sources, who said the plane may have lost its way on its way on a flight to or from adjoining Turkey, said there was no indication of the type of plane or its mission.

There was no indication whether the plane was forced down by gunfire after pursuit.

Men Alive

But it was learned later that Thompson asked Gromyko:

"Are the men alive?"

The foreign minister replied: "Yes."

(In Wiesbaden, Germany, headquarters of the U.S. Air Force in Europe said it had no knowledge of any of its planes being missing and referred further queries to the U.S. State Department.

(In Washington, the State Department press office said the department had not yet received the Soviet note. The Soviet Foreign Office usually presents its notes in Russian and they are translated at the embassy in Moscow before being transmitted to Washington.

(At the Pentagon, a spokesman said no report had been received of the incident up to late afternoon but that a request for report had been sent to the Air Force in Europe.)

The Soviet protest, also broadcast by Radio Moscow, charged that the plane came across the border south of Yerevan, capital of the Soviet Armenian Republic, which is a scant 10 miles from the east Turkey border.

The Soviet note said the plane flew over the border about 6:30 p. m.

"The American plane was met by two Soviet fighters which by means of signals proposed to it to follow them to land on a nearby airdrome," the note continued.

"The plane border violator did not obey this demand. The Soviet fighters forced the plane border violator to land. It landed on Soviet territory in a district at a

OFFICIALS REPORT

No Closer To Shooting War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — High American officials said Saturday the United States and Russia are no closer to an all-out "shooting war" than before Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev switched to his new tough Stanlinist line.

At the same time they disclosed that President Eisenhower will send Khrushchev a letter Sunday or Monday restating the American attitude toward a summit conference and firmly rejecting Moscow charges the United States has "sabotaged" the meeting. The U.S. terms call for "advance preparation" before a conference is held.

The letter will answer a June 11 message from Khrushchev who claimed the State Department was stalling on a summit session by proposing an unacceptable discussion agenda. Some sources speculated the President also will put Khrushchev on notice that he is weary of carrying on lengthy correspondence over an apparently futile issue.

Officials were asked about prospects of a shooting war in the light of Khrushchev's reversion to the brutal methods of the late Dictator Josef Stalin. They saw the switch as "a change in tactics rather than in foreign policy."

They said the execution of Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy — A Stalinist-like purge—and the subsequent toughening of the Kremlin's foreign policy line were dictated by Khrushchev's need to consolidated his position and tighten his control of the Sino-Russian bloc.

They do not believe, on the basis of evidence at hand, that Khrushchev is prepared to risk a nuclear holocaust which nobody could win.

But Western diplomats anticipate stormier diplomatic weather. They believe that the smiling Soviet "peace offensive" against the West is at an end because Khrushchev has failed to split the U.S. and its allies.

Officials said the Russians apparently lost interest in a summit parley when it became obvious they could not force a meeting on their own terms.

Soviet "flip-flops" on Tuesday's Geneva meeting on technical aspects of a nuclear test ban were believed due to a decision in the Kremlin that it may no longer be worthwhile to try and outmaneuver the West around the conference table.

Saturday, however, in the latest maneuver on the Geneva Conference, the Soviet Union gave the United States a new note hinting it will attend the meeting despite the earlier threat of a boycott. The State Department said it had not yet received word of the note which was handed to American Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow.

McCormack Is Endorsed By Demo Members

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Democratic Convention Saturday endorsed Edward J. McCormack Jr., 34, for attorney general. He is a nephew of Rep. John McCormack (D-Mass).

The endorsement came on the fourth ballot. The other three ballots were indecisive and the convention reached a near riotous adjournment early last Sunday.

More than 1,200 delegates qualified Saturday. There were 1,700 at last week's session.

The fourth ballot count gave McCormack 733 votes. Joseph D. Ward of Fitchburg was second with 303, and Endicott Peabody ran last with 215.

Ward announced he would abide by the decision of the convention, but Peabody said he would enter the Sept. 9 primary.

Sen. Johnson Urges Summit Meet Planned

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI)— Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson Saturday urged a summit conference of the heads of the American states be planned ahead of any with Communist nations.

"We must not forget, as a nation, that no matter where we turn, we can find no better allies than our own next - door neighbors," Johnson said here in a speech at the annual convention of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC).

"If we want respect, we must extend respect. If we want co-operation, we must extend co-operation," Johnson said.

Referring to recent Latin American demonstrations, Johnson said the success of the Good Neighbor Policy stated by Roosevelt in 1933 was based on "treating good neighbors as they should be —with genuine respect."

Asks Highway In Yarborough Park Measure

Yarborough introduced the bill Friday proposing that the slender 110 mile long island be made into a national park.

The U. S. Interior Department had made a study of the possibility of turning the island into a national park some three years ago.

Tompkins said a highway running the length of the island from Corpus Christi to Port Isabel, should be a toll-free road, and added that the highway is "indispensable" if the park plan is to prove practical.

The wealthy developer has a multi-million dollar beach resort project on the island which includes motels, swank homes, and some other resort structures.

'DRY' COUNTRY

Guard Stages Raid In Miss.

BOONEVILLE, Miss. (AP)—National Guardsmen raided through Prentiss County Saturday in search of illegal liquor operations in "dry" Mississippi.

Under orders from Gov. J. P. Coleman, 84 men led by Major Gen. W. P. Wilson, adjutant general of the Mississippi Guard, hit 16 establishments simultaneously.

Prentiss County Sheriff George Rutherford Jr. and Coleman have been engaged in legal hostilities for some time.

The guard reported a detachment also raided several places in Sharkey County, located in the Delta, in the vicinity of Rolling Fork.

Officers said the Prentiss county raids found 11 places that yielded large quantities of whisky, beer, vodka and gin.

Ten men were held pening filing of charges. They were not immediately identified.

Much of the liquor seized was smashed, with only a token held for evidence. One of two dice tables taken was broken up. An auto loaded with whisky and beer was impounded.

Guard spokesmen said the take included 30 cases, 7 quarts and 851 loose cans of beer; 11 fifths, 3 pints and 178 half pints of whisky; 5 gallons of mash; 10 gallons of moonshine whisky; 5 half pints of moonshine and 123 pints of wind.

Arrest warrants were made out by Guardsmen, who operated in teams. In one establishment, everyone present was arrested when no one would claim ownership.

The prisoners were brought to the Prentiss County courthouse here where they were booked by Rutherford. Those who could make bond were freed.

Guard spokesmen said there were indications some liquor operators knew what was coming. They said there was evidence that liquor had been hastily removed from a few places.

Rutherford and a "citizens committee" have been at odds for some time, with the committee criticizing him as inadequate to cope with bootlegging.

The committee, operating under a law passed by the last legis'ature and backed by Coleman, tired to force a recall election. The issue is still before the state supreme court.

CLERK MURDER SUSPECT

Revealed In Ala. Narcotics Issue

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A 21-year-old clerk charged with the murder of a Birmingham businessman said Saturday he had been delivering narcotics for him for about a year.

Willie M. Wilks, father of three children who live with their mother at Cullman, is charged in the slaying of Troy William Pullen.

Pullen, 42, owner of a retail sock store in Birmingham was shot down in his living room with nine bullets from a .22 pistol Friday.

Wilks said at a preliminary hearing he killed Pullen because of nartotics.

He said in a statement to police Saturday that he had been delivering narcotics for Pullen for about a year.

Wilks also is charged with assault with intent to murder in the severe beating of Mrs. Pullen, 35, who is recovering in a Birmingham hospital.

The Pullens formerly lived at Mobile and Biloxi, Miss., and came to Birmingham about three years ago.

Wilks said in a statement to Homewood Det. John C. Martin that he had delivered three packages of narcotics this month for Pullen. He said he was to have received $400 for each delivery.

"These deliveries were always made on a lonely road near the Birmingham airport to an unknown man driving a 1951 black Chevrolet," Wilks told Martin.

"The narcotics were always in a small pakcage and I was promised $400 for each delivery I made. Pullen had not paid me recently but had made several promises."

Wilks said Pullen had promised him a 1958 Oldsmobile, to help him start a shore business, and pay his debts.

"I don't know where Pullen got the dope or who the man was I delivered it to," he added.

Police said $4,800 in cash was found in a matress at Pullen's home, but that a check of his books at his sock store showed a profit of only $4,900 last year.

Wilks was arrested here May 7 on a non-support charge. His wife, Mrs. Sue Henderson Wilks, said at Cullman that she could shed no light on her husband's activities since he left her about two years ago.

Eugene W. Vogt Receives Special Pharmacy Honor

FERRIDAY (Special) — Eugene W. Vogt, secretary and treasurer of the Louisiana Board of Pharmacy, was awarded a plaque designating him "Man of the Year in Pharmacy in 1958" at the Baton Rouge 76th annual convention of the Louisiana Pharmaceutical Association last week.

This is the third award of this kind he has received. On May 27, 1937 a state cup was awarded him as being of the most efficient service in pharmacy, and in 1957 he was selected as honorary member in the student branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association for being the most outstanding pharmacist in Louisiana.

Accompanying him to the state convention were Mrs. Vogt and their son, Barry. Mrs. Vogt won the grand entrance prize, a beautiful store fixture.

The next state convention will be held in Alexandria next June.

Appointment Is Announced

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The appointment of Mrs. Sue Thurman, former director of the Junior Art Gallery in Louisville, Ky., as director of the Delgado Museum of Art was announced Saturday.

In making the announcement, board president C. E. Whitmore said the appointment had resolved the months-long conflict among local art groups following the dismissal of Alonzo Lansford as director in March, 1957.

Mrs. Thurman was given a three-year contract. Her husband, Harold Thurman, recently was named to the art faculty of Newcomb College.

PERSON-TO-PERSON

Many In America, USSR Communicate

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Iron Curtain seems more easily pierced by air than on the ground.

At least radio amateurs of the United States and the Soviet Union find it simpler to communicate with each other on a person-to-person level than do political leaders.

Perhaps a typical example of these new adventures in international understanding is the relationship between Frank Enge and Leo Shiskin.

Enge is supervisor of research and development for the American Machine & Foundry Co. electronics laboratory here. Shiskin is an electrical engineer in Moscow.

Aug. 11, 1956, they first made contact via ham radio.

After that they quickly became pen pals. Leo asked Frank for copies of American radio journals, and sent him copies of Soviet radio journals—also some Russian classical phonograph records for Frank's wife.

Frank congratulated Leo on the Soviet scientific achievement when the first Sputnik went aloft, and Leo replied in kind when the United States sent up Explorer I, adding:

That was the nearest the Russian ever came to a political remark, Enge said.

Leo Shiskin lost his Soviet radio amateur license "for infractions of the rules," but never explained the nature of the violations.

Leo wrote that he made about 1200 rubles a month—the ruble is officially pegged at 25 cents.

"He also said that he only had to pay 50 rubles a month rent," Enge recalled, "but he had to share a communal apartment with four other families. The apartment had only one bathroom, one kitchen and one telephone.

Frank wrote back that his own income was about $1,000 a month that he had a five-room two-bath apartment and owned two cars.

"This comparison may have made Leo unhappy, but so far he hasn't said so," remarked Enge smiling.

Enge estimated that perhaps 12,000 of some 160,000 American radio hams have made contact with Soviet amateurs.

"I think if the Russian people knew the American people, and we knew more about them, there would be no need for an Iron Curtain," Enge said.

Man Drowns In Lake Randell

DENISON, Tex. (UPI) — William Roy Miller, 56, of Denison, drowned Saturday as he tried to swim after a drifting boat in near by Lake Randell.

His brother, Edwin Miller, also of Denison, suffered a slight heart attack when Miller's body was recovered from the water about an hour after he went under. The brother was taken to a hospital for observation.

Witnesses said Miller went under just as he was reaching to grab the boat. A resuscitator failed to revive him and he was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Homer Gaddy.

At the same time they disclosed that President Eisenhower will send Khrushchev a letter Sunday or Monday restating the American attitude toward a summit conference and firmly rejecting Moscow charges the United States has "sabotaged" the meeting. The U.S. terms call for "advance preparation" before a conference is held.

The letter will answer a June 11 message from Khrushchev who claimed the State Department was stalling on a summit session by proposing an unacceptable discussion agenda. Some sources speculated the President also will put Khrushchev on notice that he is weary of carrying on lengthy correspondence over an apparently futile issue.

Officials were asked about prospects of a shooting war in the light of Khrushchev's reversion to the brutal methods of the late Dictator Josef Stalin. They saw the switch as "a change in tactics rather than in foreign policy."

They said the execution of Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy — A Stalinist-like purge—and the subsequent toughening of the Kremlin's foreign policy line were dictated by Khrushchev's need to consolidated his position and tighten his control of the Sino-Russian bloc.

They do not believe, on the basis of evidence at hand, that Khrushchev is prepared to risk a nuclear holocaust which nobody could win.

But Western diplomats anticipate stormier diplomatic weather. They believe that the smiling Soviet "peace offensive" against the West is at an end because Khrushchev has failed to split the U.S. and its allies.

Officials said the Russians apparently lost interest in a summit parley when it became obvious they could not force a meeting on their own terms.

Soviet "flip-flops" on Tuesday's Geneva meeting on technical aspects of a nuclear test ban were believed due to a decision in the Kremlin that it may no longer be worthwhile to try and outmaneuver the West around the conference table.

Saturday, however, in the latest maneuver on the Geneva Conference, the Soviet Union gave the United States a new note hinting it will attend the meeting despite the earlier threat of a boycott. The State Department said it had not yet received word of the note which was handed to American Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow.

McCormack Is Endorsed By Demo Members

BOSTON (AP)—The Massachusetts Democratic Convention Saturday endorsed Edward J. McCormack Jr., 34, for attorney general. He is a nephew of Rep. John McCormack (D-Mass).

The endorsement came on the fourth ballot. The other three ballots were indecisive and the convention reached a near riotous adjournment early last Sunday.

More than 1,200 delegates qualified Saturday. There were 1,700 at last week's session.

The fourth ballot count gave McCormack 733 votes. Joseph D. Ward of Fitchburg was second with 303, and Endicott Peabody ran last with 215.

Ward announced he would abide by the decision of the convention, but Peabody said he would enter the Sept. 9 primary.

Sen. Johnson Urges Summit Meet Planned

LAREDO, Tex. (UPI)— Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson Saturday urged a summit conference of the heads of the American states be planned ahead of any with Communist nations.

"We must not forget, as a nation, that no matter where we turn, we can find no better allies than our own next - door neighbors," Johnson said here in a speech at the annual convention of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC).

"If we want respect, we must extend respect. If we want cooperation, we must extend co-operation," Johnson said.

Referring to recent Latin American demonstrations, Johnson said the success of the Good Neighbor Policy stated by Roosevelt in 1933 was based on "treating good neighbors as they should be —with genuine respect."

ELECT BOARD MEMBER

DALLAS (UPI)—Joseph V. Heffernan, vice-president of the National Broadcasting Company, has been elected a new member of Tekoil Corporation's board of directors.

Playground Attendance Here Record

Last week's playground attendance set the record for the first three weeks this year with a total of 3,804.

In the past week playgrounds recorded the following attendance: Plum Street, 372; Georgia Tucker, 369; Barkdull Faulk, 369; Lexington, 342; Sherrouse, 369; George Breece, 190; Lida Benton, 345; Clark's, 313; Carroll High, 307; Booker T, 353 and Carver Housing, 475.

Winners of the pet show and turtle race last week at all playgrounds, will have a play-off Monday morning to determine the city championship. White children will assemble at Barkdull Faulk and colored children at Carver Housing.

Others Listed

James Spurs and Victory Davis of Booker T; Edward Ballard, Willie James and Brenda Decater of Carver Housing; Matthew Hamilton Williams, Jennette Hunter, Marty Carter, Cordell Graves, Alester McElroy, Billy Tilman and Jackie Johnson of Carroll High.

Parents are urged to send their children to the nearest playground. Playgrounds are open week-days from 8:30 until 11:30 a.m. This week there will be a marble tournament and baby show.

Asks Highway In Yarborough Park Measure

Yarborough introduced the bill Friday proposing that the slender 110 mile long island be made into a national park.

The U. S. Interior Department had made a study of the possibility of turning the island into a national park some three years ago.

Tompkins said a highway running the length of the island from Corpus Christi to Port Isabel, should be a toll-free road, and added that the highway is "indispensable" if the park plan is to prove practical.

The wealthy developer has a multi-million dollar beach resort project on the island which includes motels, swank homes, and some other resort structures.

"BIG THICKET" CLOSES

BEAUMONT, Tex. (UPI)—The fourth annual "Big Thicket Trek," sponsored by the Young Men's Business League of Beaumont, closed with a rodeo Saturday night.

More than 1,000 horsemen, including Gov. Price Daniel, took part in the annual event featured by trail rides and a parade through downtown Beaumont.

'DRY' COUNTRY

Guard Stages Raid In Miss.

BOONEVILLE, Miss. (AP)—National Guardsmen raided through Prentiss County Saturday in search of illegal liquor operations in "dry" Mississippi.

Under orders from Gov. J. P. Coleman, 84 men led by Major Gen. W. P. Wilson, adjutant general of the Mississippi Guard, hit 16 establishments simultaneously.

Prentiss County Sheriff George Rutherford Jr. and Coleman have been engaged in legal hostilities for some time.

The guard reported a detachment also raided several places in Sharkey County, located in the Delta, in the vicinity of Rolling Fork.

Officers said the Prentiss county raids found 11 places that yielded large quantities of whisky, beer, vodka and gin.

Ten men were held pening filing of charges. They were not immediately identified.

Much of the liquor seized was smashed, with only a token held for evidence. One of two dice tables taken was broken up. An auto loaded with whisky and beer was impounded.

Guard spokesmen said the take included 30 cases, 7 quarts and 851 loose cans of beer; 11 fifths, 3 pints and 178 half pints of whisky; 5 gallons of mash; 10 gallons of moonshine whisky; 5 half pints of moonshine and 123 pints of wind.

Arrest warrants were made out by Guardsmen, who operated in teams. In one establishment, everyone present was arrested when no one would claim ownership.

The prisoners were brought to the Prentiss County courthouse here where they were booked by Rutherford. Those who could make bond were freed.

Guard spokesmen said there were indications some liquor operators knew what was coming. They said there was evidence that liquor had been hastily removed from a few places.

Rutherford and a "citizens committee" have been at odds for some time, with the committee criticizing him as inadequate to cope with bootlegging.

The committee, operating under a law passed by the last legis'ature and backed by Coleman, tired to force a recall election. The issue is still before the state supreme court.

CLERK MURDER SUSPECT

Revealed In Ala. Narcotics Issue

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A 21-year-old clerk charged with the murder of a Birmingham businessman said Saturday he had been delivering narcotics for him for about a year.

Willie M. Wilks, father of three children who live with their mother at Cullman, is charged in the slaying of Troy William Pullen.

Pullen, 42, owner of a retail sock store in Birmingham was shot down in his living room with nine bullets from a .22 pistol Friday.

Wilks said at a preliminary hearing he killed Pullen because of nartotics.

He said in a statement to police Saturday that he had been delivering narcotics for Pullen for about a year.

Wilks also is charged with assault with intent to murder in the severe beating of Mrs. Pullen, 35, who is recovering in a Birmingham hospital.

The Pullens formerly lived at Mobile and Biloxi, Miss., and came to Birmingham about three years ago.

Wilks said in a statement to Homewood Det. John C. Martin that he had delivered three packages of narcotics this month for Pullen. He said he was to have received $400 for each delivery.

"These deliveries were always made on a lonely road near the Birmingham airport to an unknown man driving a 1951 black Chevrolet," Wilks told Martin.

"The narcotics were always in a small pakcage and I was promised $400 for each delivery I made. Pullen had not paid me recently but had made several promises."

Wilks said Pullen had promised him a 1958 Oldsmobile, to help him start a shore business, and pay his debts.

"I don't know where Pullen got the dope or who the man was I delivered it to," he added.

Police said $4,800 in cash was found in a matress at Pullen's home, but that a check of his books at his sock store showed a profit of only $4,900 last year.

Wilks was arrested here May 7 on a non-support charge. His wife, Mrs. Sue Henderson Wilks, said at Cullman that she could shed no light on her husband's activities since he left her about two years ago.

PERSON-TO-PERSON

Many In America, USSR Communicate

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — The Iron Curtain seems more easily pierced by air than on the ground.

At least radio amateurs of the United States and the Soviet Union find it simpler to communicate with each other on a person-to-person level than do political leaders.

Perhaps a typical example of these new adventures in international understanding is the relationship between Frank Enge and Leo Shiskin.

Enge is supervisor of research and development for the American Machine & Foundry Co. electronics laboratory here. Shiskin is an electrical engineer in Moscow.

Aug. 11, 1956, they first made contact via ham radio.

After that they quickly became pen pals. Leo asked Frank for copies of American radio journals, and sent him copies of Soviet radio journals—also some Russian classical phonograph records for Frank's wife.

Frank congratulated Leo on the Soviet scientific achievement when the first Sputnik went aloft, and Leo replied in kind when the United States sent up Explorer I, adding:

That was the nearest the Russian ever came to a political remark, Enge said.

Leo Shiskin lost his Soviet radio amateur license "for infractions of the rules," but never explained the nature of the violations.

Leo wrote that he made about 1200 rubles a month—the ruble is officially pegged at 25 cents.

"He also said that he only had to pay 50 rubles a month rent," Enge recalled, "but he had to share a communal apartment with four other families. The apartment had only one bathroom, one kitchen and one telephone.

Frank wrote back that his own income was about $1,000 a month that he had a five-room two-bath apartment and owned two cars.

"This comparison may have made Leo unhappy, but so far he hasn't said so," remarked Enge smiling.

Enge estimated that perhaps 12,000 of some 160,000 American radio hams have made contact with Soviet amateurs.

"I think if the Russian people knew the American people, and we knew more about them, there would be no need for an Iron Curtain," Enge said.

Eugene W. Vogt Receives Special Pharmacy Honor

FERRIDAY (Special) — Eugene W. Vogt, secretary and treasurer of the Louisiana Board of Pharmacy, was awarded a plaque designating him "Man of the Year in Pharmacy in 1958" at the Baton Rouge 76th annual convention of the Louisiana Pharmaceutical Association last week.

This is the third award of this kind he has received. On May 27, 1937 a state cup was awarded him as being of the most efficient service in pharmacy, and in 1957 he was selected as honorary member in the student branch of the American Pharmaceutical Association for being the most outstanding pharmacist in Louisiana.

Accompanying him to the state convention were Mrs. Vogt and their son, Barry. Mrs. Vogt won the grand entrance prize, a beautiful store fixture.

The next state convention will be held in Alexandria next June.

Appointment Is Announced

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The appointment of Mrs. Sue Thurman, former director of the Junior Art Gallery in Louisville, Ky., as director of the Delgado Museum of Art was announced Saturday.

In making the announcement, board president C. E. Whitmore said the appointment had resolved the months-long conflict among local art groups following the dismissal of Alonzo Lansford as director in March, 1957.

Mrs. Thurman was given a three-year contract. Her husband, Harold Thurman, recently was named to the art faculty of Newcomb College.

Man Drowns In Lake Randell

His brother, Edwin Miller, also of Denison, suffered a slight heart attack when Miller's body was recovered from the water about an hour after he went under. The brother was taken to a hospital for observation.

Witnesses said Miller went under just as he was reaching to grab the boat. A resuscitator failed to revive him and he was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Homer Gaddy.

It Was A Girl So Mother Was Right After All

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP)—The 13 sons of the Matthew Wagners had a flock of boys names ready for the new baby in the family. But it turned out their mother had the winning combination. She picked Mary Ann.

The first girl in the all-boy family that, Wagner says, "takes what God gives us," is due home this weekend from Holy Family Hospital. Born Wednesday, she scaled a robust 10 pounds, 6¼ ounces. Home for the Wagners is a 38-acre dairy farm on which everyone shares the work.

Obviously the boys hadn't counted on having a sister, and Wagner admitted today that he had "given up all ideas of having a girl." But his wife, Julitta, thought differently.

"I have an idea she had that named picked out five years ago—just hoping," said Wagner. The boys, though, had been asked for suggestions. Each had favorite names and we wrote them all down—all boy's names."

Wagner said the boys reacted quite naturally to the happy news. "they didn't say much, but everyone of them grinned from ear to ear. With that many brothers to look out for her, Mary Ann ought to make out all right," he added.

Will there be more children?

" Will it rain tomorrow," answered Wagner. "Who knows? We are a Catholic family and we take what God gives us. So far we have nothing to complain about.

Even the hospital got into the spirit of the thing. Mrs. Wagners hospitalization was "on the house."

Power production in New England went up to an all-time regional high of 26 billion kilowatt hours during 1957, a gain of 1.5 billion over the previous year.

MISERABLE MOMENT — An apprehensive Tommy Mio, 5, issues a few tears as a volunteer fireman's hacksaw nears his trapped finger, caught in a perforation in a steel playground slide at International Falls. Minn. Vernon Peterson, the fireman, sawed out a section of the steel platform to free Tommy who was unhurt except for a swollen finger. The one small trapped finger brought out firemen, police, two physicians, a flock of kids and most of the neighborhood parents including Tony Mio, Tommy's father, a professional photographer. He took the picture. (AP Wirephoto).

High Court Decision

The United States supreme court makes some decisions which seem bad and some which seem good.

Often the court has made decisions seeming to favor communism. Frequently its decisions have upset southern tradition and what had previously been the American way of life. Its rulings often have been termed "liberal," which apparently means socialistic instead of democratic.

Now the supreme court has come up with a 7-2 decision which may not seem to make much sense but which upholds one of the cardinal principles of the American constitution — that which provides for the sanctity and privacy of the home.

"Every householder, the good and the bad, the guilty and the innocent, is entitled to the protection designed to secure the common interest against unlawful invasion of the house," Justice Brennan wrote for the majority. Justice Brennan said officers who had no warrant broke into the Washington apartment of William Miller, who was held on a narcotics charge, could not be lawfully arrested in his home by officers breaking in without first giving him notice of their authority and purpose.

Justice Clark, joined by Justice Burton, took vigorous exception to the decision. Clark said Miller had a previous record in dope traffic. "And," Clark added, "Miller carries on his abominable trade by using a juvenile as a dope peddler and co-conspirator."

The view taken by Justice Clark doubtless will be shared by many others, particularly in view of the viciousness of the narcotics traffic. In cases of this kind, what most people want to see is punishment of the guilty person, without much regard for the law or constitution or the accused person's rights.

In Louisiana the narcotics trade is considered so low and vile that the death penalty is being sought for those found guilty of selling illegal drugs to juveniles.

Nevertheless, if the supreme court were to give its approval to illegal invasion of the home simply because a man happened to be a known violator, such invasions would become more and more frequent, with less and less cause, until officers would reach the point of breaking into any home without a warrant and probably would also reach the point of making arrests purely on suspicion if no evidence were obtained.

This would be no indication that peace officers are worse than anyone else. It is merely human nature to push things as far as permissible.

If these things were countenanced it would not be long before there would be no sanctity or privacy of the home and we would reach a situation similar to that which prevailed in Germany and Italy prior to and during World War II and which is said to prevail in Russia now. Under that situation officers usually broke into homes in the dead of night and carried away some of the occupants, usually without making a charge. Sometimes relatives of these persons heard from them again and sometimes they did not.

In our zeal for punishment of ruthless criminals we must never allow the sanctity and privacy of the home to be broken down and must not allow the provisions of the constitution to be violated.

Nasser Appeasement

United States appeasement of Gamal Abdel Nasser, arrogant president of Egypt and would-be dictator of all of the Arab nations, is working out just about as satisfactorily as did the appeasement of Germany's Adolf Hitler by Britain's Neville Chamberlain prior to World War II.

When Nasser barricaded the Suez canal and Britain, France and Israel started to take him across their knees for a good spanking, it took the United States only 24 hours to get apparatus moving in behalf of Nasser. The dogs were called off in record time. Because of direct pressures applied—not to the enemies but to the allies—the French, British and Israeli assault on Egypt was brought to a quick end. The invading combine had Nasser on the ropes and could have finished hom in short order except for U.S. interference.

Appeasement of Nasser is working out as should have been expected because dictators with aggressive aims and with acquisition on their minds cannot be appeased. While the appeasing was going on Nasser was growing in stature, building his muscles and becoming more and more a Soviet puppet.

If there ever was a situation in which tehre was an ironic twist for the west that involving Lebanon is one. The stalling on the point of United Nations intervention has gone on for more than six weeks, compared to the 24 hours it took the United States to act in Nasser's behalf.

For more than six weeks Lebanon has been kept in a state of virtual siege by revolutionary forces and their supporters in Syria and beyond. "Beyond" includes Cairo and Moscow.

It is a lot easier to call off our friends than to call off our enemies. A great deal of fear of what Russia might do entered into the pressure and maneuvering in the United Nations, in the United States and among our allies.

When the United States called off Britain, France and Israel and enabled Nasser to carry out his grand coup and then to laugh in the faces of half of the major nations of the world, including the United States, there was no doubt that this country's action was prompted by fear of what Russia might do. Otherwise, we could not even have considered letting a little upstart country tie up world traffic and challenge the big countries to do anything about it.

The same fear of what Russia might do has kept the United States and the United Nations from rescuing Lebanon from Nasser's grasping designs. More than six weeks—not just 24 hours—have passed and the United Nations has not heeded Lebanon's plea for an international force to seal its borders against aggressors. Unless the United States supplies the impetus, United Nations action will not be forthcoming.

If the middle east's pro-western bloc is to survive, effective action must be taken soon on Lebanon's behalf.

Once Lebanon becomes a full victim of Soviet-Egyptian aggression, Jordan, Iraq, Iran, Turkey and Israel will be similarly victimized one after another.

If the west fails Lebanon now the others have no reason to hope for greater support, the Eisenhower doctrine and NATO commitments notwithstanding. If we fail now Russia and Egypt will be confirmed in their belief that they have nothing to fear in further agressions in the middle east.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Duplicity and Vulgarity Are Regarded As Proper

Ulysses S. Grant had been a brilliant general and had become a national hero. He was elected President of the United States, succeeding the unfortunate Andrew Johnson, in the hope that he could end the post-Civil War demoralization which affected all parts of the United States. Grant, however, had little understanding of the nature of the presidency or of the intricacies of the American form of government.

It was a period which required a particularly astute and alert mind because the predators of great wealth were using what is called the postwar reconstruction to manipulate the economy of the country in their own interests. Avid for great financial benefits were the railroad builders and manipulators who paid huge bribes to members of Congress as well as to other public officials. Collis P. Huntington of California, Thomas A. Scott of Pennsylvania, the New York crowd, Daniel Drew, Commodore Vanderbilt, Jim Fisk and Jay Gould were particularly vicious. Professor C. Vann Woodward, in discussing this period in "American Heritage," says of them:

". . They cheated and swindled each other as well as the public and cynically boasted of the legislatures and judges they bought. In moral obtuseness and brass they were fitting contemporaries of such politicians as Ben Butler Rosco Conkling, Simon Cameron, and James G. Blaine."

In some respects, that period was t altogether unlike our own because money rather than morals ruled and duplicity and vulgarity were regarded as proper if adequately paid for. Grant had, of course, known Lincoln but does not seem to have been inspired by him. Like Lincoln, Grant had come out of poverty and youthful suffering, but unlike Lincoln, he had developed an inordinate regard for wealth and for wealthy men. Without too much learning himself, he avoided men of education and culture, particularly argumentative personalities who were superior to him in intellect.

His private secretary for eight years, his closest associate, his eye and his ear, was General Orville E. Babcock, who controlled entire departments of the government, appointed men to office dependent upon him, prejudiced the President's mind against men and measures, drove men of talent out of the government and made the Grant administration the plaything of financial gangsters.

Professor Woodward explains Grant's willingness to permit Babcock to act as he did, in the following terms:

"Another barrier between the President and men of ability and independent mind who tried to serve him was Grant's military training and service. Once indoctrinated with the military point of view regarding staff methods, the structure of command and the meaning of discipline and insubordination, he clung to it stubbornly and sought to carry it over into the political sphere. He was accustomed to command, not to consult. Orders were to be obeyed, not debated. Resistance from subordinates was suspected as treason. Objectives were to b. carried by storm if need be. Men of self-respect and independent judgment naturally did not take to these ways easily."

Grant could not keep decent men in his administration, the exception being Hamilton Fish, his secretary of state, who remained throughout to serve the country in the then intricate foreign relations.

The Grant administration was rocked by constant scandals, but they did not all occur in the latter years. "Black Friday" of 1869 should have warned Grant that he was surrounded by thieves. Jay Gould, Jim Fisk jr., Abel Rathbone Corbin, one of Grant's thriving brothers-in-law, entered upon a conspiracy to corner the New York gold market. To them, they added General Daniel Butterfield, an old friend of the President. They came very close to wrecking the country economically, bringing distress to many people.

Grant should have been warned because his brother-in-law, Corbin, was a notorious crook who had been exposed by a congressional committee and the reputations of Gould and Fisk were of the very worst. Yet the President met them and appeared with them in public. They should have been particularly careful after the disclosures of the Credit Mobilier rackets which really occurred in the previous Johnson administration.

After a long series of outrageous scandals, the President's secretary, Babcock, was brought to trial for his involvement in the Whiskey Ring scandal. Babcock was acquitted under peculiar circumstances.

Couchmaster Studies Policy

WASHINGTON, D. C. — They've consulted everybody from the Rockefeller Brothers to the Dolly Sisters on our American foreign policy, so last week the State Department put itself under the care of Dr. Clarence the eminent psychiatrist.

"Now try again, Mr. Secretary," said Dr. Couchmaster patiently. "Let us try that word association once more."

Pax Romanus . . . Pax Britannia . . . Pax Pusillanimous . . .

"Oh, dear," said Dr. Couchmaster in alarm. "This is even worse than I thought. Just lie still and allow the associations to run freely. Again, please, Mr. Secretary."

Paratroopers to Little Rock . . . Airborne troops to Puerto Rico . . .

"Now we're getting somewhere," said Couchmaster. "Situations of strength, eh? But what did the Administration do about those eight officers and the master sergeant who have been prisoners in Communist East Germany since June 7th?"

Pax Pusillanimous . . .

"Oh, dear, oh, dear," said Dr. Counchmaster. "This is terrible. The USA has five Army divisions in West Europe, the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and the Strategic Air Command based in Britain. And, although as brave as lions in Little Rock and Puerto Rico,the Administration has quite a different record in Asia and Europe. Shall it be said that a miserable little upstart like East Germany can get away with this incident?"

The patient said that East Germany did not exist. It had never been diplomatically recognized. Thus no East Germany, no incident.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear, oh dear," murmured Couchmaster, who knows what's wrong with a patient who refuses to face reality. "Now, let's try again. On June 7, 1958, an Army helicopter, H-19, took off from its U. S. base at Frankfurt. The next word from the nine military passengers came from a Communist news source which reported them all prisoners in East Germany. Now, sir, what did the most powerful nation on earth do to protect its military personnel?"

Pax Pus . . .

"Try to face the truth, as much as it hurts," said Dr. Couchmaster. "Our European commander, Gen. Henry I. Hodes, held several cinconclusive meetings with Soviet officers and now there is talk of ransoming back our men. But. . ."

Pax . . .

"Pax is wonderful," said Dr. Couchmaster, "but tell me this. Why do we have so much Army Navy and Air Force on that side of the ocean? Are they there only to protect our Allies? Why don't we use American forces to protect American interests, too?"

The patient muttered something that Dr. Couchmaster thought could be either "Atoms" or "Adams." As an expert mind-reader, the doctor instantly understood that both were intricately involved in the sad condition of the Republican State Department.

"Try to face it," he said gently. "Ever since 1945 the Communists have been wresting atomic superiority from the USA. Besides stealing our secrets and corrupting our scientists, the Soviets have implanted an atomic guilt in us for winning a war against Japan which the Japs started."

Pax . . . atoms . . . Adam s. . .

"There, there," said Dr. Couchmaster soothingly. "I can well understand the desire of Republicans to change the subject from war and atoms to Sherman Adams. If the Administration can summon the nerve to fire Adams, Republican candidates can talk about peace and purity instead of about world realities."

The patient agreed.

"Yes, indeed," mused Dr. Couchmaster. "It won't be the first time that a political party practices escapism in an election year."

Pax Pusillanimous.

"But somehow," continued Dr. Couchmaster, "the realities never go away. And I doubt if Americans really like the kind of peace we've got."

Little Rock Still 'Division' Symbol

Little Rock continues to symbolize the Big Divide in the Democratic party. The events of the week have augmented its role in the widening chasm between the party's northern and southern wings.

When as non - political a judge as sits on any bench last week rendered his decision deferring integration in the Little Rock schools for two - and - a - half years it is doubtful if he contemplated, or would have cared if he did, the political effect of his decision.

But Judge Harry J. Lemley's order has again started Democrats whetting knives against Democrats and made a quiet southern city and the management of its school a hot issue in many an election throughout the nation.

One effect has been to heighten interest in three races especially —the gubernatorial race in Arkansas on July 29, the senatorial race in Texas on July 26 and the Tenr 'see senatorial contest on August 7.

The paramount interest is in the Arkansas outcome. Governor Orval E. Faubus is running there for a third term. Although he has always insisted that he is not a die - hard segregationist, he has become the hero of the last-ditch segregationists, who credit him more than any other man with slowing down integration all over the south.

Integrationists oppose him with as much fury as the segregationists hail him. The New York Times, one of Faubus' bitterest detractors, deplored Judge Lemley's court order with a leading editorial under the headline "Governor Faubus Wins." And, indeed Faubus' contention received at least one jurist's sanction when Judge Lemley in his order ascribed the disorders in and out of the school room to "deep-seated popular opposition in Little Rock to the principle of integration." Prevailing opinion here is that Faubus has been helped by the Lemley decision, the more so because the order is not final, and while it may be stayed the issue cannot be decided by higher courts until long after the Arkansas primary.

In the Texas and Tennessee s atorial races, Senators Ralph Yarborough and Albert Gore face the wrath of voters who will cast their ballots on the basis of all-out efforts to continue segregation rather than on some other issue.

Since the Reconstruction Days it has been the historic position of senators from the Old Confederate states to oppose all force bills and senators from nine southern states maintained that position in 1957, but Texas and Tennessee senators broke the ranks of the solid south for the first time on this issue.

It has been the contention of some supporters that the civil rights legislation enacted last year was confined to voting. This contention recently has had a rude jolt. A director of the federal civil rights commission, created by the 1957 legislation, President Eisenhower named Gordon M. Tiffany, a New Hampshire proteg. of Sherman Adams. Immediately upon his confirmation by the senate, Tiffany announced that the commission would undertake an inquiry into voting, education and housing. The housing phase of the inquiry is more frightening to most segregationists than either voting or education.

Yarborough is opposed by former Senator William Blakely, who ha let it be known that if he had been in the senate, he would have opposed the 1957 legislation. Gore faces former Governor Prentice Cooper. Neither Gore nor Yarborough is underrating his opponent. Yarborough has made frequent trips to Texas, but managed to answer most senate roll calls up to now. Gore headed for Tennessee immediately after Cooper's announcement and has missed roll calls on many important measures.

Regardless of the outcome in the south, the segregationists, realize that their chances of preventing run - away civil rights legislation in the 81st congress beginning next January is a silm one. The Democrats are expected to make big gains in both senate and house in November and every Democrat elected outside of Dixie will be an ardent integrationist, anxious to extend the present legislation. Originally the civil rights commission was to have a life of two years. Bills have been introduced to extend that and there is sentiment to make it permanent.

The States Righters have meager hopes also that they will be able to prevent the next Democratic convention from nominating a strong integrationist and writing a strong civil rights platform. If that comes to pass the States Righters are divided on procedure. Some favor a third party such as the one which carried four states in 1948. Others would simply nominate electors who will withhold their votes from the regular Democratic presidential nominee.

Crashes Cause Waste Of Life

Accidents are a tremendous waste of life and property. The majority are needless and senseless. Let's cooperate and bring this slaughter to a halt.

There are enough statistics on accidents to fill the Pentagon, but this has not solved the problem. We know, for example, that 55 per cent of the 1957 United States highway casualties occurred on week ends; 27 per cent of the drivers were under 25 years old; 95 per cent of the vehicles involved were in good condition; and less than 15 per cent of the fatalities took place when driving conditions were bad.

We all realize it is safer to travel by air, rail, boat, bus, or truck than to drive a car. Most of us shudder on seeing an accident or reading about it but wholesome fear has not slowed down the driver. Losing the driver's license does. When this first was done for a speeding conviction in Connecticut, fatalities dropped 14 per cent.

This offers a clue to what might help in the future. We need more research on factors that influence the behavior of drivers. Education in safety is another approach that offers hope. It should be started early and made a prerequisite to obtaining a driver's license in the later years of high school. Adolescents ought to learn that driving is a privilege and that the auto is as lethal as gun or knife. Habits of safety, caution, and courtesy must be nurtured at this impressionable age.

The law and the auto industry also enter the picture. Car manufacturers are selling a potentially dangerous product. If Fords were foods and Buicks drugs, the federal government would have stepped in a long time ago.

Cars are killing more of our citizens than all the foods and drugs combined, yet there appears to be marked apathy on the part of many authorities about serving the best interests of the people. Public opinion will bring this situation to a head unless we receive more cooperation from these groups.

BALD SPOTS

Mrs. J. writes: Can ring-worm of the scalp develop in a woman in her forties? If not, what could cause five bald circles on the scalp, the size of a half dollar?

Reply

Ringworm of the scalp is unusual in adults. The spots you mention are more likely to be aloepcia areata, the exact cause of which is poorly understood. The condition often follows periods of worry or nervous tension. The hair comes out suddenly in a patchy pattern but regrowth often occurs. The majority of treatments are aimed at stimulating the deficient hair follicles.

WHOLESALE CELL TESTS

Mrs. R. writes: Should all women over 30 have a cell test of the uterus every three months?

Reply

At present, this test is recommended annually for women over 40. The procedure is time consuming and there are not enough technicians in this country to test all women once a year, let alone every three months. Perhaps a do-it-yourself technic will be worked out in the future.

STREP SUSCEPTIBILITY

Mrs. D. writes: My 6 year old child was healthy until he entered school and since then has had scarlet fever and three other strep infections.

Does one bout of strep infection make a child more susceptible to this germ?

Reply

No, but going to school does. The youngster comes into close contact with other children and is exposed to anyone who has a cold.

PRESSURE AND HEART ATTACK

M. N. writes: Does the blood pressure fall when the person has coronary thrombosis?

Reply

Yes, temporarily. The physician becomes suspicious of a silent coronary when this drop is noted in a person who previously had hypertension.

High Court Decision

The United States supreme court makes some decisions which seem bad and some which seem good.

Often the court has made decisions seeming to favor communism. Frequently its decisions have upset southern tradition and what had previously been the American way of life. Its rulings often have been termed "liberal," which apparently means socialistic instead of democratic.

Now the supreme court has come up with a 7-2 decision which may not seem to make much sense but which upholds one of the cardinal principles of the American constitution — that which provides for the sanctity and privacy of the home.

"Every householder, the good and the bad, the guilty and the innocent, is entitled to the protection designed to secure the common interest against unlawful invasion of the house," Justice Brennan wrote for the majority. Justice Brennan said officers who had no warrant broke into the Washington apartment of William Miller, who was held on a narcotics charge, could not be lawfully arrested in his home by officers breaking in without first giving him notice of their authority and purpose.

Justice Clark, joined by Justice Burton, took vigorous exception to the decision. Clark said Miller had a previous record in dope traffic. "And," Clark added, "Miller carries on his abominable trade by using a juvenile as a dope peddler and co-conspirator."

The view taken by Justice Clark doubtless will be shared by many others, particularly in view of the viciousness of the narcotics traffic. In cases of this kind, what most people want to see is punishment of the guilty person, without much regard for the law or constitution or the accused person's rights.

In Louisiana the narcotics trade is considered so low and vile that the death penalty is being sought for those found guilty of selling illegal drugs to juveniles.

Nevertheless, if the supreme court were to give its approval to illegal invasion of the home simply because a man happened to be a known violator, such invasions would become more and more frequent, with less and less cause, until officers would reach the point of breaking into any home without a warrant and probably would also reach the point of making arrests purely on suspicion if no evidence were obtained.

This would be no indication that peace officers are worse than anyone else. It is merely human nature to push things as far as permissible.

For Justice Clark to take the position that officers had a right to break into the home because they believed its

And, although as brave as lions in Little Rock and Puerto Rico,the Administration has quite a different record in Asia and Europe. Shall it be said that a miserable little upstart like East Germany can get away with this incident?"

The patient said that East Germany did not exist. It had never been diplomatically recognized. Thus no East Germany, no incident.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear, oh dear," murmured Couchmaster, who knows what's wrong with a patient who refuses to face reality. "Now, let's try again. On June 7, 1958, an Army helicopter, H-19, took off from its U. S. base at Frankfurt. The next word from the nine military passengers came from a Communist news source which reported them all prisoners in East Germany. Now, sir, what did the most powerful nation on earth do to protect its military personnel?"

Pax Pus . . .

"Try to face the truth, as much as it hurts," said Dr. Couchmaster. "Our European commander, Gen. Henry I. Hodes, held several cinconclusive meetings with Soviet officers and now there is talk of ransoming back our men. But. . ."

Pax . . .

"Pax is wonderful," said Dr. Couchmaster, "but tell me this. Why do we have so much Army Navy and Air Force on that side of the ocean? Are they there only to protect our Allies? Why don't we use American forces to protect American interests, too?"

The patient muttered something that Dr. Couchmaster thought could be either "Atoms" or "Adams." As an expert mind-reader, the doctor instantly understood that both were intricately involved in the sad condition of the Republican State Department.

"Try to face it," he said gently. "Ever since 1945 the Communists have been wresting atomic superiority from the USA. Besides stealing our secrets and corrupting our scientists, the Soviets have implanted an atomic guilt in us for winning a war against Japan which the Japs started."

Pax . . . atoms . . . Adam s. . .

"There, there," said Dr. Couchmaster soothingly. "I can well understand the desire of Republicans to change the subject from war and atoms to Sherman Adams. If the Administration can summon the nerve to fire Adams, Republican candidates can talk about peace and purity instead of about world realities."

The patient agreed.

"Yes, indeed," mused Dr. Couchmaster. "It won't be the first time that a political party practices escapism in an election year."

Pax Pusillanimous.

"But somehow," continued Dr. Couchmaster, "the realities never go away. And I doubt if Americans really like the kind of peace we've got."

BASCOM TIMMONS

Little Rock Still 'Division' Symbol

Little Rock continues to symbolize the Big Divide in the Democratic party. The events of the week have augmented its role in the widening chasm between the party's northern and southern wings.

When as non - political a judge as sits on any bench last week rendered his decision deferring integration in the Little Rock schools for two - and - a - half years it is doubtful if he contemplated, or would have cared if he did, the political effect of his decision.

But Judge Harry J. Lemley's order has again started Democrats whetting knives against Democrats and made a quiet southern city and the management of its school a hot issue in many an election throughout the nation.

One effect has been to heighten interest in three races especially —the gubernatorial race in Arkansas on July 29, the senatorial race in Texas on July 26 and the Tenn see senatorial contest on August 7.

The paramount interest is in the Arkansas outcome. Governor Orval E. Faubus is running there for a third term. Although he has always insisted that he is not a die - hard segregationist, he has become the hero of the last-ditch segregationists, who credit him more than any other man with slowing down integration all over the south.

Integrationists oppose him with as much fury as the segregationists hail him. The New York Times, one of Faubus' bitterest detractors, deplored Judge Lemley's court order with a leading editorial under the headline "Governor Faubus Wins." And, indeed Faubus' contention received at least one jurist's sanction when Judge Lemley in his order ascribed the disorders in and out of the school room to "deep-seated popular opposition in Little Rock to the principle of integration." Prevailing opinion here is that Faubus has been helped by the Lemley decision, the more so because the order is not final, and while it may be stayed the issue cannot be decided by higher courts until long after the Arkansas primary.

In the Texas and Tennessee s atorial races, Senators Ralph Yarborough and Albert Gore face the wrath of voters who will cast their ballots on the basis of all-out efforts to continue segregation rather than on some other issue.

Since the Reconstruction Days it has been the historic position of senators from the Old Confederate states to oppose all force bills and senators from nine southern states maintained that position in 1957, but Texas and Tennessee senators broke the ranks of the solid south for the first time on this issue.

It has been the contention of some supporters that the civil rights legislation enacted last year was confined to voting. This contention recently has had a rude jolt. A director of the federal civil rights commission, created by the 1957 legislation, President Eisenhower named Gordon M. Tiffany, a New Hampshire proteg of Sherman Adams. Immediately upon his confirmation by the senate, Tiffany announced that the commission would undertake an inquiry into voting, education and housing. The housing phase of the inquiry is more frightening to most segregationists than either voting or education.

Yarborough is opposed by former Senator William Blakely, who ha let it be known that if he had been in the senate, he would have opposed the 1957 legislation. Gore faces former Governor Prentice Cooper. Neither Gore nor Yarborough is underrating his opponent. Yarborough has made frequent trips to Texas, but managed to answer most senate roll calls up to now. Gore headed for Tennessee immediately after Cooper's announcement and has missed roll calls on many important measures.

Regardless of the outcome in the south, the segregationists, realize that their chances of preventing run - away civil rights legislation in the 81st congress beginning next January is a silm one. The Democrats are expected to make big gains in both senate and house in November and every Democrat elected outside of Dixie will be an ardent integrationist, anxious to extend the present legislation. Originally the civil rights commission was to have a life of two years. Bills have been introduced to extend that and there is sentiment to make it permanent.

The States Righters have meager hopes also that they will be able to prevent the next Democratic convention from nominating a strong integrationist and writing a strong civil rights platform. If that comes to pass the States Righters are divided on procedure. Some favor a third party such as the one which carried four states in 1948. Others would simply nominate electors who will withhold their votes from the regular Democratic presidential nominee.

Crashes Cause Waste Of Life

Accidents are a tremendous waste of life and property. The majority are needless and senseless. Let's cooperate and bring this slaughter to a halt.

There are enough statistics on accidents to fill the Pentagon, but this has not solved the problem. We know, for example, that 55 per cent of the 1957 United States highway casualties occurred on week ends; 27 per cent of the drivers were under 25 years old; 95 per cent of the vehicles involved were in good condition; and less than 15 per cent of the fatalities took place when driving conditions were bad.

We all realize it is safer to travel by air, rail, boat, bus, or truck than to drive a car. Most of us shudder on seeing an accident or reading about it but wholesome fear has not slowed down the driver. Losing the driver's license does. When this first was done for a speeding conviction in Connecticut, fatalities dropped 14 per cent.

This offers a clue to what might help in the future. We need more research on factors that influence the behavior of drivers. Education in safety is another approach that offers hope. It should be started early and made a prerequisite to obtaining a driver's license in the later years of high school. Adolescents ought to learn that driving is a privilege and that the auto is as lethal as gun or knife. Habits of safety, caution, and courtesy must be nurtured at this impressionable age.

The law and the auto industry also enter the picture. Car manufacturers are selling a potentially dangerous product. If Fords were foods and Buicks drugs, the federal government would have stepped in a long time ago.

Cars are killing more of our citizens than all the foods and drugs combined, yet there appears to be marked apathy on the part of many authorities about serving the best interests of the people. Public opinion will bring this situation to a head unless we receive more cooperation from these groups.

BALD SPOTS

Mrs. J. writes: Can ring-worm of the scalp develop in a woman in her forties? If not, what could cause five bald circles on the scalp, the size of a half dollar?

Reply

Ringworm of the scalp is unusual in adults. The spots you mention are more likely to be alopecia areata, the exact cause of which is poorly understood. The condition often follows periods of worry or nervous tension. The hair comes out suddenly in a patchy pattern but regrowth often occurs. The majority of treatments are aimed at stimulating the deficient hair follicles.

WHOLESALE CELL TESTS

Mrs. R. writes: Should all women over 30 have a cell test of the uterus every three months?

Reply

At present, this test is recommended annually for women over 40. The procedure is time consuming and there are not enough technicians in this country to test all women once a year, let alone every three months. Perhaps a do-it-yourself technic will be worked out in the future.

STREP SUSCEPTIBILITY

Mrs. D. writes: My 6 year old child was healthy until he entered school and since then has had scarlet fever and three other strep infections.

Does one bout of strep infection make a child more susceptible to this germ?

Reply

No, but going to school does. The youngster comes into close contact with other children and is exposed to anyone who has a cold.

PRESSURE AND HEART ATTACK

M. N. writes: Does the blood pressure fall when the person has coronary thrombosis?

Reply

Yes, temporarily. The physician becomes suspicious of a silent coronary when this drop is noted in a person who previously had hypertension.

Heart Service Oscar Awards Are Presented

Heart association oscar awards were presented to Mrs. Fred Preaus of Union parish and to Mrs. Corbin Turpin of Ouachita parish for their outstanding service during heart fund drives.

The presentation was made Friday night at a local restaurant during a meeting of District B of the Louisiana Heart Association, by Paul Betts, District B chairman.

District B comprises Lincoln, Caldwell, Jackson, Union, Morehouse and Ouachita parishes. Each parish has a separate heart council. Chairman of the Ouachita council is Mrs. George Forman of Monroe.

Previously William Smith, former dean of Northeast Louisiana State College, was awarded the association oscar.

Pat Mitchell, field representative of the Louisiana Heart Association, gave a report of cardiac services and Mr. Irvin Hodge, treasurer, outlined the financial returns of all parishes during heart fund drives. Council organizstion and fund drives were also discussed.

The heart association provides financial aid for education, research and specialized training for students, doctors and nurses.

An outstanding accomplishment of the Louisiana Heart Association is the publishing of a dictionary of all heart services in the state that can help heart patients.

Fire Destroys Frame Houses

WINNSBORO (Special) — Three small frame houses were completely destroyed and two partly burned when a fire threatened an entire block between Fifth and Cypress Streets in Winnsboro Saturday afternoon.

The Winnsboro Volunteer Fire Department headed by Chief Allen Robinson worked for an hour and a half to prevent the flame spreading further in the congested area. According to Chief Robinson the fire started in the kitchen of one of the homes, and was thought to have been caused by an oil stove. With the exception of the house where the fire started most of the contents of the other homes were saved. The buildings were the property of Mrs. Eileen Ellerbe.

Losing their homes were Earline Bell, who lived alone; the Cass Powell family; Austin Farley, whose house was hit first by fire; Katherine Minniefield.

Time of the Saturday fire was around 2:30 p.m.

Tragedy Hits Family For Third Time

MONTROSE, Ark. (Special) — Tragic death struck the Shelby family of Montrose, Ark. early yesterday morning, marking the second time within two weeks, the third within three years.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Shelby were proceeding south in a pickup truck on highway 165 between Lake Village and Hamburg. Lewis Meadows, 45-year-old Dermott, Ark. Negro, attempted to pass the Shelby vehicle, but due to an oncoming truck, swerved, crashing into the pickup, which overturned, crushing Mrs. Shelby.

Ashley County Coroner William Jones pronounced Mrs. Shelby dead due to concussion.

Shelby was rushed to the Lake Village Infirmary, thence to a Little Rock hospital in critical condition.

Meadows yesterday was being held in the Ashley county jail on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. A bond was set as $1,000.

Two weeks ago the late Mrs. Shelby's daughter - in - law, Mrs. Tillman Shelby, was also killed in a car wreck.

Three years ago in December, 1955, another daughter - in - law, Mrs. Raymond Shelby, was also killed in an auto accident. The person involved in this one was sentenced to the penitentiary, charged with drunken driving.

Services Set

Funeral services for Mrs. Shelby will be at 2 p.m. Monday at Snyder Baptist Church. Directed by Jones Funeral Home of Hamburg, interment will be at Snyder Cemetery.

Survivors are her husband, J. H. Shelby; five sons: Raymond, Montrose; Gordon, Portland; R. D., Thebes; Leon, Lovington, New Mexico and Tillman of Bauxite; two daughters, Mrs. Don Stewart, Portland; Mrs. Bobby Murphy, Montrose; two brothers, Dee Bowen, Calif.; Floyd, with U S Army; two sisters, Mrs. Guy Brown, Prescott, and Mrs. Will Hastings, Gurdon.

Man Charged

A 21-year-old Monroe man is scheduled to appear in City Court on July 16, on charges of use of a pistol, aggravated battery and simple battery. James K. Warner Jr., 209 N. Sixth St., was arrested in the 300 block of Walnut St. early yesterday and charged with hitting his wife before police arrived. He posted $350 bond and was released.

BIKES SWAPPED

A thief with the urge to swap, made off with a green and white boy's bike, leaving his old one in its place. Mrs. C. H. Moncrief, 600 Cole Ave., reported to Monroe police yesterday that the bicycle was stolen from her yard - and another one was left as a "substitute."

Taxes To Be Higher In Miss.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — More Mississippians will pay more and higher taxes for costlier state government beginning at midnight Monday.

Even the so-called little man at the traditional fork of the creek—favorite target for protection by vote-seeking politicians—will have to come up with a larger share of the cost of government.

The need for more money stems from two sources: normal rises in the cost of government, and the new quality education program.

The additional money will come from higher taxes on cigarettes and cigars, taxes on property sales and the addition of the statewide 3 per cent sales tax on customers of rural electric assn. co-ops and municipally owned utilities, among others.

Mississippi government, financed on two-year periods, cost 186 million dollars during 1956-58 and will cost an estimated 227 million dollars during 1958-60.

The 1958 Legislature approved nearly 10 million dollars in new revenue, some of it from plugging loopholes in tax laws.

But the additional revenue, plus known revenue, will fall about three million dollars short of the funds needed to run the state during the next two years.

The largest single chunk of money—98 million dollars—will go for running schools. Included in the appropriation is sufficient money to provide pay raises designed to attract and hold good teachers and to help pay for an optional ninth school month.

The 98 million is a 16 million-dollar increase over present appropriations for schools.

Under the new tax plan, cigarette smokers will be the hardest hit, with the price of cigarettes increasing one cent a pack. Cigar prices will increase 20 per cent. The total amount of new money is estimated at $2,900,000 a biennium.

Householders will pay the next largest sum in new taxes—$1,320,000 a biennium. The amount is made up of these figures, all at 3 per cent of the amount of the sales: municipal electric plant customers $330,000; municipal gas plant customers $110,000; municipal water plant customers $430,000; and REA co-op customers $450,000.

This marks the first time that municipal and REA utility customers will be required to pay the statewide 3 per cent sales tax on services already paid by customers of private utilities.

Another large source of new revenue will be the changing from the retail to the wholesale level the collection of the retail sales tax on gasoline and beer. This change will produce two million dollars in hitherto uncollected tax.

A documentary stamp tax, $1.25 per $500 value on property sales, will produce another $1,100,000 a biennium.

Other new taxes include:

Pasteurized milk delivery, increase from 1 to 3 per cent on sales, $200,000; tax on sales of machinery, $574,000 tax on co-op creamery sales, $50,000; sales tax on housing authorities, $80,000; tax on building and loan association sales, $50,000; tax on certain life insurance company sales, $50,000; tax on sales to national banks, $100,000; and tax on installation of machinery, $200,000.

Fee increases include:

Commercial feeds, $193,000; secretary of state services, $22,500; land commissioner services, $2,500; and economic poisons for farm use, $44,000.

One tax raise has been in effect since May 1. Whisky drinkers in this dry state have been paying 8 instead of the former 5 per cent state sales tax on the contraband beverage for the last two months.

The increase in whisky sales tax will produce an additional $900,000 a biennium.

Despite the fact that fiscal leaders have estimated a three million-dollar deficit in 1960, the 1958 Legislature enacted a law to aid municipalities through surplus funds.

Even though there may be no surplus during this biennium, the law has no automatic repeal date and will continue in effect indefinitely.

Under the law, $500,000 of any surplus in the state treasury at the end of the first fiscal year of every biennium would be distributed among the cities. At the end of the second year, up to one million dollars of any surplus would be distributed.

Conceivably, there could be a surplus June 30, 1959. But there is considerable doubt there will be any money to benefit cities under the law June 30, 1960.

The Weekends Away Led To

JACKSON, Tenn. UPI—The weekends John E. Richardson, 56, spent away from home led to his downfall - and a charge of bigamy.

His wife told police Richardson had been away every weekend since they were married April 20, claiming he was visiting his mother. She paid a surprise visit on the "mother" herself and found instead a woman who claimed she married Richardson last August, eight months before her own marriage.

Liberty Life Insurance Co. Is Purchased

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., president of Consolidated American Life Insurance Co., Saturday announced the seven million dollar purchase of Lincoln Liberty Life Insurance Co. of Lincoln, Neb.

He said the two companies will be merged under the name of Lincoln Liberty Life Insurance Co. and will maintain executive offices here. Lincoln Liberty will continue to maintain offices in Lincoln.

Bentsen said the merger increases company territory from three states to 12—Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming.

The largest single chunk of money—98 million dollars—will go for running schools. Included in the appropriation is sufficient money to provide pay raises designed to attract and hold good teachers and to help pay for an optional ninth school month.

The 98 million is a 16 million-dollar increase over present appropriations for schools.

Under the new tax plan, cigarette smokers will be the hardest hit, with the price of cigarettes increasing one cent a pack. Cigar prices will increase 20 per cent. The total amount of new money is estimated at $2,900,000 a biennium.

Householders will pay the next largest sum in new taxes—$1,320,000 a biennium. The amount is made up of these figures, all at 3 per cent of the amount of the sales: municipal electric plant customers $330,000; municipal gas plant customers $110,000; municipal water plant customers $430,000; and REA co-op customers $450,000.

This marks the first time that municipal and REA utility customers will be required to pay the statewide 3 per cent sales tax on services already paid by customers of private utilities.

Another large source of new revenue will be the changing from the retail to the wholesale level the collection of the retail sales tax on gasoline and beer. This change will produce two million dollars in hitherto uncollected tax.

A documentary stamp tax, $1.25 per $500 value on property sales, will produce another $1,100,000 a biennium.

Other new taxes include:

Pasteurized milk delivery, increase from 1 to 3 per cent on sales, $200,000; tax on sales of machinery, $574,000 tax on co-op creamery sales, $50,000; sales tax on housing authorities, $80,000; tax on building and loan association sales, $50,000; tax on certain life insurance company sales, $50,000; tax on sales to national banks, $100,000; and tax on installation of machinery, $200,000.

Fee increases include:

Commercial feeds, $193,000; secretary of state services, $22,500; land commissioner services, $2,500; and economic poisons for farm use, $44,000.

One tax raise has been in effect since May 1. Whisky drinkers in this dry state have been paying 8 instead of the former 5 per cent state sales tax on the contraband beverage for the last two months.

The increase in whisky sales tax will produce an additional $900,000 a biennium.

Despite the fact that fiscal leaders have estimated a three million-dollar deficit in 1960, the 1958 Legislature enacted a law to aid municipalities through surplus funds.

Even though there may be no surplus during this biennium, the law has no automatic repeal date and will continue in effect indefinitely.

Under the law, $500,000 of any surplus in the state treasury at the end of the first fiscal year of every biennium would be distributed among the cities. At the end of the second year, up to one million dollars of any surplus would be distributed.

Conceivably, there could be a surplus June 30, 1959. But there is considerable doubt there will be any money to benefit cities under the law June 30, 1960.

The Weekends Away Led To

JACKSON, Tenn. UPI—The weekends John E. Richardson, 56, spent away from home led to his downfall - and a charge of bigamy.

His wife told police Richardson had been away every weekend since they were married April 20, claiming he was visiting his mother. She paid a surprise visit on the "mother" herself and found instead a woman who claimed she married Richardson last August, eight months before her own marriage.

Liberty Life Insurance Co. Is Purchased

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., president of Consolidated American Life Insurance Co., Saturday announced the seven million dollar purchase of Lincoln Liberty Life Insurance Co. of Lincoln, Neb.

He said the two companies will be merged under the name of Lincoln Liberty Life Insurance Co. and will maintain executive offices here. Lincoln Liberty will continue to maintain offices in Lincoln.

Bentsen said the merger increases company territory from three states to 12—Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota and Wyoming.

APPROPRIATION BILL

House Could Explode Bomb

BATON ROUGE, June 28(UPI) — Rebellious house members, peeved with the administration over several issu s, could explode a oomb next week that would rip the house and senate apart and tear the general appropriation bill to shreds.

The spark that may touch off the blast is the $12 million item for teachers' pay, tacked on to the appropriation bill in the house in spite of all the administration could do.

The senate finance committee knocked out the funds, which would go to teachers if there is any surplus in the general fund, and the upper chamber is expected to pass the bill early next week.

Then th bill would go back for concurrence in the lower chamber, and that is when the explosion might come.

The senate committee took out another addition by the runaway house—an $840,000 appropriation for trade schools.

If the lower chamber refuses to concur in the senate's changes and stands pat despite conference committee recommendations, the resulting stalemate might blow the appropriation bill right into oblivion.

But other legislators, such as Rep. Claude Kirkpatrick and Rep. John Garrett, contend "it could happen."

If the multi-million dollar money bill is blasted apart, it would take an immediate special session to pick up the pieces. State government would be crippled and grind to a halt with no funds to operate on during the coming fiscal year, which starts July 1.

There is little doubt the administration - dominated senate will pass the appropriation bill Monday as amended by its finance committee, wiping out the two house amendments.

In fact, the upper chamber might take out a third house addition its finance committee voted to leave in—a million-dollar item for supplemental policemen's pay.

If that happens, Kirkpatrick says he believes he has a "good chance of getting the house to go along" with him and refuse to concur in the senate amendments.

Several elements might contribute to a house revolt.

Several of the lawmakers are angry at the administration desertion on the wine tax test. Others are unhappy about special appropriation bills being dumped and still others were caught in a bind between the administration and the people back home on the gas tax vote.

It has been more and more noticeable in the past few days that the administration can no longer get unanimous support from its generally loyal following.

Kirkpatrick, who led the house rebellion on the $12 million teachers' amendment, got 47 votes then. He figures if he can keep those 47, it will be difficult for the Long leaders to get the 51 votes needed to concur.

"It will be a little difficult for any of the (47) representatives who voted for the amendment to go against it now," Kirkpatrick said.

The house has been shy of members—up to 20 and 30 at a time—for the past several weeks. A short house would make it even easier to reject the amendments.

If the bill is rejected, it would go to a conference committee, where Long men would dominate. They would be faced with two choices:

—Put the amendment or amendments back into the bill and get it out of the house to the governor's desk.

—Or leave the bill alone and take a chance on getting the necessary 51 votes to adopt the conference committee report.

Without an agreeable compromise, anything less than 51 votes would dump the whole measure down the drain. The legislature would have to start all over again, in an immediate special session, while the state operates on credit.

"The house will go along with the senate amendments," predicted Cashio.

Church Group Hits Action On Race-Mix

BOSTON (AP) — The General Council of Congregational churches Saturday adopted a resolution criticizing a recent federal court action suspending desegregation in high school at Little Rock, Ark.

The resolution, introduced at the 14th biennial meeting, said:

"The General Council of the Congregational Christian churches has repeatedly declared itself strongly for a society without barriers based on race, color or religious affiliation and has pledged itself, and called upon the conferences, associations (and other organizations), to work for a nonsegreated church in a non-segregated community. ...

"We urge the President of the United States and the United States attorney general to use his good offices to see that the appeal of the Little Rock, Arkansas, plaintiffs on the two and a half year postponement of school desegregation is heard at the earliest possible moment in view of the opening of the school term in September, 1958, and the serious consequences that would attend a full year's delay.

"We also petition the United States Department of Justice to file a brief amicus curiae (friend of the court) on behalf of these plaintiffs and in the interests of the nation."

6 Hungarians Facing Death

VIENNA (UPI)—Six Hungarian revolutionaries, all close associates of executed Freedom Premier Imre Nagy, are facing the same fate meted out to him before a secret military court in Budapest, reliable reports reaching here said Saturday.

One of the defendants is Mrs. Julia Rajk, wife of onetime Hungarian Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk who was hanged in 1949 as a Titoist traitor.

The reports coincided with a statement Friday by the International Commission of Jurists in the Hague, Holland, that at least three persons were being tried for "counter revolutionary" activities in Hungary.

The commission, which asked Hungary for information, said the defendants, like Nagy, had taken refuge in the Yugoslav embassy during the Russian counter-attack of Nov. 4, 1956, and had left as Nagy did, only to be seized.

GOVERNMENT AGENCIES

Interceding Is Defended By Two

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Mike Mansfield (D - Mont) and Styles Bridges (R-NH) defended Saturday as part of a Congress member's job the practice of interceding with government regulatory agencies.

The issue of whether a senator or House member should call on these quasi-judicial agencies for aid to constituents has been pointed up by the controversy over Sherman Adams' relations with Boston millionaire Bernard Goldfine.

The Pentagon disclosed, meanwhile, that Goldfine in the last two years of the Truman administration received four times as much dollar volume in defense contracts as he has since his friend Adams came to Washington in 1953 as President Eisenhower's top aide.

The contract figures — roughly 10½ million dollars and 2¼ million for the respective periods — were supplied by the Defense Department at a reporter's request. There was no suggestion of impropriety in connection with any of the contract awards.

The last two years of the Truman administration coincided with the Korean War—a time of heavy clothing buying by the armed forces to outfit troops in the cold Korean winters. Goldfine is a big manufacturer of textiles.

A House Commerce subcommittee inquiring into Goldfine's relations with Adams has heard no direct testimony that Adams ever sought to land contracts for Goldfine, from whom he had accepted expensive favors and hospitality.

It has heard allegations from Boston financier John Fox, former publisher of the defunct Boston Post, that Goldfine once boasted Adams would take care of a case against Goldfine pending in the Federal Trade Commission.

Adams, G-ldfine and the White House had denounced Fox's testimony over a period of two days as a parcel of malicious lies.

There was no new comment from the White House Saturday. Press secretary James C. Hagerty said Adams was spending the week end somewhere outside the capital. Hagerty did not say where.

Adams has acknowledged he acted imprudently in asking two federal agencies about the status of cases involving Goldfine, but he denied he had exerted any influence in his friend's behalf. Some of Adams' defenders have said he did no more than members of Congress do daily.

Mansfield, acting Senate Democratic leader, said he believes there is a difference in the responsibilities of elective and appointive officials in this field.

"While I would not say that appointive officials should not make inquiries of the regulatory agencies about individual cases, a call from certain areas of government carriest significant weight, and that applies in all administrations," he said.

"By and large I think calls from appointive officials have been mostly legitimate. But appointive officials do not have the same responsibility in this field as elected officials.

"We're here to give our constituents service, and when we fail to do that, we don't stay around here long. So long as I am here I'm going to try to give the folks of Montana the very best service I can."

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said in a separate interview he makes it a practice to "present to the agencies as favorably as I can the facts about any case involving someone from New Hampshire."

"That's part of our job here, and we wouldn't be around long if we didn't do it," Bridges said.

Charged With $75,000 Theft

NEW YORK (UPI)—A moving man was accused Saturday of lifting $75,000 worth of heiress Gloria Vanderbilt's jewelry along with her furniture.

Police arrested Humberto Travali, 28, on a charge of taking six pieces of jewelry while he was in Miss Vanderbilt's expensive East Side duplex apartment last Wednesday rearranging her furniture for the summer.

OCCUPATIONAL HAZARD

WATERTOWN, N. Y. —(UPI) —Dr. Rudolph J. Haas slipped and fell as he was en route to a hospital delivery room here. After dusting himself off, he continued on to the hospital, delivered a son to Mrs. Gilbert Crosbie and then went to an X-ray room where he found out he had broken his shoulder in the fall.

Warm waters on the Gulf Stream pass near the New England coast but have little direct effect on winter temperatures because prevailing winds blow from the land.

OCCUPATIONAL HAZARD

WATERTOWN, N. Y. —(UPI) —Dr. Rudolph J. Haas slipped and fell as he was en route to a hospital delivery room here. After dusting himself off, he continued on to the hospital, delivered a son to Mrs. Gilbert Crosbie and then went to an X-ray room where he found out he had broken his shoulder in the fall.

Warm waters on the Gulf Stream pass near the New England coast but have little direct effect on winter temperatures because prevailing winds blow from the land.

CAPT. J. W. FALER

Expert On Arson Has Difficult Job

By FRED MCDOWELL
Staff Writer

"A fireman can sometimes literally 'sniff out' the cause of a fire," Captain J. W. Faler, chief of the local arson bureau said. "We once took a case of arson to court with almost the only evidence being the smell of gasoline fumes at the scene of the fire." trapped in the building, the captain said, and their shouts for help were almost drowned by the roaring flames. The firebug had started the fire in a small closet and shut the door. Then he sprinkled gasoline around the floor outside the closet, shut the outer door and left. When the firemen entered the room, they shut the door behind them, opened the door of the closet and were instantly surrounded by sheets of flame from floor to ceiling.

Unable to find their way out, the trapped smokeaters were rescued by other firemen, but not before the blaze had done its damage. Captain R. L. Frantom, still on active duty, Captain Tom J. Dupree, deceased, and William J. Bryant, deceased, bore the scars of that horrible fire for the rest of their lives.

Case Thrown Out

"But," the arson chief said, "the judge threw the case out of court for lack of evidence. The arsonists collected their money for the burned building and left town. We heard later they tried the same thing in another state and were caught and convicted."

There is no school for investigators, the captain explained, so you pick up the tricks of the trade as you go along.

"For instance, those odors I was talking about, they linger after the fire is out. Gasoline is hard to smell, but kerosene odors linger. The fire may have been caused by the explosion of an aerosol can, those push-button spray cans, containing a hair spray."

"I know the directions on the can says it is not flammable, but if it contains lacquer, it is. Hair spray leaves a sweetish odor as does a household germicidal deodorant containing alcohol."

Insect sprays or lighter fluid, almost anything that will burn or explode, will leave an odor, the captain pointed out.

"Another thing, put your pennies in the bank; not behind an electrical fuse. We find that the second greatest cause of fires is faulty electrical wiring."

"You know and everybody knows the chief cause of all fires is the match and cigarette team. They are the major contributors to fires which claim the lives of 33 people a day, 365 days a year."

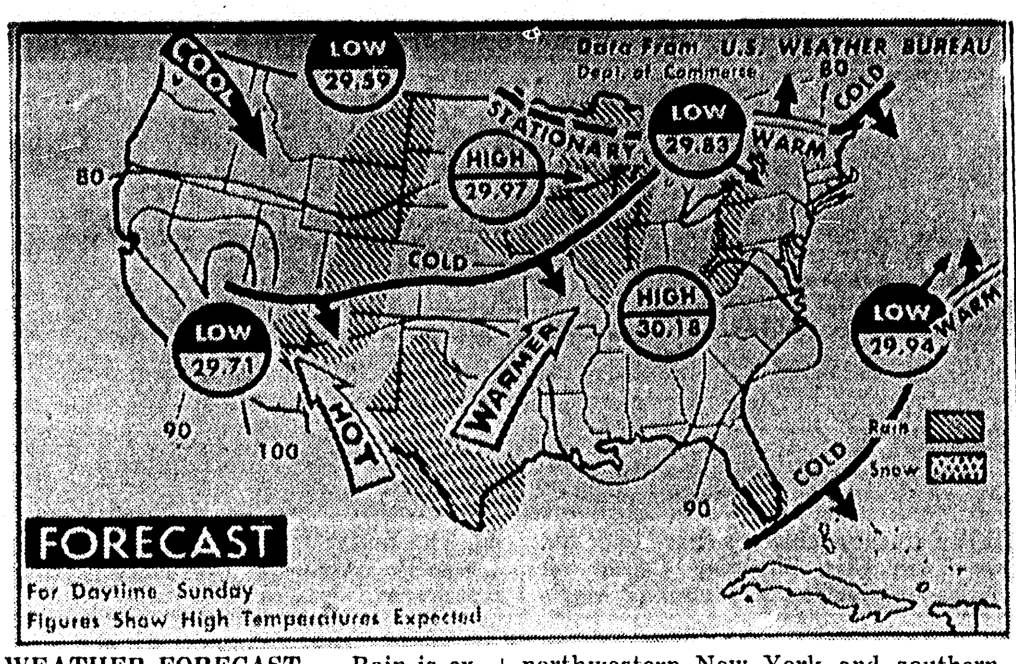
Lecturing on fire prevention at schools and civic organizations in this area, Captain Faler's advice is to keep calm, don't panic. Then, he says, close the door to isolate the fire and get everybody out of the building. Then call the fire department.

The tall, grey-haired 200 pound fireman has been with the Monroe Fire Department for 33 years, but doesn't intend to retire for "a long time yet."



WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected today in Arizona, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming, Texas, western sections of North and South Dakota, the Lakes area, Iowa, eastern Nebraska, West Virginia, western Pennsylvania, northwestern New York and southern Florida. It will be warmer over the eastern third of U.S.; cooler in area from the upper Mississippi Valley westward to the Rockies. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Value of construction contracts awarded in d strict states during April reflected gains of 11 per cent over March and 29 per cent over April, 1957.

Non - agricultural employment showed a small seasonal rise in May but was nearly 1 per cent less than a year ago.

Unemployment Report

The report said "Texas unemployment declined again in May to reach 5.4 per cent of the labor force."

Crude oil production in district states during the first half of June, reaching 2,630,000 barrels daily, surpassed May totals by 3 per cent, but was 24 per cent under those of June, 1957.

During the four weeks ending June 18, weekly reporting member banks in the district gained $245.2 millions in deposits, permitting increases of $54.3 millions in gross loans, $53.3 million in investments, and $134.5 million in cash accounts.

Reserve positions of member banks, eased further in May, and average excess reserves rose to the highest level since April, 1955.

LA. LEGISLATURE

Much Work For Solons Ahead

BATON ROUGE, June 28 (UPI)—Money problems and a heavy work load hung over the capitol waiting for state lawmakers to return to work at 7 p.m. today.

The general appropriation bill waits with some 100 other bills on the senate calendar, and rumblings in the house indicated that the upper chamber's economy measures might not be approved when the bill gets back across the capitol to the representatives.

The $384 million bill at present contains one of the house additions: A million-dollar item for supplemental pay for policemen.

But two other house increases, a $840,000 item for trade schools and a $12 million contingent appropriation for teachers' pay, were whacked out of the measure by the senate finance committee.

The governor has warned he will veto all additions.

Leaders of both houses warned the legislators before they left for the weekend they should expect plenty of hard work when they got back.

House speaker Robert Angelle notified representatives by wire Friday that he wanted them present tonight. Angelle said he was "ashamed" that his colleagues had not worked any faster on senate bills.

The comment came as the result of an unusal resolution sent to the house by the senate, noting that 99 senate bills were gathering dust on the house calendar and others were resting in committee. Senators threatened to boycott house bills until the house acted on the senate's measures.

With only two weeks of the session left, time is short for getting legislation through the lengthy process of passage by both houses.

The senate is set to consider two more segregation bills this week.

Concerning public transportation, they are aimed at thwarting a court order that integrated New Orleans buses and streetcars a few weeks ago.

Sen. Brenham Crothers still has on the calendar a controversial bill to shorten trms of the LSU board of supervisors. He said he asked for Gov. Long's endorsement last week, and was refused.

But, Crothers said, the governor did ask the senator to delay bringing the measure to a vote before tonight.

A similar house bill also is in the senate.

The house takes up a measure this week that would close the schools early next spring if there is not enough money in the teachers' pay fund to maintain present salaries for nine months.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. F. E. Cole, said he would try to amend the measure in the house, making it permissive rather than mandatory for school boards to close schools.

The petition, in the form of a telegram addressed to Cyril at Toledo Zoo, is in a downtown furniture store, It reads: "Slippery come home. London needs you. 100,000 Londoners await your arrival at Storybook Gardens. P. S. Don't swim, transportation has been arranged."

"Thanks for sending Slippery back. 100,000 Londoners eagerly await his arrival. Best wishes to the people of Toledo from the people of London."

Anthrax Spread Causes Outlined

spores so that they could become active.

Second, the horsefly population, helped by the floods, has been unusually large this spring, and horseflies deposit the infection directly into animals' bloodstreams with their bites.

Third, cattlemen in the area had been lax in vaccinating their herds for some time, making the cattle more susceptible to the disease.

Distrusted Vaccine

The stockmen distrusted vaccine and were slow to use it even after animals started dying, Wheeler explained, because vaccine had killed some animals in previous years.

"They were more afraid of the vaccine than the disease," he said.

The state recommends the use of Sterne vaccine, a tested preventive that is effective in seven days and carries no danger of an overdose and death for the cattle.

Veterinarians worked around the clock vaccinating some quarter of a million animals in the parishes affected and those nearby—Union, Morehouse, West Carroll, East Carroll, Lincoln, Ouachita, Richland, Madison, Franklin, Caldwell and Tensas.

Their quick work is credited for keeping the stock deaths as low as they have been. "If we hadn't vaccinated, we'd have had a tremendous break up there," Wheeler said.

Anthrax, dreaded by farmers and cattlemen ever since Vergil, is a particularly unpleasant disease.

It strikes cattle, pigs, horses and sheep, and any humans who come in contact with the diseased animals.

Victims have swellings over their bodies which erupt in ulcers. The infection brings high fever, delirium, exhaustion, convulsions, and finally, collapse and death.

Some animals die within an hour or so of the time their owners notice they are sick. If the disease hits the lymph glands in their throats, they can choke to death from the swelling.

Swampy regions have always been breeding places for anthrax spores, and southern Louisianans have learned to live with the disease and vaccinate to keep it under control.

The anthrax bacillus is peculiarly hardy. When dormant, it forms a spore that has been known to live for 40 years.

For this reason the state has strict regulations about burning animal victims or burying them six feet deep with lime. Even so, a flood can uncover dormant spores and start a new outbreak.

When horseflies become infected, the disease can break out "like raindrops," Wheeler said—simultaneously over a large area.

"Unless you vaccinate, it can run rampant," he explained.

Rep. Woodrow Wilson, Bastrop; Rep. I. J. Allen, Jonesboro; Rep. Ashton B. Collier; Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, Monroe; Rep. Fetcher Sutton, Gibsland; and Ralph E. King, Winnsboro. A check on Seaman's record showed that while he missed 17 opening roll calls, he later arrived in the House during some sessions.

Rep. T. T. Fields, Farmerville, five; Rep. W. Spencer Myrick, Oak Grove, five; Rep. Vail M. Deloney, Lake Providence, five; Rep. Jack Crane Monterey, four, Rep. Gilbert Faulk, Monroe, three.

Rep. W. S. Peck Jr., Sicily Island, two; Rep. Lasley Downes, Rayville, two; Rep. L. D. Napper Ruston, two; Rep. Willie Rambo, Georgetown, two; Rep. W. C. Steen Jr., Columbia one and Rep. Edgar Lancaster, Tallulah one.

The records show that the late Rep. Walter Chachere, Crowville, missed only two opening roll calls.

Sen. B. B. Patton, Farmerville, three, Sen. Hubert Sims, Mer Rouge, three; Sen. Brenham Crothers, Ferriday, three; Sen. Speedy O. Long, Jena, three; and Sen. James Sparks, Monroe, two.

Examples of legislators leaving their desks after the roll call is first taken is seen in the records of the session's sixth day.

The House took a recess at mid-afternoon and came back in at 5:15 p.m. with 35 absent, including Crane, Deloney, Faulk, Myrick and Steen.

On the eighth day, 46 were absent later in the day, including Faulk, Myrick, Napper, Seaman and Wilson. Other short houses after the opening roll calls were recorded on the 12th day, including Deloney, Downes, Seaman, Gaharan and Stinson.

Three of the worst days came June 22-24.

The votes show 35 absent after the opening roll call on June 22nd, including Gaharan, Myrick, and Napper. On June 23rd, 37 were absent for a vote after the opening roll call, including Fields, Lancaster, Myrick and Peck. The June 24th record shows 33 absent by later afternoon, including Fields, Myrick, Napper and Wilson.

Stabbing Case Charges Filed

A 19-year-old Negro girl was arrested by Monroe police yesterday afternoon and charged with stabbing another Negro woman.

Agnes Marie Braggs of 219 Williams St. was booked on charges of use of a knife, aggravated battery and simple battery. Taken to Conway Memorial Hospital was Patsy Ruth Perkins, 21, of 714½ Rear Adams St., who received a cut in the left shoulder.

Earlier this year, the Perkins woman was fined $350 for stabbing the Braggs girl.

Bond for the Braggs girl was set at $500 and she was placed in the city jail.

Arrest Cop On Charge Of Robbery

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A Jackson police officer was arrested Saturday on a charge of robbery.

Chief W. D. Rayfield identified the man as Arthur East. He was arrested after he was identified by Hezekiah Miskel, Negro handyman, who said East robbed him of $130 dollars Thursday while the officer was off duty. Miskel said East came to his home outside the city under the pretext of wanting the handy man to work for him. He said East pulled a gun and robbed him.

Rayfield suspended East Friday when the investigation began and dismissed him from the department Saturday after charges were filed.

East was given a lie detector test at highway patrol headquarters. He later confessed to officers he robbed Miskel but denied using a gun.

East, a native of Pinola, is married and has two children.

Bail was set at $3,000. East was held in the county jail.

Man Is Injured In Mower Mishap

A 29-year-old Monroe man lost the tip of his thumb in a powermotor accident at 10 a.m. yesterday.

Lenard Folds, 1303 S. Seventh St., was taken to Wright-Bendel clinic by Robert Perce and Earl Jones, mechanics at Howard Griffin's on S. Grand St., after the mishap.

Folds, who also works at the South Grand St. business, said that he was working on a mower when the machine's rope suddenly pulled his hand into the blade.

He underwent surgery and was expected to be released last night.

College Here Gives Credit At PTA Clinic

Northeast State will offer a Parent - Teacher workshop as one of the summer school features, President Lewis C. Slater announced Saturday.

The six-day conference will open July 14 and continue until 11 a.m. on July 19, with daily sessions from 1 to 4 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the Administration Building.

One semester hour of credit in education may be earned in the course by those who attend meetings regularly and fill other requirements.

Moderator of the workshop will be Mrs. W. S. Vincent, Sherrouse School principal and past state PTA president, who currently is serving as state citizenship chairman.

The conference is designed to acquaint people with the Parent-Teacher Association, its philosophy and programs. The agenda will include discussions, meetings for officers and committee chairmen groups, special talks, socio dramas and other features planned to emphasize the theme of the meeting, "Circle of Responsibility."

Speaker

Mrs. George Walther, president of the Louisiana PTA, will speak at the opening session and she also will participate in clinics dealing with problems which may confront PTA units.

Mrs. Agnes Miller, of the Plum Street School faculty, will be one of the special speakers each day except the final meeting. Addressing the group will be two Northeast faculty members, Dr. William J. Christmas, director of the summer school, and Dr. Clint Hanna, director of admissions and special services. The former will speak on "We Build for Schools," and the latter will emphasize "The Principal's Role in the PTA."

Several state and regional leaders in the organization are scheduled to participate in clinics, and socio dramas will be presented by Parent - Teacher organizations from Waterproof, Claiborne, and Ruston.

Mrs. G. B. Wilson, a state vice president and education chairman will emphasize awards and attendance in connection with the PTA, and she also will be in charge of the evaluation of the workshop at the final day's conference.

Youth Escapes Serious Injury In Gun Mishap

A lucky 11-year-old Bosco Negro was in Conway Memorial Hospital late last night for observation, after he escaped serious injury when a gunstock fired and wounded him.

Tommie Lee Gray was playing with a gunstock and firing mechanism, at his home, when a bullet discharged from the weapon and splintered, striking him.

He received two lacerations in the chest and one on the arm. After he plucked a splinter of the bullet out of his chest, he was brought to the hospital. Physicians said that no other injury was apparent, but he was admitted for observation.

Legislators Face Hectic Time Battle

$840,000 the House added to restore a 25 per cent slash in trade school budgets.

The committee removed the item. It also helped the governor set the stage for a special session by knocking out another House amendment.

The House gave priority to the first 12 million in surpluses next year to teacher pay. In a brief floor fight against the Finance Committee amendment, Sen. Robert Ainsworth of New Orleans called this "insurance" against a special session. The Senate upheld the committee 19-11.

"You ought to quit misleading the teachers," Long told the committee earlier. "You know the money is not there.

"The budget isn't balanced yet. Every dollar you put on it just sinks it deeper . . . let's wait five or six months. When things straighten themselves out, you can come back and work it out."

This signaled administration strategy.

Earlier, Long's tax tactics were jammed when Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion announced federal concessions in the tidelands dispute that could mean up to 50 million dollars for Louisiana.

He was forced to cut the original two cent tax in half. The result was that instead of providing 38 to 40 million in new revenues and a surplus for the general fund, the tax falls at least 12 million short of teacher pay needs.

Administration strategy is to wait and see, hoping for a quick decision in the tidelands case. Meanwhile, Long will build pressure for a special session.

If no tidelands money is available, the governor will be in a stronger position to enact higher taxes.

The second step is Gen. F. E. Cole's bill — ready for House floor action — directing school boards to continue teacher pay at the present level as long as the money lasts.

Originally, the Many senator's bill directed closing of schools when the money ran out. This was made optional by the House committee—at Cole's request—leaving the door open for local school boards to provide the money, if they desire to keep the schools open.

Northeast State will offer a Parent - Teacher workshop as one of the summer school features, President Lewis C. Slater announced Saturday.

The six-day conference will open July 14 and continue until 11 a.m. on July 19, with daily sessions from 1 to 4 p.m. in the faculty lounge of the Administration Building.

One semester hour of credit in education may be earned in the course by those who attend meetings regularly and fill other requirements.

Moderator of the workshop will be Mrs. W. S. Vincent, Sherrouse School principal and past state PTA president, who currently is serving as state citizenship chairman.

The conference is designed to acquaint people with the Parent-Teacher Association, its philosophy and programs. The agenda will include discussions, meetings for officers and committee chairmen groups, special talks, socio dramas and other features planned to emphasize the theme of the meeting, "Circle of Responsibility."

Speaker

Mrs. George Walther, president of the Louisiana PTA, will speak at the opening session and she also will participate in clinics dealing with problems which may confront PTA units.

Mrs. Agnes Miller, of the Plum Street School faculty, will be one of the special speakers each day except the final meeting. Addressing the group will be two Northeast faculty members, Dr. William J. Christmas, director of the summer school, and Dr. Clint Hanna, director of admissions and special services. The former will speak on "We Build for Schools," and the latter will emphasize "The Principal's Role in the PTA."

Several state and regional leaders in the organization are scheduled to participate in clinics, and socio dramas will be presented by Parent - Teacher organizations from Waterproof, Claiborne, and Ruston.

Mrs. G. B. Wilson, a state vice president and education chairman will emphasize awards and attendance in connection with the PTA, and she also will be in charge of the evaluation of the workshop at the final day's conference.

Youth Escapes Serious Injury In Gun Mishap

A lucky 11-year-old Bosco Negro was in Conway Memorial Hospital late last night for observation, after he escaped serious injury when a gunstock fired and wounded him.

Tommie Lee Gray was playing with a gunstock and firing mechanism, at his home, when a bullet discharged from the weapon and splintered, striking him.

He received two lacerations in the chest and one on the arm. After he plucked a splinter of the bullet out of his chest, he was brought to the hospital. Physicians said that no other injury was apparent, but he was admitted for observation.

Legislators Face Hectic Time Battle

$840,000 the House added to restore a 25 per cent slash in trade school budgets.

The committee removed the item. It also helped the governor set the stage for a special session by knocking out another House amendment.

The House gave priority to the first 12 million in surpluses next year to teacher pay. In a brief floor fight against the Finance Committee amendment, Sen. Robert Ainsworth of New Orleans called this "insurance" against a special session. The Senate upheld the committee 19-11.

"You ought to quit misleading the teachers," Long told the committee earlier. "You know the money is not there.

"The budget isn't balanced yet. Every dollar you put on it just sinks it deeper . . . let's wait five or six months. When things straighten themselves out, you can come back and work it out."

This signaled administration strategy.

Earlier, Long's tax tactics were jammed when Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion announced federal concessions in the tidelands dispute that could mean up to 50 million dollars for Louisiana.

He was forced to cut the original two cent tax in half. The result was that instead of providing 38 to 40 million in new revenues and a surplus for the general fund, the tax falls at least 12 million short of teacher pay needs.

Administration strategy is to wait and see, hoping for a quick decision in the tidelands case. Meanwhile, Long will build pressure for a special session.

If no tidelands money is available, the governor will be in a stronger position to enact higher taxes.

The second step is Gen. F. E. Cole's bill — ready for House floor action — directing school boards to continue teacher pay at the present level as long as the money lasts.

Originally, the Many senator's bill directed closing of schools when the money ran out. This was made optional by the House committee—at Cole's request—leaving the door open for local school boards to provide the money, if they desire to keep the schools open.

TWO WEEKS TO GO

Legislature Has Killed 132 Bills

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana Legislature, with two weeks to go in a 60-day session, so far has killed 132 bills compared with 98 passed.

The rejections include committee decisions in both houses reporting measures unfavorably or without action.

Killed by committee action were such top issues as Rep. Alton De Nux's constitutional proposal to repeal the two-thirds majority vote required for passage of tax raises, which died without an administration finger being lifted to stop the fatal blow; Sen. Jackson B. Davis' two-part package to place back on the books a state right to work law, and Rep. Jesse McLain's one-cent hike in the seven-cent gasoline levy.

In floor action, major legislation rejected included Rep. Marvin Roberts' 3½-million-dollar wine tax increase, slapped hard with a barrage of floor amendments and then abandoned by some floor leaders: Rep. Lon Tyndall's leadoff and illfated attempt at reapportionment by giving East Baton Rouge and Calcasieu Parish an extra House seat each; Sen. Red McCullough's proposed sweeping changes in administration of higher education, with a super board sitting at the top; Rep. T. T. Fields' bill to remove school and road tax districts from state industrial tax exemptions, and Rep. A. T. Sanders Jr.'s hard-fought bill to outlaw fireworks.

Still asleep on the House calendar, where they probably will never come to life because of recognized opposition, are Rep. Ben Holt's two-cent natural gas tax raise which would have been submitted to the people if approved in the Legislature; Rep. Sanders' widely publicized constitutional proposal to knock out the "Little Hatch Act," a provision in the civil service laws banning political activity by classified state and city employes, and the Louisiana Municipal Assn.'s liquor tax boost for city fiscal help.

Only one tax has succeeded, and success came after the Long administration rolled up its sleeves and went to work—the Holt one-cent compromise raise in the natural gas gathering levy. Designed to help teachers pay, it will last only two years.

The administration managed to bring support to a peak with that bill but control slipped after that.

The House has rejected 15 House bills and four Senate proposals, withdrawing another 55 bills in committee. But representatives have passed 34 Senate bills, giving them final legislative approval.

In the Senate, members have stomped on 13 of their own bills and killed three House bills. Forty two other measures were withdrawn after trouble in the committees. Senators so far have given final legislative passage to 64 House bills.

Although the House has far more legislation to unload than the Senate, senators have been fretful about the low number of Senate bills given House action. A House stepup is expected starting when both houses return at 7 p.m.

Among bills which fell aside in the last seven weeks were measures to regulate such a wide variety of businesss as marketing of diamonds, the sale of eggs, the issuance of trade stamps and the transportation of offshore oil workers by helicopter.

Arrest Escapee In New Orleans

FBI agents R. J. Abbaticchio Jr. said John Trimboli of New York City was arrested in a New Orleans hospital where he had recently undergone surgery.

Abbaticchio said Trimboli escaped from a Galveston, Tex., hospital where he was receiving treatment while serving a two to five year sentence for an assault with intent to rob conviction.

Ship Captain Testifies On N.Y. Collision

NEW YORK (AP)—The tanker Empress Bay "suddenly turned across our bow" just before the Swedish freighter Nebraska knifed into her port side, says Capt. Oskar F. Olsson of the Nebraska.

Olsson, 52, testified Friday before the Coast Guard's three-man board of inquiry into the Wednesday morning crash. The Empress Bay sank and two of its crew were lost.

Olsson's testimony supported earlier statements to the board by Thomas F. Haughn, East River pilot on the Nebraska.

Haughn said the tanker failed to answer two signals. The second, he said, was the danger signal — at least four short blasts. At the time, the pilot said, the distance between the ships was one and a half ship lengths.

Haughn said he ordered the freighter's engines stopped when he gave the danger signal. The Nebraska was "still making a little headway but was practically stopped" when the ships collided, the pilot said.

The hearing resumes Monday.

NASSAR, WEST

Lebanon Viewed With Caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western leaders and President Nasser of the United Arab Republic alike showed signs Saturday of backing away from a head-on collision over Lebanon.

Washington's fears that the strife in that divided land might lead to a general Middle East war have declined.

U. S. officials said Saturday a Western show of force in the eastern Mediterranean may have impressed the highly nationalistic, pan-Arabic government at Cairo and persuaded Nasser it would be unwise for him to go too far in supporting the Lebanese rebel cause.

Some Washington officials thought it encouraging that Nasser had decided to go through with his plans for a visit to President Tito of Yugoslavia. He set sail Saturday on a trip that will keep him away from Egypt for about three weeks.

Others said there was a danger of wishful thinking about the Egyptian leader's plans. They said his absence from his own capital would be a smart cover if he were planning some major stroke by which pro-Nasser rebels would seek to crush the present pro-Western government of Lebanon.

Thus there were divided views on the Lebanese crisis, which has been one of the most dangerous President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have faced in many months.

Informed officials said it would be foolish to make predictions. But on one point, which could prove to be a critical clue to the way the crisis is going, there was general accord.

Around the State Department, officials agreed that U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold had returned last week from a Middle East mission in an unexpectedly optimistic mood about the prospects for bringing the Lebanese situation under control.

Informed sources said they found it impossible to believe Hammarskjold could have taken such a hopeful line on the basis of what he had learned in Lebanon. They thus reasoned that the explanation is to be found in what he learned in Cairo of Nasser's plans.

Hammarskjold emphasized he believes a team of U. N. observers now being built up in Lebanon will be sufficient to carry out the U. N. assignment there. Authorities in Washington said the United States will support Hammarskjold in any action he recommends, even though some are skeptical about the success of his plan.

The U. N. Mission is to discourage outside intervention in Lebanese affairs by the infiltration of arms and men who have been coming over the Lebanese-Syrian border. Syria is a part of the Arab Republic, and Nasser's Cairo Radio for weeks has carried on a campaign of violent agitation against President Camille Chamoun's government at Beirut.

State Department officials said it was probably significant that Nasser had accepted the U. N. observer operation in the first place instead of persuading the Soviet government to veto it in the U. N. Security Council. They said it also was significant that he had not launched open military operations which would have constituted aggression against Lebanon. That would have required the United States and Britain—under assurances they had given Chamoun—to intervue with force.

If, as most Washington diplomatic officials now think, Nasser gave Hammarskjold the impression that he has reduced or will cut off the aid to the rebels, then the U. S. view is that much of the fire is going out of the crisis. If Nasser has not given such indications, then Hammarskjold's optimism is unjustifieid.

It has become increasingly clear in the last week that the U. S. and British governments are determined to avoid if possible any involvement of their own forces in Lebanon. Britain has moved thousands of troops into Cyprus—torn by its own internal conflict—where they stand ready for flight to nearby Lebanon if necessary. The U. S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean is carrying large contingents of Marines. The presence of these forces may have been sufficient, along with the U. N. action to save Lebanon from outright foreign aggression.

But officials say any final solution of the Lebanese political and civil strife must be sought inside the country.

Washington policy holds the solution should be achieved in two stages:

1. The present government should bring the military threat to its survival under control.

2. The government should be reorganized and given a new president and almost certainly set upon a slightly different foreign policy, less ardently pro-Western.

The heart of the whole crisis has been Chamoun's position. He was elected president in September, 1952, under a constitutional restraint to one term. Several months ago he began talking about changing the constitution to permit a second term. This split the country.

Marriage Mills To Be Halted

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's marriage mills that include neon-lighted quickie wedding chapels along the Tennessee border will grind to a halt at mid-night Monday as the new tighter restrictions take effect.

Marriage - while - you - wait in roadside chapels along the border gave Mississippi nationwide recognition for quickie weddings. Couples from nearly every state plighted their troth in Mississippi border towns.

But the 1957 special legislative session, led by Marshall County tightened the law on marriage and put teeth in its enforcement.

Border county circuit clerks, who issued marriage licenses, say the new law will reduce their fees considerably despite the fact that the 1958 Legislature raised the marriage license fees from $3 to $5.

Beginning Tuesday, applicants for a marriage license must produce proof of age and blood test certification that they are free of veneral disease. They must wait three days between application for and receipt of a marriage license.

The mandatory waiting period was designed to halt the quickie teen-aged weddings.

The circuit clerk is required to mail notice of application to the parents of applicants under 21 years of age. The attorney general's office has ruled only one notice is necessary.

Minimum ages for marriage with parental consent, is 17 for males and 15 for females.

No license will be issued if a legal impediment is found, if either party is a minor, if either is not of mature discretion, or if either is incapable of assuming the responsibilities of marriage.

The teeth in the new law, which had the backing of organizations throughout the state, is a maximum fine of $500 levied against circuit clerks convicted of failure to comply with the law.

CRUMPLED MOTORCYCLE, TWO DEAD — This is what happened when two young Nebraska motorcyclists collided headon with a cattle truck near Carson, Iowa earlier this week. The victims were John W. Pay Less Is Plan Of Hospital

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

Feel better? Pay less. That's the basis of a new hospital plan.

When you're very sick, or just had surgery, you get special, intensive care, and pay the daily going rate of about $20 to $25 a day.

When you're better, you and your bed are moved into another zone in the hospital where you don't need—and so don't get—so much attention. Your bill drops to perhaps $16 to $18 a day.

Then when you're feeling pretty perky, you move into a self-help zone, a kind of do-it-yourself hospital. You're well enough to walk to the cafeteria, or X-ray room, or dress yourself, and in other ways save time for nurses, or use of costly rooms. So you pay only $8 to $12 a day or less.

Equally or more importantly, this method brings you better medical care, says proponents.

Called progressive patient care, it has been under test for more than a year at Manchester Memorial Hospital in Manchester, Conn.

It has stirred considerable interest and enthusiasm in medical circles.

A Public Health Service survey shows scores of hospitals are operating maximum-care units, several dozens have minimum-care units, and a handful combine the two.

Some hospital and medical leaders call progressive care a revolutionary idea bound to save money for patients and hospitals alike, and to tailor medical care to the person's needs.

They estimate 20 to 50 per cent of patients in a general hospital could be cared for in self-help units. These could be separate buildings, connected by tunnels or bridges with the main hospital, or a wing of the hospital itself.

Building costs could be reduced, advocates say. You wouldn't be equipping every room with oxygen, or special or expensive beds, or other costly equipment. The self-help units could be built and furnished like hotel or motel rooms, which are much less expensive than hospital rooms.

Other officials suggest a slow approach to learn how well the system works, or what problems it might create. A few question whether the hospital really saves money.

The Manchester experiment is being studied by a special team of experts through a grant from the U. S. Public Health Service.

The hospital plan is largely the brain child of Edward J. Thoms, administrator of Manchester Hospital; Dr. Howard J. Lockward, internist; and Dr. Lane Giddings, pathologist.

Put into effect in April 1957, progressive care has worked so well at Manchester that the hospital now is building a 44-bed self-help unit. It started with only eight beds in a converted residence across the street.

One key of the plan is to give the most and best care to the sickest patients, Thoms explains. This is done in the intensive care unit.

Here are concentrated the lifesaving aids and measures, such as drugs, oxygen, suction, anesthetics, anything needed to meet emergencies.

And here are concentrated the best and most nurses, on continuous duty, one nurse for every few patients. In effect, each patient has private, 24-hour nursing without paying for private nursing.

Here come all the patients from surgery, watched and tended while they recover from anesthesia and the initial shock of their operations.

The patient's own doctor decides when he should be admitted to this total-care unit.

Manchester Hospital, in the trail blazing work, set aside 27 beds for the intensive care unit. Most are ward beds; a few are private rooms. Whether a patient draws a private or ward bed here depends not upon how much he can pay, but on how sick he is and his need for private accommodations.

Whether in the wards or private rooms, the patient in the intensive care unit pays the same price. At Manchester it averages $22 a day.

The patient's doctor decides also when he can be moved to the intermediate-care zone. Manchester started this unit with 97 beds.

Here, patients are mostly on the mend. One nurse can attend to a few more persons. The patients' own doctors still follow them as closely as they would in the usual hospital arrangement.

Here the average patient is paying $18 a day at Manchester. When he moves on to to self-help unit, he pays $11. This daily fee might be cut down even more with savings that could be realized from special buildings and by having more patients in this unit, hospital administrators point out.

NASSAR, WEST

Lebanon Viewed With Caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western leaders and President Nasser of the United Arab Republic alike showed signs Saturday of backing away from a head-on collision over Lebanon.

Washington's fears that the strife in that divided land might lead to a general Middle East war have declined.

U. S. officials said Saturday a Western show of force in the eastern Mediterranean may have impressed the highly nationalistic, pan-Arabic government at Cairo and persuaded Nasser it would be unwise for him to go too far in supporting the Lebanese rebel cause.

Some Washington officials thought it encouraging that Nasser had decided to go through with his plans for a visit to President Tito of Yugoslavia. He set sail Saturday on a trip that will keep him away from Egypt for about three weeks.

Others said there was a danger of wishful thinking about the Egyptian leader's plans. They said his absence from his own capital would be a smart cover if he were planning some major stroke by which pro-Nasser rebels would seek to crush the present pro-Western government of Lebanon.

Thus there were divided views on the Lebanese crisis, which has been one of the most dangerous President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have faced in many months.

Informed officials said it would be foolish to make predictions. But on one point, which could prove to be a critical clue to the way the crisis is going, there was general accord.

Around the State Department, officials agreed that U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold had returned last week from a Middle East mission in an unexpectedly optimistic mood about the prospects for bringing the Lebanese situation under control.

Informed sources said they found it impossible to believe Hammarskjold could have taken such a hopeful line on the basis of what he had learned in Lebanon. They thus reasoned that the explanation is to be found in what he learned in Cairo of Nasser's plans.

Hammarskjold emphasized he believes a team of U. N. observers now being built up in Lebanon will be sufficient to carry out the U. N. assignment there. Authorities in Washington said the United States will support Hammarskjold in any action he recommends, even though some are skeptical about the success of his plan.

The U. N. Mission is to discourage outside intervention in Lebanese affairs by the infiltration of arms and men who have been coming over the Lebanese-Syrian border. Syria is a part of the Arab Republic, and Nasser's Cairo Radio for weeks has carried on a campaign of violent agitation against President Camille Chamoun's government at Beirut.

State Department officials said it was probably significant that Nasser had accepted the U. N. observer operation in the first place instead of persuading the Soviet government to veto it in the U. N. Security Council. They said it also was significant that he had not launched open military operations which would have constituted aggression against Lebanon. That would have required the United States and Britain—under assurances they had given Chamoun—to intervue with force.

If, as most Washington diplomatic officials now think, Nasser gave Hammarskjold the impression that he has reduced or will cut off the aid to the rebels, then the U. S. view is that much of the fire is going out of the crisis. If Nasser has not given such indications, then Hammarskjold's optimism is unjustifieid.

It has become increasingly clear in the last week that the U. S. and British governments are determined to avoid if possible any involvement of their own forces in Lebanon. Britain has moved thousands of troops into Cyprus—torn by its own internal conflict—where they stand ready for flight to nearby Lebanon if necessary. The U. S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean is carrying large contingents of Marines. The presence of these forces may have been sufficient, along with the U. N. action to save Lebanon from outright foreign aggression.

But officials say any final solution of the Lebanese political and civil strife must be sought inside the country.

Washington policy holds the solution should be achieved in two stages:

1. The present government should bring the military threat to its survival under control.

2. The government should be reorganized and given a new president and almost certainly set upon a slightly different foreign policy, less ardently pro-Western.

The heart of the whole crisis has been Chamoun's position. He was elected president in September, 1952, under a constitutional restraint to one term. Several months ago he began talking about changing the constitution to permit a second term. This split the country.

Marriage Mills To Be Halted

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's marriage mills that include neon-lighted quickie wedding chapels along the Tennessee border will grind to a halt at mid-night Monday as the new tighter restrictions take effect.

Marriage - while - you - wait in roadside chapels along the border gave Mississippi nationwide recognition for quickie weddings. Couples from nearly every state plighted their troth in Mississippi border towns.

But the 1957 special legislative session, led by Marshall County tightened the law on marriage and put teeth in its enforcement.

Border county circuit clerks, who issued marriage licenses, say the new law will reduce their fees considerably despite the fact that the 1958 Legislature raised the marriage license fees from $3 to $5.

Beginning Tuesday, applicants for a marriage license must produce proof of age and blood test certification that they are free of veneral disease. They must wait three days between application for and receipt of a marriage license.

The mandatory waiting period was designed to halt the quickie teen-aged weddings.

The circuit clerk is required to mail notice of application to the parents of applicants under 21 years of age. The attorney general's office has ruled only one notice is necessary.

Minimum ages for marriage with parental consent, is 17 for males and 15 for females.

No license will be issued if a legal impediment is found, if either party is a minor, if either is not of mature discretion, or if either is incapable of assuming the responsibilities of marriage.

The teeth in the new law, which had the backing of organizations throughout the state, is a maximum fine of $500 levied against circuit clerks convicted of failure to comply with the law.

Pay Less Is Plan Of Hospital

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
AP Science Reporter

Feel better? Pay less. That's the basis of a new hospital plan.

When you're very sick, or just had surgery, you get special, intensive care, and pay the daily going rate of about $20 to $25 a day.

When you're better, you and your bed are moved into another zone in the hospital where you don't need—and so don't get—so much attention. Your bill drops to perhaps $16 to $18 a day.

Then when you're feeling pretty perky, you move into a self-help zone, a kind of do-it-yourself hospital. You're well enough to walk to the cafeteria, or X-ray room, or dress yourself, and in other ways save time for nurses, or use of costly rooms. So you pay only $8 to $12 a day or less.

Equally or more importantly, this method brings you better medical care, says proponents.

NAACP Has Motion--And Will Travel

By HELEN THOMAS
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A five-member government board has a familiar legal hot potato back in its hands today—the problem of compelling Communist Party members to register with the Justice Department.

For the third time since 1953, the Subversive Activities Control Board must conduct hearings and rule—as it has twice before—that the U.S. Communist Party is subversive and Moscow-dominated.

If the SACB reaffirms its finding, the outlook is that it will be 1960 before the Supreme Court can rule on the legality of the registration law.

Won't Register

And even then, the Communist Party has warned that its members won't register.

The case once before traveled all the way to the Supreme Court. The court sent it back because of "tainted testimony" by three ex-Reds, Harvey Matusow, Manning Johnson and the late Paul Crouch, who had appeared on behalf of the government.

The SACB struck out their testimony and again ordered the party to sign up as a "Communist - action" group. But the Appeals Court bounced it back to the board on the basis of the Jencks' ruling which forces the government to produce FBI reports for defense scrutiny when they are relevant to the case. The court said the party's attorneys should have access to FBI reports made about party members by an undercover agent, Mrs. Mary Stalcup Markward, and reformed Communist Louis Budenz.

Means Long Delay

Mrs. Dorothy McCullough Lee, board chairman, agreed the ruling means a long delay. Even if the board's findings are reaffirmed, she told United Press International, the case will not be up for review by the Supreme Court before 1960 at the earliest.

Meanwhile, the board is stymied in efforts to get 21 other alleged Communist "front" groups to register until the party case is settled once and for all.

Neither "fronts" nor Communist - infiltrated unions can be cited, Mrs. Lee explained, until the question of the party as a subversive "action" group is resolved.

As a result, the board's lengthy proceedings against the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America have come to a standstill.

NAACP Has Motion--And Will Travel

By HELEN THOMAS
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A five-member government board has a familiar legal hot potato back in its hands today—the problem of compelling Communist Party members to register with the Justice Department.

For the third time since 1953, the Subversive Activities Control Board must conduct hearings and rule—as it has twice before—that the U.S. Communist Party is subversive and Moscow-dominated.

If the SACB reaffirms its finding, the outlook is that it will be 1960 before the Supreme Court can rule on the legality of the registration law.

Won't Register

And even then, the Communist Party has warned that its members won't register.

The case once before traveled all the way to the Supreme Court. The court sent it back because of "tainted testimony" by three ex-Reds, Harvey Matusow, Manning Johnson and the late Paul Crouch, who had appeared on behalf of the government.

The SACB struck out their testimony and again ordered the party to sign up as a "Communist - action" group. But the Appeals Court bounced it back to the board on the basis of the Jencks' ruling which forces the government to produce FBI reports for defense scrutiny when they are relevant to the case. The court said the party's attorneys should have access to FBI reports made about party members by an undercover agent, Mrs. Mary Stalcup Markward, and reformed Communist Louis Budenz.

Means Long Delay

Mrs. Dorothy McCullough Lee, board chairman, agreed the ruling means a long delay. Even if the board's findings are reaffirmed, she told United Press International, the case will not be up for review by the Supreme Court before 1960 at the earliest.

Meanwhile, the board is stymied in efforts to get 21 other alleged Communist "front" groups to register until the party case is settled once and for all.

Neither "fronts" nor Communist - infiltrated unions can be cited, Mrs. Lee explained, until the question of the party as a subversive "action" group is resolved.

As a result, the board's lengthy proceedings against the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America have come to a standstill.

Grand Master Is Re-Elected

Most Worthy Prof. W. T. Meade Grant Jr. was elected Grand Master at the 52nd annual session of the Most Worthy St. Andrew Grand Lodge of the Ancient Free and Accepted Masons for Louisiana. St. Andrew Grand Lodge is under the General Grand Masonic Crongress, AFAM, for the United Sates, Canada, British West Indies and the Dutch West Indies; it is also affiliated with the Federation of Scottish and York Rite Masons of the World.

The annual session was held by the Electa Grand Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star Adopted Right, in the Masonic Temple, 1106 Stone Avenue, Monroe, La., from June 27-29.

Highlights of the session were the welcome address by Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard," Monroe, the gospel singing by the King David Spiritual Singers of Natchez, Miss., and the response address by the Most Worthy Prof. W. T. Meade Grant Jr., 33 degree Grand Master of New Orleans.

Guest speaker at the session was the Illustrious Willie A. Edney, 33 degree vice - president general of the Gentle Grand Masonic Congress and member of the Federation of Scottish and York Rite Masons of the World.

In addition to the above highlights, it was also announced at this session that the Grand Lodge finances totaled over $100,000. This session began Friday morning and will last until 3 p.m. Sunday.

Worthy Eugene Jackson Sr., 33 degree Grand Patron of N. O. was present at the session as was the Illustrious Rev. C. A. Singletow, 32 degree Deputy Grand Master and General Chairman of the Convention - Host Lodges.

The host lodges were the Three Light Lodge No. 24 and Victory Lodge No. 55, and the host chapters were Esther chapter No. 7 and Ida R. B. Grant chapter No. 25 Order of the Eastern Star Adopted Right, Monroe, La.

The next annual session will be held in New Orleans, La. sometime in June, 1959.

SAFE FOR ORCHIDS

ST. LOUIS — (UPI) — Thirty-two years ago Shaw's Garden moved its orchid collection from the city to Gray's Summit, 35 miles away because of pollution. Now that the smoke is clearing away, the orchids are coming back. Transfer of about 10,000 plants is expected to be completed in three months.

Ex-Con Loses Move To Dismiss Kidnap Charge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Dist. Judge Jess Johnson Friday rejected a defense motion seeking dismissal of kidnaping charges against ex-convict Coye M. Bell.

Bell, 39, also faces aggravated rape and armed robbery charges in East Feliciana Parish, growing out of an attack June 6 on a 24-year-old Baton Rouge mother of three children.

Denying a motion for a bill of particulars, the judge ordered the district attorney to give defense attorneys a copy of oral statements Bell reportedly gave deputies.

Two other motions seeking to shift the trial will be argued Monday.

Bell allegedly lured the woman into driving him into an isolated area southeast of Clinton, where he attacked her.

DOODLES

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — (UPI) — Police reporter Menno Duerksen of the Memphis Press - Scimitar lost his notebook filled with notes and idle "doodles." But he got it back quickly from detective Lt. L. G. Weaver, although Duerksen didn't have his name in the book. "How did you figure it was mine?," Duerksen asked Weaver. "By the doodles," he said. "I've seen you make those doodles in court."

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Louisiana's state championship Babe Ruth League tournament for baseball boys of 13 to 15 years of age is scheduled for Tallulah this year, the first time the tourney has been held in the Tallulah area. But Monroe isn't playing Babe Ruth ball this year, having switched to V.F.W. Teener League play, and its doubtful if any team in the immediate Monroe area will compete at Tallulah.

Winnsboro's teams in recent years have made both tournaments—Babe Ruth and Teener—but this year Tallulah has no word that Winnsboro will compete again, and there has been no announcements from the Franklin parish center.

Tomorrow is the deadline for posting entries in the Tallulah event that's scheduled to begin July 21, according to Boone Halbach, principal of Tallulah Elementary School, who is director of the Babe Ruth meeting that will run for six days, closing July 26.

Madison parish's sheriff, C. E. Hester, is chairman of the pairings committee, and he and director Halbach are inviting representatives of all contending teams to witness the drawing for opponents and playing times. The drawing is scheduled for 6 p.m., July 2, at Tallulah.

Tallulah residents, catching the baseball fever, are preparing to open their homes to members of the contending teams during their stay there. Halbach said most players will be placed in homes and that the housing committee is already working up the plans for caring for the visitors and also mapping their entertainment when not busy on the baseball diamond.

Teams already entered are Gretna, Houma, Hammond, two New Orleans Recreation Department (NORD) teams, two clubs from the Jefferson League of New Orleans, Tallulah, and Abbeville. Look over that list of entries again. Tallulah is the only north Louisiana representative, all other clubs coming out of the New Orleans area. Thibodaux, Metairie, and Lake Charles, also with Babe Ruth Leagues, haven't entered yet.

This is National Safe Boating Week, by presidential proclamation, and recreation boating, continuing its gains as the fastest growing outdoor sports activity of this decade, is making the most of it.

At the same time state and national legislators are acting to do something about boating safety since all signs indicate that before long waterways will be tougher to travel on any weekend than most highways. "Hot rod" speedboat operators and "show-offs" will bring about strict legislation for the boat operators.

Louisiana's legislature in recent action empowered police juries over the state to fix regulations governing boats within their own parish. The rub here for a lot of boatmen is not that there are to be restrictions, but that absence of uniformity between parishes is going to cause them a lot of confusion.

Legislators at Washington are working to improve water safety by enacting federal laws governing all power boats operating high speed motors. The bill originally covered all power boats, including the smallest outboards, but has been amended not to include those smaller one-digit power outboards, thus saving the hordes of small lake and stream fishermen from a lot of red tape.

We won't be guessing much longer about the new football coach at Northeast Louisiana State will be.

George Thomas Walker, dean at Northwestern takes over as the new Northeast president Tuesday morning, and one of his first official acts will no doubt be to name a successor to the late Devone Payne who died last March.

NEW RECORD EXPECTED

Racing Resumes At Local Track

Track officials are expecting a new track record today as racing resumes at the Twin City Speedway after a layoff of several weeks because of work on the half-mile oval and last week's rains.

Steeply banked turns should make the track safer and faster, a track spokesman said yesterday, and a new speed record for the Speedway is a possibility. the track's clay surface will cut down dust, another safety feature, officials pointed out.

Royce Whitlock's 13 will again be the favorite in the feature event, one of seven scheduled races. His toughest opposition is expected to come from the Lou Craig Special, number 16, an expensive car that placed well in the last races at the Speedway.

Number 7 is expected to be back today after a crackup two weeks ago on another track. The old wrecking crew himself, Joe Mallard, will be driving number 38, a strong contender.

Floyd Parker's number 5 will be in the race after being rebuilt to hold the track better and should be among the leaders.

Twenty - five cars are expected altogether for the races which will get underway with the time trials at 1 o'clock.

Dyer Pitches No-Hitter For Rayville Win

Delhi scored its lone run in the 7th on two errors and two walks.

The win was Rayville's 2nd of the year against 6 losses.

Stengel, Haney Strong On Stars They Know Best

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

Casey Stengel of the Yankees and Fred Haney of the Braves, relying heavily on the players they know best, picked a total of 11 of their own men Saturday to augment the American and National League All - Star teams which will meet in Baltimore, July 8.

Stengel really went whole hog, naming seven of his Yankees, while Haney selected four of his Braves to round out the teams originally chosen by players of both leagues.

Stengel's choices from his own Yankee roster were pitchers Whitey Ford, Bob Turley and Ryne Duren, infielders Gil McDougald and Tony Kubek, outfielder Elston Howard and catcher Yogi Berra.

The four Milwaukee players chose were pitchers Warren Spahn and Don McMahon, shortstop Johnny Logan and third baseman Eddie Mathews.

In addition to Ford, Turley and Duren, the other pitchers named to the American League squad by Stengel were Billy Pierce and Early Wynn of the White Sox; Ray Narleski of Cleveland and Billy O'Dell of Baltimore.

Along with Spahn and McMahon, Haney also selected Johnny Antonelli of the Giants; Dick Farrell of the Phillies; Bob Friend of the Pirates; Larry Jackson of the Cardinals; Johnny Podres of the Dodgers, and Bob Purkey of the Redlegs for his National League pitching staff.

Stengel chose 17 players in all, including outfielder Ted Williams of the Red Sox, who was not named on the starting team selected by the votes of his fellow players.

The Yankee manager also selected outfielders Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers; catcher Sherm Lollar of the White Sox; shortstop Rocky Bridges of the Senators, and first baseman Mickey Vernon of the Indians.

All told, the Yankees will have nine players on the squad, including first baseman Bill Skowron and center fielder Mickey Mantle, who were named on the players' ballots.

The White Sox, who had starters in shortstop Luis Aparicio and second baseman Nellie Fox, will have five. Boston will have three in third baseman Frank Malzone, right fielder Jackie Jensen and Williams, who is appearing on an All-Star squad for the 14th time.

Gus Triandos of Baltimore was chosen as the starting catcher and Bob Cerv of Kansas City the starting left fielder. So the Orioles, Indians and Tigers each have two players on the squad while the Athletics and Senators have one apiece.

Three of the A.L. pitchers — Ford, Pierce and Wynn — have worked in All-Star games before. Turley has been on the squad twice but never in action. Duren is the only rookie.

Stengel picked Luman Harris of the Orioles and Jim Turner of the Yankees as coaches; George Zuverink and Ken Lehman of Baltimore as batting practice pitchers; Bob Swift of Kansas City as batting practice catcher, and Ed Weidner of Baltimore as trainer.

In picking the remainder of his National League squad, Haney named rookie catchers John Roseboro of Los Angeles and Bob Schmidt of San Francisco; infielders Don Blasingame and George Crowe of Cincinnati, and outfielders Richie Ashburn of Philadelphia and Walt Moryn and Lee Walls of Chicago.

They'll augment those originally chosen by N.L. players, managers and coaches — catcher Del Del Crandall of Milwaukee; infielders Stan Musial, St. Louis, Ernie Banks, Chicago, and Bill Mazeroski and Frank Thomas of Pittsburgh, and outfielders Hank Aaron, Milwaukee, Willie Mays, San Francisco and Bob Skinner, Pittsburgh.

Among the established stars Haney passed over were Duke Snider and Gil Hodges of Los Angeles, Robin Roberts of Philadelphia, Ted Kluszewski of Pittsburgh and Red Schoendienst of his own Milwaukee club.

Twelve of the N.L. players are appearing on the All-Star squad for the first time, and at the other end of the scale is Musial, who will be making his 15th appearance.

Haney named San Francisco Manager Bill Rigney and Philadelphia Manager Mayo Smith as his coaches. He also chose John Lang of Milwaukee and Bill Posedel of Philadelphia as batting practice pitchers, and George Susce Sr., of Milwaukee as batting practice catcher.

RUNAWAY

Mickey Wright Wins Open With Record Total Of 290

Miss Wright, a 23 - year - old blonde from Chula Vista, Calif., took the lead at the outset and won the biggest ladies' tournament of them all in a blazing finish.

The long-hitting lass fired a 70 in the morning round and a 74 in the afternoon for a winning 290 total. That eclipses the 291 record total that the late Mrs. Zaharias had in winning the 1954 Open at Peabody, Mass.

This is the biggest victory of Miss Wright's young career and gives her the 1958 "slam". Recently she won the Ladies' PGA Championship, and she did it in the same decisive fashion in both events.

Miss Louise Suggs, twice a winner and twice runner-up in the women's open, had a 74 and a 71 at Forest Lake Country Club and finished with 295.

4 Nat Homers Are Not Enough

CHICAGO (AP) — Although Washington banged four homers, two in a row by Roy Sievers, the Chicago White Sox rallied for four runs, three unearned, in the sixth and an 8-4 victory over the Senators Saturday.

Washington's Rocky Bridges and Norm Zauchin also hit solo homers.

The decision went to Bob Shaw, who faced only three Senators, completing the sixth inning. Gerry Staley hurled the last three frames. The Sox chased Washington starter Truman Clevenger in the sixth as they collected four runs on five hits, two sacrifice flies and an error.

Miss Hanks Tops Roberta Alison In Net Tourney

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Carol Hanks, a 15-year-old blonde from St. Louis, shattered Roberta Alison's hopes Saturday of winning two singles championships in the Southern girls and juniors tennis tournament.

Miss Hanks, defeated the 14-year-old Alabama girl 6-1, 6-4 for the championship of the 15-and-under division.

But the slim, bespectacled Miss Alison from Alexander City, Ala., came back to whip top - seeded Sandra Loubat of New Orleans 10-8, 6-4 for the 18-and-under title.

Booth Batting .500 To Pace Big 8 League

RUSTON, La. (Special) Billy Jack Booth, Northwestern State's All-Gulf States Conference football and baseball player, continues to lead the Big Eight Baseball League's race for the second straight week, according to figures released yesterday by league president Lawrence J. Fox. Booth, playing for Bernice, has been to bat 42 times, collected 21 hits for a .500 average.

Allen Kock, Homer, boasts a .545 mark, but he has appeared at bat 11 times for six hits, insufficient for a claim just yet.

Bernice also boasts the leading pitcher and home run hitter as Larry Williams, Ole Miss star, has a perfect mound record with four wins, and Ben Carroll, league veteran, has socked five circuit blows.

President Fox has called a meeting of league team managers here next Wednesday night to select players for the annual All-Star game scheduled for June 8 with the host club to be the team leading the league on July 5.

Proceeds of the all-star game go to the Big Eight fund which at the present totals $1,150.

Louisiana's state championship Babe Ruth League tournament for baseball boys of 13 to 15 years of age is scheduled for Tallulah this year, the first time the tourney has been held in the Tallulah area. But Monroe isn't playing Babe Ruth ball this year, having switched to V.F.W. Teener League play, and its doubtful if any team in the immediate Monroe area will compete at Tallulah.

Winnsboro's teams in recent years have made both tournaments—Babe Ruth and Teener—but this year Tallulah has no word that Winnsboro will compete again, and there has been no announcements from the Franklin parish center.

Tomorrow is the deadline for posting entries in the Tallulah event that's scheduled to begin July 21, according to Boone Halbach, principal of Tallulah Elementary School, who is director of the Babe Ruth meeting that will run for six days, closing July 26.

Madison parish's sheriff, C. E. Hester, is chairman of the pairings committee, and he and director Halbach are inviting representatives of all contending teams to witness the drawing for opponents and playing times. The drawing is scheduled for 6 p.m., July 2, at Tallulah.

Tallulah residents, catching the baseball fever, are preparing to open their homes to members of the contending teams during their stay there. Halbach said most players will be placed in homes and that the housing committee is already working up the plans for caring for the visitors and also mapping their entertainment when not busy on the baseball diamond.

Teams already entered are Gretna, Houma, Hammond, two New Orleans Recreation Department (NORD) teams, two clubs from the Jefferson League of New Orleans, Tallulah, and Abbeville. Look over that list of entries again. Tallulah is the only north Louisiana representative, all other clubs coming out of the New Orleans area. Thibodaux, Metairie, and Lake Charles, also with Babe Ruth Leagues, haven't entered yet.

This is National Safe Boating Week, by presidential proclamation, and recreation boating, continuing its gains as the fastest growing outdoor sports activity of this decade, is making the most of it.

At the same time state and national legislators are acting to do something about boating safety since all signs indicate that before long waterways will be tougher to travel on any weekend than most highways. "Hot rod" speedboat operators and "show-offs" will bring about strict legislation for the boat operators.

Louisiana's legislature in recent action empowered police juries over the state to fix regulations governing boats within their own parish. The rub here for a lot of boatmen is not that there are to be restrictions, but that absence of uniformity between parishes is going to cause them a lot of confusion.

Legislators at Washington are working to improve water safety by enacting federal laws governing all power boats operating high speed motors. The bill originally covered all power boats, including the smallest outboards, but has been amended not to include those smaller one-digit power outboards, thus saving the hordes of small lake and stream fishermen from a lot of red tape.

We won't be guessing much longer about the new football coach at Northeast Louisiana State will be.

George Thomas Walker, dean at Northwestern takes over as the new Northeast president Tuesday morning, and one of his first official acts will no doubt be to name a successor to the late Devone Payne who died last March.

NEW RECORD EXPECTED

Racing Resumes At Local Track

Track officials are expecting a new track record today as racing resumes at the Twin City Speedway after a layoff of several weeks because of work on the half-mile oval and last week's rains.

Steeply banked turns should make the track safer and faster, a track spokesman said yesterday, and a new speed record for the Speedway is a possibility. the track's clay surface will cut down dust, another safety feature, officials pointed out.

Royce Whitlock's 13 will again be the favorite in the feature event, one of seven scheduled races. His toughest opposition is expected to come from the Lou Craig Special, number 16, an expensive car that placed well in the last races at the Speedway.

Number 7 is expected to be back today after a crackup two weeks ago on another track. The old wrecking crew himself, Joe Mallard, will be driving number 38, a strong contender.

Floyd Parker's number 5 will be in the race after being rebuilt to hold the track better and should be among the leaders.

Twenty - five cars are expected altogether for the races which will get underway with the time trials at 1 o'clock.

Dyer Pitches No-Hitter For Rayville Win

Delhi scored its lone run in the 7th on two errors and two walks.

The win was Rayville's 2nd of the year against 6 losses.

Stengel, Haney Strong On Stars They Know Best

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

Casey Stengel of the Yankees and Fred Haney of the Braves, relying heavily on the players they know best, picked a total of 11 of their own men Saturday to augment the American and National League All - Star teams which will meet in Baltimore, July 8.

Stengel really went whole hog, naming seven of his Yankees, while Haney selected four of his Braves to round out the teams originally chosen by players of both leagues.

Stengel's choices from his own Yankee roster were pitchers Whitey Ford, Bob Turley and Ryne Duren, infielders Gil McDougald and Tony Kubek, outfielder Elston Howard and catcher Yogi Berra.

The four Milwaukee players chose were pitchers Warren Spahn and Don McMahon, shortstop Johnny Logan and third baseman Eddie Mathews.

In addition to Ford, Turley and Duren, the other pitchers named to the American League squad by Stengel were Billy Pierce and Early Wynn of the White Sox; Ray Narleski of Cleveland and Billy O'Dell of Baltimore.

Along with Spahn and McMahon, Haney also selected Johnny Antonelli of the Giants; Dick Farrell of the Phillies; Bob Friend of the Pirates; Larry Jackson of the Cardinals; Johnny Podres of the Dodgers, and Bob Purkey of the Redlegs for his National League pitching staff.

Stengel chose 17 players in all, including outfielder Ted Williams of the Red Sox, who was not named on the starting team selected by the votes of his fellow players.

The Yankee manager also selected outfielders Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers; catcher Sherm Lollar of the White Sox; shortstop Rocky Bridges of the Senators, and first baseman Mickey Vernon of the Indians.

All told, the Yankees will have nine players on the squad, including first baseman Bill Skowron and center fielder Mickey Mantle, who were named on the players' ballots.

The White Sox, who had starters in shortstop Luis Aparicio and second baseman Nellie Fox, will have five. Boston will have three in third baseman Frank Malzone, right fielder Jackie Jensen and Williams, who is appearing on an All-Star squad for the 14th time.

Gus Triandos of Baltimore was chosen as the starting catcher and Bob Cerv of Kansas City the starting left fielder. So the Orioles, Indians and Tigers each have two players on the squad while the Athletics and Senators have one apiece.

Three of the A.L. pitchers — Ford, Pierce and Wynn — have worked in All-Star games before. Turley has been on the squad twice but never in action. Duren is the only rookie.

Stengel picked Luman Harris of the Orioles and Jim Turner of the Yankees as coaches; George Zuverink and Ken Lehman of Baltimore as batting practice pitchers; Bob Swift of Kansas City as batting practice catcher, and Ed Weidner of Baltimore as trainer.

In picking the remainder of his National League squad, Haney named rookie catchers John Roseboro of Los Angeles and Bob Schmidt of San Francisco; infielders Don Blasingame and George Crowe of Cincinnati, and outfielders Richie Ashburn of Philadelphia and Walt Moryn and Lee Walls of Chicago.

They'll augment those originally chosen by N.L. players, managers and coaches — catcher Del Del Crandall of Milwaukee; infielders Stan Musial, St. Louis, Ernie Banks, Chicago, and Bill Mazeroski and Frank Thomas of Pittsburgh, and outfielders Hank Aaron, Milwaukee, Willie Mays, San Francisco and Bob Skinner, Pittsburgh.

Among the established stars Haney passed over were Duke Snider and Gil Hodges of Los Angeles, Robin Roberts of Philadelphia, Ted Kluszewski of Pittsburgh and Red Schoendienst of his own Milwaukee club.

Twelve of the N.L. players are appearing on the All-Star squad for the first time, and at the other end of the scale is Musial, who will be making his 15th appearance.

Haney named San Francisco Manager Bill Rigney and Philadelphia Manager Mayo Smith as his coaches. He also chose John Lang of Milwaukee and Bill Posedel of Philadelphia as batting practice pitchers, and George Susce Sr., of Milwaukee as batting practice catcher.

Mickey Wright Wins Open With Record Total Of 290

Miss Wright, a 23 - year - old blonde from Chula Vista, Calif., took the lead at the outset and won the biggest ladies' tournament of them all in a blazing finish.

The long-hitting lass fired a 70 in the morning round and a 74 in the afternoon for a winning 290 total. That eclipses the 291 record total that the late Mrs. Zaharias had in winning the 1954 Open at Peabody, Mass.

This is the biggest victory of Miss Wright's young career and gives her the 1958 "slam". Recently she won the Ladies' PGA Championship, and she did it in the same decisive fashion in both events.

Miss Louise Suggs, twice a winner and twice runner-up in the women's open, had a 74 and a 71 at Forest Lake Country Club and finished with 295.

4 Nat Homers Are Not Enough

CHICAGO (AP) — Although Washington banged four homers, two in a row by Roy Sievers, the Chicago White Sox rallied for four runs, three unearned, in the sixth and an 8-4 victory over the Senators Saturday.

Washington's Rocky Bridges and Norm Zauchin also hit solo homers.

The decision went to Bob Shaw, who faced only three Senators, completing the sixth inning. Gerry Staley hurled the last three frames. The Sox chased Washington starter Truman Clevenger in the sixth as they collected four runs on five hits, two sacrifice flies and an error.

Miss Hanks Tops Roberta Alison In Net Tourney

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Carol Hanks, a 15-year-old blonde from St. Louis, shattered Roberta Alison's hopes Saturday of winning two singles championships in the Southern girls and juniors tennis tournament.

Miss Hanks, defeated the 14-year-old Alabama girl 6-1, 6-4 for the championship of the 15-and-under division.

But the slim, bespectacled Miss Alison from Alexander City, Ala., came back to whip top - seeded Sandra Loubat of New Orleans 10-8, 6-4 for the 18-and-under title.

Booth Batting .500 To Pace Big 8 League

RUSTON, La. (Special) Billy Jack Booth, Northwestern State's All-Gulf States Conference football and baseball player, continues to lead the Big Eight Baseball League's race for the second straight week, according to figures released yesterday by league president Lawrence J. Fox. Booth, playing for Bernice, has been to bat 42 times, collected 21 hits for a .500 average.

Allen Kock, Homer, boasts a .545 mark, but he has appeared at bat 11 times for six hits, insufficient for a claim just yet.

Bernice also boasts the leading pitcher and home run hitter as Larry Williams, Ole Miss star, has a perfect mound record with four wins and Ben Carroll, league veteran, has socked five circuit blows.

President Fox has called a meeting of league team managers here next Wednesday night to select players for the annual All Star game scheduled for June 8 with the host club to be the team leading the league on July 5.

Proceeds of the all-star game go to the Big Eight fund which at the present totals $1,150.

All-Stars Of Rebel League Play Friday

The Rebel Baseball League of West Monroe holds its first annual all-star game Friday, July the Fourth, on the West Monroe High diamond when the aces of the Dixie Boys and Rebel boys will be pitted against the best of the Brown-Rivers-Scogin league leaders and Civitan Club.

The game is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

League officials last night announced the all-star lineups as follows:

Civitan Club—Al Ash, Johnny Johnston, Wayne Clampitt, Kenneth Parker, Rickie Fields, Harold Hubbard, Neil Young, Jewel McBroom and Wayne Hardwick. Coach will be Tommy Hebert.

Brown-Rivers-Scogin—Buck Fox Charles Taylor, Jerry Broom, Law-León Miletello, Gary Chapman, Charles Taylor, Jerry Broom, Lawrence Robinson, Donald Schanks Nickie Rogers, and Dickie Worthey. Coach Joe Marzula.

Dixie Boys—Danny Tolar, Buck McMillian, David Martin, Dan Quckley, Glen Perkins, Larry McCullough, Tommy Avery, Wayne Dowdy, and David Arnold. Coach Billy Watson.

PHILS VICTIMS, 8-1

Maglie Hurls Card Win; Green Bangs Grand Slam

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — St. Louis rookie Gene Green banged out his first major league grand slam homer and veteran Sal Maglie gave up only five hits Saturday as the Cards trounced Philadelphia 8-1 in a game marked by the season's third major league triple play.

Green's big blow came in the first inning and put the Cards ahead to stay. Don Blasingame tripled to open the inning and Curt Flood singled him home. Stan Musial's double advanced Flood to third and Ken Boyer was issued an intentional walk by loser Curt Simmons. Then Green cut loose with his big hit, his fifth homer of the season.

Here's how the triple play came about:

Flood beat out an infield hit to third. Wally Post dropped a fly by Stan Musial and Ken Boyer lined to second baseman Solly Hemus. Hemus stepped on third to snare Flood and threw to first to nab Musial. The Chicago Cubs and Washington also have executed triple plays this season.

The Cardinals added another run in the fourth and two more in the seventh as Maglie kept the Phils off balance all the way. It was the veteran hurler's second straight win since being purchased from the New York Yankees. The Cards collected a total of 12 hits.

The Cards' sixth run came after Harry Anderson let Eddie Kasko's ground ball get through his legs in the fourth. Kasko advanced to second on a wild pitch and continued to third on a wild throw by Lopata, scoring on another wild pitch.

The final two runs came in the eighth on a single by Hal Smith, Kasko's triple, and a single by Maglie which brought Kasko home.

The Phils' lone score came in the ninth on a homer by Carl Sawatski, his first.

The victory kept the Cards in second place in the National League.

WHIP CUBS, 7-3

Pirates Break Losing Streak

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates put the skids on a seven game losing streak Saturday, thumping the Chicago Cubs 7-3 with the help of a four-run fifth inning.

Bob Skinner's bases-loaded single, an error by shortstop Ernie Banks and Ted Kluszewski's double produced the runs in the fifth. Skinner also drove in the Pirates first run in the first inning with a sacrifice fly after Billy Virdon led off with a triple.

Rookie Curt Raydon won his third game, but needed help from reliever Bob Porterfield. Raydon was lifted in the sixth with two aboard. Porterfield snuffed out the rally by getting Bobby Thomson to hit into a double play.

The Cubs scored single runs in the second, fourth and sixth innings. Thomson, Sammy Taylor and Dale Long drove in one run each with sacrifice flies.

Dick Drott, who started for the Cubs, was the loser. He's now 3-5. Bill Henry, Glenn Hobbie and Dave Hillman also labored for the Cubs.

The Pirates scored their other runs in the fourth and eighth innings. Bob Clemente's sacrifice fly with three aboard counted one in the fourth and Hank Foiles' squeeze bunt scored the other in the eighth.

Cub outfielder Walt Moryn was ejected in the fourth after protesting a call by umpire Ken Burkhart. Moryn complained he was hit by a pitched ball. He continued to complain after striking out and Burkhart thumbed him out.

Boston Signs Missouri Ace For Fat Bonus

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Martin Toft, slugging outfielder of the University of Missouri baseball team, signed Saturday with the Boston Red Sox for a bonus he said was "between $35,000 and $40,000."

Toft said he needs two semesters of work to obtain a degree in industrial psychology and plans to attend the university in the winter.

He is 6-foot-1 and weighs 185.

Toft, who clubbed nine home runs during the season, will report to Allentown of the Class A Eastern League next Tuesday or Wednesday. Red Sox scout Don Lenhardt said Toft is a good hitter, fast with a good arm but "his attitude and determination impressed me most."

Dick Lane Back Under Contract With Grid Cards

A veteran of six professional football campaigns, Lane missed four games last season because of injuries. However, the Cardinals report he has been working out for a month.

Hollywood Gold Cup Race Next For Gallant Man

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man will be flown to the West Coast next week to run in the $100,000-added Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park July 12, trainer Jimmy Nerud said Saturday.

In his last start two weeks ago, Gallent Man whipped Wheatley Stable's 1957 Hourse of the Year, Bold Ruler, in the $50,000 added Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park.

The decision to send the little Irish-raised flyer West was made just before weights were released for the $75,000 Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park on July 4.

Bold Ruler drew top weight of 134 pounds. The Ruler carried 135 pounds and Gallant Man 130 for the Metropolitan. Gallant Man will carry 130 in the Gold Cup.

Track Doctor Says Jockey Wasn't Drunk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The track physician at Hollywood Park said Saturday that jockey Jackie Westrope couldn't possibly have been under the influence of liquor when he rode to his death June 19.

Dr. T. H. Haller took sharp exception to a county coroner's report that the dead jockey's bloodstream showed evidence he had been drinking.

"If the coroner's analysis is correct, Westrope would have had to be dead drunk — so drunk he couldn't walk," Haller said.

Westrope was abroad King Rance's Well Away in the feature race at Hollywood Park when the filly crashed into a rail in the stretch.

Westrope was thrown on the rail. He died of internal injuries less than two hours later.

Dr. Haller said the coroner's test, in his opinion, was faulty.

Other track officials also took issue with the accusation that Westrope had been drinking before the fatal ride.

Dr. Harold Kade, autopsy surgeon said: "Our laboratory never has been inaccurate in its work."

Touring Yank Thinclads Top Swiss Squad

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) —A touring American track and field team easily swept all events at an international meet Saturday against a Swiss team that included three Hungarian exiles.

The most dramatic moment came in the last event, the 200-meter dash, which Ray Norton of Oakland, Calif., won despite a severe leg cramp through the last 80 yards.

Norton, co-holder of the world 100-meter record, had a big lead over the rest of the field when he suddenly grasped his right upper thigh in pain.

He continued running with his face twisted with pain and his hand still on his thigh. He managed to hold on to the lead and won in 22.2 seconds, two yards in front of Robert Harder of Switzerland.

A physician who examined Norton immediately after the race said the cramp probably was caused by an ice cold wind which blew across the field.

Tom Courtney of Livingston, N.J., won the 800 meters in 1:48.2 equally after being led for the first 400 meters by Hungarian exile Laszlo Tanay.

COLLEGIATE GOLF

Konsek, Rodgers Meet For Crown

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP)—John Konsek, a wispy 18-year-old walloper from Purdue, and Phil Rodgers, a solid and stolied 20-year-old from Houston, Saturday reached the finals of the National Collegiate Golf Tournament in a pair of contrasting matches.

Konsek, the Big Ten champion, had to go 34 pressure packed holes on the hilly, 6,530-yard Taconic Course before he eliminated Bob Pratt, one of Rodgers Houston teammates. Rodgers breezed to an 8 and 6 victory over shaky, wild-swinging Art Hall of Oklahome State.

Konsek and Rodgers will meet Sunday in a 36-hole final on the par 35-36—71 course at Williams College which could be about as good a match as amateurs will play this season.

Rodgers from LaJolla, Calif., was good enough last year to reach the quarter-finals of the National Amateur. And with the exception of Konsek he has been regarded as the class of the 300-man field which started this tournament.

Konsek, a quietly confident young man from Buffalo, N.Y., has been hoping all week that he'd get a crack at the better-known Rodgers in the final.

Off Saturday's showing, Konsek might appear to have the edge. He shot a three-under-par 68 on the morning round and led Pratt only one up. He went out in 33 in the afternoon to add one hole to his lead, and finished approximately four under par for the day.

Rodgers, on the other hand, just had to play for pars and let Hall beat himself. He had a morning 72 to lead five up and was exactly even with pars when the match ended at the 30th.

Hall won two of the first four holes and then took only three more all day. Before the end he was spraying his irons shots wildly, scrambling for pars and looking as if he would be glad when it was over.

Pratt, after losing three of the first four holes, gave Konsek a tussle all the way. He had a charitable 69 in the morning and never was more than two down from the seventh hole through the 27th.

Konsek holed a nine foot birdie putt at the 28th and gained an apparently safe four up lead when Pratt went into the rough and a trap at the 29th. Then he began to tire, shot three bogeys in a row and couldn't end the match until the 34th. There Pratt's approach hit Konsek's ball on the green and skittered off to the fringe. He failed to run in a 30-foot putt, then Johnny calmly knocked in a 12-footer for a winning birdie.

"Rodgers is one of the best players in the country in my book," Konsek said afterward. "But I'd sure like to take that loving cup home and I think I can do it if I don't get tired again."

BRILLIANT FIELD

Ferrari Earns Post Position In Monza

MONZA, Italy (AP)—A new 12-cylinder Ferrari driven by Luigi Musso of Italy Saturday won the post position for Sunday's Monza 500-mile race against a brilliant field of Indianapolis aces and American cars.

Trial run speeds of up to 175 miles an hour promised that Monza would again make Indianapolis records in the 130s and 140s look slow.

Argentina's world champion Juan Manuel Fangio hit 172 miles an hour in the American car which won the Monza race last year, and tied for third in the trials.

There still were last minute contract problems which might cut Fangio out of the race by starting time at noon Sunday, but he made clear that he is anxious to drive.

The race is the long advertised showdown between American aces and the best drivers from the South American and European circuits. Last year the Europeans refused the challenge. They boycotted the race, calling the superspeed track too dangerous.

Musso, earning the pole position, averaged 174.7 m.p.h. for three laps with a fastest lap of 174.76. Bob Veit of Oakland, Calif., averaged 173.3 in his Bowes Seal Fast Special but the car came out of the trial with a collapsed piston, making Vieth a doubtful starter.

Other qualifying times included:

Jim Rathmann, Miami, Fla., Zink Leader Card Special, 170.6; Johnny Thompson, Center Valley, Pa., D-A Lubricant Special, 167.5; Roger Ward, Los Angeles, Wolcott Fuel Injection Special, 167; Troy Ruttman, La Mirada, Calif., Agajanian Special, 166.8; Stirling Moss, Britain, Maserati ElDorado, 164.4; Ray Crawford, Pasadena, Calif., Maguire Mirro Glaze Special, 163.9; Jimmy Reece, Speedway, Ind., Hoyt Machine Special, 163.6.

Musso also qualified another Farrari—a six cylinder test model. The Italian drove it at 161.1 m.p.h. It probably will be driven Sunday by Mike Hawthorn of Britain and Phil Hill of Los Angeles.

Britain's Jack Fairman qualified a Jaguar single seater at 153 m.p.h. Harry Schell, an American living in Paris, hit 152.6 m.p.h. with a Ferrari, which was entered in the 1957 Indianapolis race but failed to qualify for that event.

France's Maurice Trintignant qualified an American Sclavi and Amos racer at 160.59 while Masten Gregory of Kansas City did 159.1 in a Jaguar.

TRUMAN UPSET

Arnold Leads 6-American Wimbledon Net Advance

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP)—Tiny Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif. upset British Amazon Christine Truman Saturday and keyed a six-player American advance through another round at the rain-splashed Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

Miss Arnold, just 19, standing 5-1 and weighing barely 100 pounds, outplayed, outdrove and outvolleyed her 6-foot, 172-pound opponent who became Britain's tennis idol after her victory over New York's Althea Gibson in the Wightman Cup matches two weeks ago. The core was 10-8, 6-3.

The center court battle brightened American prestige considerably on another gray, drizzly day that also saw the advance of Althea Gibson, the defending women's champion, and Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio chief American hope in the men's single.

Althea Gibson, playing well within herself, joined Miss Arnold in the quarter-final with a 6-0, 6-4 victory over Lorraine Coghlan of Australia. Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont of Wilmington, Del., only other U.S. survivor in women's play, won a third round match from Australia's Norma Marsh 6-3, 3-6, 8-6. Eighth-seeded Karol Fageros of Miami fell before Britain's Pat Ward, 2-6 6-4, 6-4.

MacKay, former champion Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Paris, and 44-year-old Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla. stepped up to the fourth round in men's single.

MacKay, trailing Australian Bob Mark 4-6, 8-8 when rain intervened Friday, played spottily but well enough to win 4-6 10-8 6-4, 6-4. Mulloy eliminated 21-year-old Mike Green of Miami Beach, Fla., 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2. Patty completed a rain-delayed match with Torben Ulrich of Denmark, 4-6,7-5, 6-1, 6-2.

Other men's favorites moved along with little effort, including third-seeded Mervyn Rose, both of Australia.

Cooper, still troubled by a pulled thigh muscle, defeated Joergen Ulrich of Denmark, 9-7, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3. Rose toyed with Brazil's Ronald Barnes, 6-3, 9-7, 6-4. Jarvolav Drobny, 1954 champion from Egypt, bounced one of the second line Aussies, Rod Laver, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4. All were third round matches.

On the other hand Miss Arnold's victory over the touted Miss Truman cleared away perhaps the top obstacle to Althea Gibson in her bid for another championhip. Miss Truman, although only 17, was seeded second and was rated a good chance to win after her tremendous play in leading Britain to its first Wightman Cup victory in 28 years here two weeks ago. Only 18-year-old Maria Bueno of Brazil remains as a serious threat off past form. She defeated Britain's Joan Curry, 6-0, 6-2.

Little Mimi, who said afterwards "I never thought I would lose," broke through Christine's man-like service with a sizzling backhand in the 17th game to set up her first set victory. Miss Truman, known as a slow starter, scored a service break in the first game of the second set and held her own service for a 2-0 lead. Then Mimi rallied, winning the next five games—three on service breaks—for a 5-2 lead.

Bartzen, Reyes Gain Finals In Missouri Valley

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Tut Bartzen of Dallas and Esteban Reyes of Mexico survived rugged semi-final competition Saturday and will meet Sunday for the men's singles title of the Missouri Valley Tennis Tournament.

The 30-year-old Bartzen, rated ninth nationally, stemmed a rash of power shots to defeat fourth-seeded John Powless, Flora, Ill., 6-4, 9-7.

Reyes, highly regarded in Mexico, rallied to turn back veteran Hal Surface of Kansas City, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In women's singles semifinals top-seeded Baby Vivanco, Mexico, defeated Doris Popple, Des Moines 9-7, 6-1. Luccille Davidson, Raytown, Mo., gained the other final berth by beating second-seeded Zoe De Mendoza, Havana, Cuba, 6-0, 10-8.

PHILS VICTIMS, 8-1

Maglie Hurls Card Win; Green Bangs Grand Slam

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — St. Louis rookie Gene Green banged out his first major league grand slam homer and veteran Sal Maglie gave up only five hits Saturday as the Cards trounced Philadelphia 8-1 in a game marked by the season's third major league triple play.

Green's big blow came in the first inning and put the Cards ahead to stay. Don Blasingame tripled to open the inning and Curt Flood singled him home. Stan Musial's double advanced Flood to third and Ken Boyer was issued an intentional walk by loser Curt Simmons. Then Green cut loose with his big hit, his fifth homer of the season.

Here's how the triple play came about:

Flood beat out an infield hit to third. Wally Post dropped a fly by Stan Musial and Ken Boyer lined to second baseman Solly Hemus. Hemus stepped on third to snare Flood and threw to first to nab Musial. The Chicago Cubs and Washington also have executed triple plays this season.

The Cardinals added another run in the fourth and two more in the seventh as Maglie kept the Phils off balance all the way. It was the veteran hurler's second straight win since being purchased from the New York Yankees. The Cards collected a total of 12 hits.

The Cards' sixth run came after Harry Anderson let Eddie Kasko's ground ball get through his legs in the fourth. Kasko advanced to second on a wild pitch and continued to third on a wild throw by Lopata, scoring on another wild pitch.

The final two runs came in the eighth on a single by Hal Smith, Kasko's triple, and a single by Maglie which brought Kasko home.

The Phils' lone score came in the ninth on a homer by Carl Sawatski, his first.

The victory kept the Cards in second place in the National League.

WHIP CUBS, 7-3

Pirates Break Losing Streak

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates put the skids on a seven game losing streak Saturday, thumping the Chicago Cubs 7-3 with the help of a four-run fifth inning.

Bob Skinner's bases-loaded single, an error by shortstop Ernie Banks and Ted Kluszewski's double produced the runs in the fifth. Skinner also drove in the Pirates first run in the first inning with a sacrifice fly after Billy Virdon led off with a triple.

Rookie Curt Raydon won his third game, but needed help from reliever Bob Porterfield. Raydon was lifted in the sixth with two aboard. Porterfield snuffed out the rally by getting Bobby Thomson to hit into a double play.

The Cubs scored single runs in the second, fourth and sixth innings. Thomson, Sammy Taylor and Dale Long drove in one run each with sacrifice flies.

Dick Drott, who started for the Cubs, was the loser. He's now 3-5. Bill Henry, Glenn Hobbie and Dave Hillman also labored for the Cubs.

The Pirates scored their other runs in the fourth and eighth innings. Bob Clemente's sacrifice fly with three aboard counted one in the fourth and Hank Foiles' squeeze bunt scored the other in the eighth.

Cub outfielder Walt Moryn was ejected in the fourth after protesting a call by umpire Ken Burkhart. Moryn complained he was hit by a pitched ball. He continued to complain after striking out and Burkhart thumbed him out.

Boston Signs Missouri Ace For Fat Bonus

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Martin Toft, slugging outfielder of the University of Missouri baseball team, signed Saturday with the Boston Red Sox for a bonus he said was "between $35,000 and $40,000."

Toft said he needs two semesters of work to obtain a degree in industrial psychology and plans to attend the university in the winter.

He is 6-foot-1 and weighs 185.

Toft, who clubbed nine home runs during the season, will report to Allentown of the Class A Eastern League next Tuesday or Wednesday. Red Sox scout Don Lenhardt said Toft is a good hitter, fast with a good arm but "his attitude and determination impressed me most."

Dick Lane Back Under Contract With Grid Cards

A veteran of six professional football campaigns, Lane missed four games last season because of injuries. However, the Cardinals report he has been working out for a month.

Hollywood Gold Cup Race Next For Gallant Man

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man will be flown to the West Coast next week to run in the $100,000-added Hollywood Gold Cup at Hollywood Park July 12, trainer Jimmy Nerud said Saturday.

In his last start two weeks ago, Gallent Man whipped Wheatley Stable's 1957 Hourse of the Year, Bold Ruler, in the $50,000 added Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park.

The decision to send the little Irish-raised flyer West was made just before weights were released for the $75,000 Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park on July 4.

Bold Ruler drew top weight of 134 pounds. The Ruler carried 135 pounds and Gallant Man 130 for the Metropolitan. Gallant Man will carry 130 in the Gold Cup.

Track Doctor Says Jockey Wasn't Drunk

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The track physician at Hollywood Park said Saturday that jockey Jackie Westrope couldn't possibly have been under the influence of liquor when he rode to his death June 19.

Dr. T. H. Haller took sharp exception to a county coroner's report that the dead jockey's bloodstream showed evidence he had been drinking.

"If the coroner's analysis is correct, Westrope would have had to be dead drunk — so drunk he couldn't walk," Haller said.

Westrope was abroad King Rance's Well Away in the feature race at Hollywood Park when the filly crashed into a rail in the stretch.

Westrope was thrown on the rail. He died of internal injuries less than two hours later.

Dr. Haller said the coroner's test, in his opinion, was faulty.

Other track officials also took issue with the accusation that Westrope had been drinking before the fatal ride.

Dr. Harold Kade, autopsy surgeon said: "Our laboratory never has been inaccurate in its work."

Touring Yank Thinclads Top Swiss Squad

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP)—A touring American track and field team easily swept all events at an international meet Saturday against a Swiss team that included three Hungarian exiles.

The most dramatic moment came in the last event, the 200-meter dash, which Ray Norton of Oakland, Calif., won despite a severe leg cramp through the last 80 yards.

Norton, co-holder of the world 100-meter record, had a big lead over the rest of the field when he suddenly grasped his right upper thigh in pain.

He continued running with his face twisted with pain and his hand still on his thigh. He managed to hold on to the lead and won in 22.2 seconds, two yards in front of Robert Harder of Switzerland.

A physician who examined Norton immediately after the race said the cramp probably was caused by an ice cold wind which blew across the field.

Tom Courtney of Livingston, N.J., won the 800 meters in 1:48.2 equally after being led for the first 400 meters by Hungarian exile Laszlo Tanay.

PHILS GET TRIPLE PLAY — Solly Hemus, second baseman, throws to first in time to catch Stan Musial for the third out of a triple play yesterday at Philadelphia. Curt Flood, St. Louis center fielder, was out at second for the second out after Hemus caught a line drive off the bat on Ken Boyer and stepped on the bag. Shortstop Chico Fernandez backs up Hemus races back toward first. The play was in vain. The Phils lost, 8-1. (AP Wirephoto)

COLLEGIATE GOLF

Konsek, Rodgers Meet For Crown

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. (AP)—John Konsek, a wispy 18-year-old walloper from Purdue, and Phil Rodgers, a solid and stolied 20-year-old from Houston, Saturday reached the finals of the National Collegiate Golf Tournament in a pair of contrasting matches.

Konsek, the Big Ten champion, had to go 34 pressure packed holes on the hilly, 6,530-yard Taconic Course before he eliminated Bob Pratt, one of Rodgers Houston teammates. Rodgers breezed to an 8 and 6 victory over shaky, wild-swinging Art Hall of Oklahome State.

Konsek and Rodgers will meet Sunday in a 36-hole final on the par 35-36—71 course at Williams College which could be about as good a match as amateurs will play this season.

Rodgers from LaJolla, Calif., was good enough last year to reach the quarter-finals of the National Amateur. And with the exception of Konsek he has been regarded as the class of the 300-man field which started this tournament.

Konsek, a quietly confident young man from Buffalo, N.Y., has been hoping all week that he'd get a crack at the better-known Rodgers in the final.

Off Saturday's showing, Konsek might appear to have the edge. He shot a three-under-par 68 on the morning round and led Pratt only one up. He went out in 33 in the afternoon to add one hole to his lead, and finished approximately four under par for the day.

Rodgers, on the other hand, just had to play for pars and let Hall beat himself. He had a morning 72 to lead five up and was exactly even with pars when the match ended at the 30th.

Hall won two of the first four holes and then took only three more all day. Before the end he was spraying his irons shots wildly, scrambling for pars and looking as if he would be glad when it was over.

Pratt, after losing three of the first four holes, gave Konsek a tussle all the way. He had a charitable 69 in the morning and never was more than two down from the seventh hole through the 27th.

Konsek holed a nine foot birdie putt at the 28th and gained an apparently safe four up lead when Pratt went into the rough and a trap at the 29th. Then he began to tire, shot three bogeys in a row and couldn't end the match until the 34th. There Pratt's approach hit Konsek's ball on the green and skittered off to the fringe. He failed to run in a 30-foot putt, then Johnny calmly knocked in a 12-footer for a winning birdie.

"Rodgers is one of the best players in the country in my book," Konsek said afterward. "But I'd sure like to take that loving cup home and I think I can do it if I don't get tired again."

BRILLIANT FIELD

Ferrari Earns Post Position In Monza

MONZA, Italy (AP)—A new 12-cylinder Ferrari driven by Luigi Musso of Italy Saturday won the post position for Sunday's Monza 500-mile race against a brilliant field of Indianapolis aces and American cars.

Trial run speeds of up to 175 miles an hour promised that Monza would again make Indianapolis records in the 130s and 140s look slow.

Argentina's world champion Juan Manuel Fangio hit 172 miles an hour in the American car which won the Monza race last year, and tied for third in the trials.

There still were last minute contract problems which might cut Fangio out of the race by starting time at noon Sunday, but he made clear that he is anxious to drive.

The race is the long advertised showdown between American aces and the best drivers from the South American and European circuits. Last year the Europeans refused the challenge. They boycotted the race, calling the superspeed track too dangerous.

Musso, earning the pole position, averaged 174.7 m.p.h. for three laps with a fastest lap of 174.76. Bob Veit of Oakland, Calif., averaged 173.3 in his Bowes Seal Fast Special but the car came out of the trial with a collapsed piston, making Vieth a doubtful starter.

Other qualifying times included: Jim Rathmann, Miami, Fla., Zink Leader Card Special, 170.6; Johnny Thompson, Center Valley, Pa., D-A Lubricant Special, 167.5; Roger Ward, Los Angeles, Wolcott Fuel Injection Special, 167; Troy Ruttman, La Mirada, Calif., Agajanian Special, 166.8; Stirling Moss, Britain, Maserati ElDorado, 164.4; Ray Crawford, Pasadena, Calif., Maguire Mirro Glaze Special, 163.9; Jimmy Reece, Speedway, Ind., Hoyt Machine Special, 163.6.

Musso also qualified another Farrari—a six cylinder test model. The Italian drove it at 161.1 m.p.h. It probably will be driven Sunday by Mike Hawthorn of Britain and Phil Hill of Los Angeles.

Britain's Jack Fairman qualified a Jaguar single seater at 153 m.p.h. Harry Schell, an American living in Paris, hit 152.6 m.p.h. with a Ferrari, which was entered in the 1957 Indianapolis race but failed to qualify for that event.

France's Maurice Trintignant qualified an American Sclavi and Amos racer at 160.59 while Masten Gregory of Kansas City did 159.1 in a Jaguar.

TRUMAN UPSET

Arnold Leads 6-American Wimbledon Net Advance

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP)—Tiny Mimi Arnold of Redwood City, Calif. upset British Amazon Christine Truman Saturday and keyed a six-player American advance through another round at the rain-splashed Wimbledon Tennis Championships.

Miss Arnold, just 19, standing 5-1 and weighing barely 100 pounds, outplayed, outdrove and outvolleyed her 6-foot, 172-pound opponent who became Britain's tennis idol after her victory over New York's Althea Gibson in the Wightman Cup matches two weeks ago. The core was 10-8, 6-3.

The center court battle brightened American prestige considerably on another gray, drizzly day that also saw the advance of Althea Gibson, the defending women's champion, and Barry McKay of Dayton, Ohio chief American hope in the men's single.

Althea Gibson, playing well within herself, joined Miss Arnold in the quarter-final with a 6-0, 6-4 victory over Lorraine Coghlan of Australia. Mrs. Margaret Osborne du Pont of Wilmington, Del., only other U.S. survivor in women's play, won a third round match from Australia's Norma Marsh 6-3, 3-6, 8-6. Eighth-seeded Karol Fageros of Miami fell before Britain's Pat Ward, 2-6 6-4, 6-4.

MacKay, former champion Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Paris, and 44-year-old Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla. stepped up to the fourth round in men's single.

MacKay, trailing Australian Bob Mark 4-6, 8-8 when rain intervened Friday, played spottily but well enough to win 4-6 10-8 6-4, 6-4. Mulloy eliminated 21-year-old Mike Green of Miami Beach, Fla., 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2. Patty completed a rain - delayed match with Torben Ulrich of Denmark, 4-6, 7-5, 6-1, 6-2.

Other men's favorites moved along with little effort, including third-seeded Mervyn Rose, both of Australia.

Cooper, still troubled by a pulled thigh muscle, defeated Joergen Ulrich of Denmark, 9-7, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3. Rose toyed with Brazil's Ronald Barnes, 6-3, 9-7, 6-4. Jarvolav Drobny, 1954 champion from Egypt, bounced one of the second line Aussies, Rod Laver, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4. All were third round matches.

On the other hand Miss Arnold's victory ower the touted Miss Truman cleared away perhaps the top obstacle to Althea Gibson in her bid for another championhip. Miss Truman, although only 17, was seeded second and was rated a good chance to win after her tremendous play in leading Britain to its first Wightman Cup victory in 28 years here two weeks ago. Only 18-year-old Maria Bueno of Brazil remains as a serious threat of past form. She defeated Britain's Joan Curry, 6-0, 6-2.

Little Mimi, who said afterwards "I never thought I would lose," broke through Christine's man-like service with a sizzling backhand in the 17th game to set up her first set victory. Miss Truman, known as a slow starter, scored a service break in the first game of the second set and held her own service for a 2-0 lead. Then Mimi rallied, winning the next five games—three on service breaks—for a 5-2 lead.

Bartzen, Reyes Gain Finals In Missouri Valley

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Tut Bartzen of Dallas and Esteban Reyes of Mexico survived rugged semifinal competition Saturday and will meet Sunday for the men's singles title of the Missouri Valley Tennis Tournament.

The 30-year-old Bartzen, rated ninth nationally, stemmed a rash of power shots to defeat fourth-seeded John Powless, Flora, Ill., 6-4, 9-7.

Reyes, highly regarded in Mexico, rallied to turn back veteran Hal Surface of Kansas City, 2-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In women's singles semifinals top-seeded Baby Vivanco, Mexico, defeated Doris Popple, Des Moines 9-7, 6-1. Luccille Davidson, Raytown, Mo., gained the other final berth by beating second-seeded Zoe De Mendoza, Havana, Cuba, 6-0, 10-8.

WILLEY 4-HITTER

Braves Finally Overcome Torments Of Dodgers, 7-3

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The pace setting Milwaukee Braves, with nothing to show for seven games with the lowly Dodgers except defeat, finally turned on their tormentors Saturday to hammer out a resounding 7-3 victory. Rookie right-hander Carl Willey went the distance as he limited Los Angeles to four hits.

It was Willey's second straight major league victory. He shut out San Francisco 7-0 in his debut last Monday.

The Braves backed up Willey with an 11-hit attack that included homers by Johnny Logan and Henry Aaron. The Dodgers used four pitchers, starting with left-hander Johnny Podres, who failed to last a full inning, but suffered his 7th loss against 7 defeats.

Willey got stronger as the game wore on, having his principal trouble from Gil Hodges. The big Dodger first sacker lined a sacrifice fly with the bags loaded in the opening frame to drive in one run, and crashed his 12th homer with none on in the sixth, a shot into the left field bleachers. Willey went along nicely then until the ninth when the Dodgers scored an unearned run. This came on a throw by Ed Mathews that hit Dick Gray who was trying to score from third on a bunt.

Podres yielded two singles, three walks and forced in two runs before right-hander Johnny Klippstein came to his rescue.

Logan slammed his eighth homer over the left field fence in the fifth.

The Braves landed on Erskine and Fred Kipp for two more runs in the eighth. With two on and two out, and Kipp pitching, Frank Torre singled home one run and when Don Zimmer fumbled Andy Pafko's grounder, Aaron scored from third.

Lepcio Homers For Bosox Win

By JERRY GREEN

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Lepcio, who was hitting below .200, smashed a pinch-hit home run in the 12th inning Saturday, giving the Boston Red Sox a 6-5 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Bob "Riverboat" Smith, a rookie southpaw gained his fourth victory with three innings of relief work. Twice he retired the Tigers, leaving two runners stranded.

The loss dropped the Tigers back into a tie for third place with the Red Sox.

Jensen clouted two home runs—his 21st and 22nd of the season—and accounted for four of the Red Sox's tallies. They came in successive times at bat off starter Jim Bunning and reliever Herman Wehmeier.

Jensen now has hit six homers on the Red Sox's current road trip and is one under his output of all last season. The American League home run leader hit 26 in his best season of 1955.

But the Red Sox tied the score in the fourth as Gene Stephens, subbing for the ill Ted Williams, singled home Marty Keough, who had walked and stole second.

The Tigers narrowed the gap to 4-3 in the bottom of the sixth when they scored two unearned runs after Don Buddin misplayed a doubleplay grounder. Jensen cracked his second homer with none on in the top of the eighth and Al Kaline tied it 5-5 with a two-run blast into the right field seats in the bottom half of the inning.

Williams, who complained of a headache, was used as a pinch hitter in the ninth and struck out.

Grid Bears Sign Veteran Tackles

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bears Saturday announced the signing of two veteran tackles and halfback Jim Swink, former Texas Christian star.

Veterans Fred Williams and Bill Bishop signed for their seventh National Football League contracts while Swink will be making his debut in professional circles.

Swink led the nation in scoring in 1955 and completed his collegiate career in 1956. He was the Bears' No. 2 draft choice but did not compete last season because of medical studies.

TWO EXTREMES

Nutria Spreading As Shrimp Decline

By SAM HANNA

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special) —Two of Louisiana's major wildlife problems—the rapidly spreading nutria and the deminishing shrimp population—have come into f[illegible]s of the current legislature.

While North Louisiana sportsmen are primarily interested in proposed laws concerning upland game and fish, nutria and shrimp are of importance to all Louisianaians.

And strangely enough, they are of chief concern in the state today because of two entirely different reasons.

Director F. Lamar Clement, Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commissioner, appeared pleased during the past week with the progress of a major shrimp bill.

"It's the first time we've had any type of law concerning shrimp that will stand up," Clement said in commenting on the legislature's passage of a bill that will send all shrimp law violators to district court.

But Clements, on the contrary, was unhappy with a bill reported favorably by the Fish and Game Committee that will outlaw nutria, the South American rodent that is literally eating up the marshes.

With a population increase from a lonely six to approximately eleven million, it would seem natural that to outlaw nutria is the proper solution to reducing his numbers.

But Clement pointed out that the South Louisiana fur market will take a dip because of the bill, which, and most important, will eliminate the incentive to kill the rodent.

Nutria have become such a problem in the marshes in Louisiana's coastal parishes that many rabbit hunters lose their beagles to the water-living rat, Clement explained.

"I want to cut the nutria down in population," Clement said. "And I hope I'm not misunderstood in saying to outlaw the nutria is not the proper solution."

He agreed that there is a possibility that the nutria problem could spread in North Louisiana. Nutria already have been seen on some North Louisiana lakes.

Touching on the shrimp bill, Clement said it was similar to the commission's measure to send all game law violators to district court.

Justice of the Peace officers levy fines in many parishes now, but the new law will prohibit the violator from being taken to a JP office.

Clement attributed the decline of Louisiana's shrimp population to a co..bination of several different factors, including pollution, violators, canals and over-fishing.

Nutria and shrimp are merely two examples of serious problems facing the Louisiana sportsman and his commission.

Molly Pitcher Handicap Goes To Searching

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP) — Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Searching, under top weight of 120 pounds, circled the leaders entering the stretch and won the $28,850 Molly Pitcher Handicap for fillies and mares Saturday at Monmouth Park.

Overlooked by the crowd of 26,-925, the 6-year-old bay mare by War Admiral returned $14.20, $8.40 and $5.60. Under the veteran Harold "Red" Keene, she ran the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track in 1:44 1-5.

George D. Widener's Rare Treat second to Manotick in this race a year ago, closed from last place to be a length and a half behind the winner and a length and a quarter in advance of Pardala.

Searching, saddled by Hirsch Jacobs, picked up $18,452.50.

Willie Hartack, Monmouth's leading rider, scored his third riding triple of the meeting. He won both sections of the $19 daily double, and the fifth, astride Manticora, who paid $21.60.

Mr. Jr. Easily Wins Bay State Race By Length

BOSTON (AP)—Mr. Jr., owned and bred by Oklahoman Everett Lowrance, went to the front early and scampered to a length victory Saturday in the $10,000-added Bay State Kindergarten Stakes before a spring meeting windup crowd of 2,836 at Suffolk Downs.

The 2-year-old brown gelding by Everett Jr.-Black Beauty easily held off a closing drive by John Gibson's Sun Better in the 5-furlong test for juveniles. True Davis' Sin-Jex, the 7-10 favorite, was a distant third.

Mr. Jr. paid $9, $4.60 and $2.80. Sun Better paid $7.40 and $3, Sin-Jex returned $2.20 to show.

The closing day crowd wagered a total of $1,455,988, boosting the daily average for the 36-day meeting to $934,658. It marked the first time a spring meeting average has gone over $900,000 since 1947. Last year's average for a 35-day meet was $895,377.

LAST AT-FINAL TURN

Cavan Rallies For Win In Richards

STANTON, Del. (AP) — Irish-bred Cavan, last of 11 starters at the final turn, came up fast and outdistanced the entire field Saturday to win the $47,900 Leonard Richards Stakes at Delaware Park.

Cavan took the $35,000 first money by two lengths, running the mile and a furlong in 1:49 2-5 and returning $3.00, $2.60 and $2.20 to his backers.

The conqueror of Derby and Preakness winner Tim Tam in the Belmont Stakes, Cavan appeared slightly lame as he headed for the winner's circle. Jockey Pete Anderson dismounted before the Richards Trophy, named for the late Delaware Racing Commission chairman, was presented to Cavan's owner, retired Boston banker Joseph E. O'Connell. Trailer Tom Barry said the injury to Cavan's left foot did not appear to be serious.

Piano Jim, owned by Walter M. Jeffords, was second and returned $4.60 and $2.80. Two lengths back was Windfield Farm's Grey Monarch, who paid $3.80.

Cavan, a 1 to 2 favorite with the crowd of 21,222, made his big move in the home stretch from several lengths behind and sped along the inside as he overtook the rest of the field.

Track veterinarian Dr. Arthur P. Mayer examined Cavan after the race and said there was a slight pulsation in Cavan's left ankle. He said he planned to treat the horse with cold packs, and added Cavan was walking "just about normally."

Trainer Barry said, "I think he'll be alright tomorrow. Anderson told Barry he believed Can may have stepped on some hard object at the five-eighths pole.

Anderson, praising his mount, said:

"Cavan is the biggest-hearted Horse I ever sat on. He's as big as Delaware Park." Barry said the race was run "just the way I thought and hoped it would be."

Palmer Increases Lead To 5 Strokes In Long Island

By WHITNEY MARTIN

EAST NORWICH, N.Y. (AP)—With 18 more holes to go, Arnold Palmer apparently had the $9,000 first prize in the $50,000 Long Island Open Golf Tournament wrapped up in a neat package Saturday.

The muscular, placid young man from Latrobe, Pa., added a four under par 67 Saturday to bring his three-round total to 202. He now holds a five-stroke lead and the steady manner in which he has been playing indicates he won't fall flat on his putter the final round, which he would have to do to lose.

He increased his lead by two strokes Saturday. Jimmy DeMaret of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., had trailed him by three strokes at the end of Friday's round. But Jimmy took a one-over-par 72 to drop eight strokes behind.

It was the unassuming Ted Kroll who climbed to the runner-up spot..Kroll, playing out of Sarasota, Fla., matched Palmer's 67, thanks to a spectacular 30 on the home nine.

Don Fairfield, in the 139 bracket at the end of two rounds, took over third place alone, shooting a 70. The Casey, Ill., player had a first round 73, and a 66 in the second round.

Six players shared the 210 bracket—Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., Ken Venturi of San Francisco; Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va.; Demaret and Henry Ransom of St. Andrews Ill. Rosburg, Venturi and Snead all had 68s as the field began to solve the rough greens.

Canadian Stan Leonard and Cary Middlecoff, playing out of Hollywood, Fla., also had 67s, a discouraging situation in that they failed to gain an inch on the high-flying leader.

The leaders:

Arnold Palmer	66-69-67—202
Ted Kroll	69-71-67—207
Don Fairfield	73-66-70—209

2ND TOP WINNER

Round Table In Arch Ward Romp

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—Round Table, racing's only active millionaire thoroughbred, romped to victory Saturday in the $36,050 Arch Ward Memorial Handicap to gain second place in the all-time money winning list.

The victory, Round Table's 22nd in his last 24 starts, was worth $33,000 and boosted his earnings to $1,090,014. He surpassed Citation who earned $1,085,760 and is second only to Nashua who has earned $1,288,565.

Willie Shoemaker kept Round Table, owned by Travis M. Kerr, within range as Aysha, one of three horses entered by Hasty House Farms, set the pace. Round Table took the lead after turning into the home stretch and finished the 1 3-16 miles race on Washington's Park's turf in 1:54 4-5 seconds. The time was one-fifth of a second slower than the track record set by Swaps in 1955 and matched by Hoop Band in 1957.

Tall Chief II, Round Table's running mate owned by William G. Gilmore, finished second. One length behind him was Aysha, the early pace setter. The entry of Round Table and Tall Chief II paid $2.60 $3.40 and $2.20. Aysha returned $2.20.

Second place was worth $10,000 third place $7,500 and Shan Pac took the $5,000 fourth money.

After the race, Shoemaker said, "Round Table ran a big race today, a good one. No, I wasn't especially worried about Aysha getting out in front. Round Table just simply galloped off the lead and when he had to make his move, he did."

Round Table, a 4-year-old last year voted the nation's No. 1 grass horse, has never been beaten in six grass starts. The victory was another in a string of stake triumphs he has been compiling this year.

Among his stakes wins are the Santa Anita and Gulfstream Park Handicap's and the Santa Anita Maturity.

Also this year, Round Table has set four records and equalled a fifth. The Ward Memorial was his 11th start of the year. He has won 10 and finished second once.

Annie-Lu-San Wins Vanity With Skuse Up

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Five - year - old Annie-Lu - San scored a repeat victory in the $38,700 Vanity Handicap at Hollywood Park Saturday, defeating 11 other mares and fillies for the mythical lady-horse championship of the meeting.

Ridden ably by jockey Bill Skuse, Annie-Lu-San hit the wire more than a length in front of a long shot, Ballet Khal, with Summer Story third.

Born Rich, the favorite, ran well out of the money and was never a threat in the mile and one eighth feature.

Annie - Lu - San, who won the event last year, was the second choice of the crowd of 44,750.

The time was 1:50 flat.

Annie-Lu-San returned $8.20 $5.00 and $3.40. Ballet Khal $15 even and $7.20 and Summer Story $3.60.

Annie-Lu-San, was beaten by the Poltex Stable's Born Rich in the recent Milady Handicap, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Rogers.

Massey, George Curtis To Meet

Massey beat Christy in straight falls in a state title contest last week but district athletic commissioner Dave Silverstein declared the match "no contest" because of Al's rough tactics. Al and George will tangle Monday over the 90-minute or less route with two falls to win.

"Curtis and Strong are the Southeastern tag team champions," says promoter Gus Kallio, "and this will be a title match."

"He looks something like Gorgeous George," says Kallio.

The relay fray will have an hour time limit with two falls to win. Loy Scarborough will referee all the bouts.

George Curtis has been wanting a shot at Massey for sometime and had hoped to meet him in a title bout when it appeared Al had beaten Christy last week. However, Silverstein's ruling knocked that out so tomorrow night's match will be a regular bout.

George, long one of the best wrestlers in this area, has had tough luck in his quest for the Louisiana state crown. He came closest against Frank Hurley several months ago but lost three straight bouts, all of them close, to the Australian.

RALLY IN 9TH

Tribe Noses Out Orioles, 6 To 5

CLEVELAND (AP)—Vic Power doubled and J. W. Porter singled home the winning run in the ninth inning Saturday giving the Cleveland Indians a 6-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. The Tribe continued the winning habit for new Manager Joe Gordon, again using the formula of late inning rallies.

Gordon went up three pinch hitters who drove in as many runs.

The Indians wiped out a 5-2 deficit with two runs in the sixth inning and single runs in the eighth and ninth frames. It was the second victory for the Tribe under Gordon, and like Friday night, they won it 6-5. Don Mossi won his second straight in relief, to give the lanky southpaw a 6-6 mark.

The Orioles scored three runs in the first inning for Billy Loes, in search of his first victory after seven losses. Lenny Green drove in two of the markers with a bases-loaded single.

The Indians countered with two runs in the second inning on singles by Minnie Minoso and Porter, a hit batsmen and a wild pitch.

Baltimore made it 4-2 in the fifth on a double by Al Pilarcik, who moved to third on a long fly and scored on a wild pitch by Jim Grant.

The Orioles added another run in the sixth. Billy Gardner doubled, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on Bob Boyd's deep fly to center.

The Indians rallied for two runs in the sixth. Held's double followed a walk to Porter. Then pinch hitter Larry Doby delivered one run with a sacrifice fly and Russ Nixon, also a pinch hitter, drilled a single to center, scoring Held.

Bob Lemon, another pinch hitter, knocked in the tying run in the eighth with a single following another double by Held.

Huskie Crew Goes Against Russian Oars

HENLEY ON THAMES, Eng. (AP)—The University of Washington crew will make its first appearance in the Royal Henley Regatta against a formidable Russian crew, the Trud (Labor) Club of Leningrad.

Russians and the Washington eight were brought together in the draw Saturday. The Regatta starts Wednesday. The race is Thursday. The winner will meet the London Rowing Club in a semifinal Friday.

On the other side of the Grand Challenge Cup draw, the Leichhardt Rowing Club of Australia, will meet the Thames Rowing Club of London in the first heat.

In the first heat of the Thames Challenge Cup races the Harvard University lightweight eight will meet a relatively obscure British eight, the Twickenham Rowing Club, on Wednesday.

Kent School of Kent Conn., drew The First and Third Trinity Boat Club of Cambridge. If both American crews win they will meet in the second round.

In the Thames Cup competition, Washington-Lee High School of Arlington, Va., drew a bye. The Virginians will have to meet the winner of a first heat race between the Garda Siochana Boat Club of Dublin and Emmanuel College of Cambridge.

Thomas McDonough, Philadelphia sculler, will meet M. E. Gaylord of Britain's Imperial College Boat Club in the first heat of the Diamond Sculls.

OLD TIMERS AT BRIGGS STADIUM —Mickey Cochran left, and Ty Cobb had a lot to talk about when the former diamond greats appeared at Briggs Stadium in Detroit yesterday for Old Timers' Day. IT WAS A TIE

Oldtime Red Sox, Tigers Meet Again On Diamond

DETROIT (AP)—Lefty Grove, who won 300 major league games, wore a Boston Red Sox uniform and went to the pitching mound again Saturday.

The immortal Ty Cobb, who won a dozen batting championships as a Detroit Tiger, revisited the ball park he knew as Navin Field.

Six other Red Sox and Tiger members of the Hall of Fame and a host of former diamond greats took part in Detroit's Oldtimers' Day.

The entire starting line-up of the Tigers' first world championship team of 1935 was back. Manager Mickey Cochrane was behind the plate in the two-inning game between the old Red Sox and the old Tigers. Fittingly they battled to a 1-1 tie while baseball rules were regarded lightly.

Joe Cronin and Jimmie Foxx were back in the Red Sox line-up.

But it was light-hitting Jo Jo White from the 1934-35 Detroit pennant winners, who provided the big thrill in the short game.

White belted one of Grove's offerings on a line into the lower right field seats. He trotted around the bases shaking hands with Red Sox and umpire alike as he went.

"They must be throwing golf balls nowadays," White said. "I hit a home run off Grove. Ask him."

The Red Sox scored a first-inning run off Tommy Bridges, Schoolboy Rowe and under-armer Eldon Auker, all from the 1934-35 Tigers.

"You go in there next inning," said Greenberg. "My gosh, second base has gotten awfully far away."

It was York who succeeded Greenberg as Tiger first sacker on the 1940 pennant winner. Greenberg then became an outfielder.

Cobb didn't get into uniform but drew a tremendous ovation when introduced.

"I wouldn't trust myself out there," he said. "I'm a small town country boy from a little town with a 2,800 population and I'm 71. So if I walk out there slowly, it's these old bones."

Red God Beats Foul Claim To Take Roseben

NEW YORK (AP) — Cain Hoy Stable's Red God scored an easy 4-length triumph in the $27,700 Roseben Handicap at Belmont Park Saturday.

The crowd of 33,322 established Cohoes as the 6-5 favorite in the 7-furlong sprint, and Red God, a stakes winner in England as a 2-year-old, paid $30.90 as the second longest price in the field of six.

Jockey Conn McCreary took a pound off his usual riding weight to make the 107 pounds on Red God, who was winning his first American stakes since. McCreary broke Red God in fourth place, moved the son of Nasrullah to the lead in the run down the backstretch and widened his lead from there to the finish to be timed in 1:22 3-5, just a second off Bold Ruler's track mark.

Montpellier's Nahodah, the topweight of the starters with 114 pounds, was third, another 4 lengths behind Cohoes. Howell E. Jackson's Tick Tock, second choice at 8-5, was fourth, Bunny's Babe and The Crack completed the small field in the 19th running of the Roseben.

A great deal had been expected of Red God when he returned from England in the fall of 1956 after winning the Richmond takes abroad.

The chestnut colt, raised on Guggenheim's estate at Sands Point, L. I., was established as one of the favorites for the 3-year-old classics last year. But Red God suffered a severely bruised foot early last year and was unable to return to the races until June, when injuries again forced him to the sidelines until this season. Guggenheim, who races his horses as the Cain Hoy Stable, received a purse of $17,705.

Deep Oil Well Seen For Miss.

The venture is the Board of Supervisors No. 1-3, sec. 16-6n-8s, in the Mallalieu field of Lincoln County.

The well was drilled to 16,604 feet and production casing was set to 16,242 feet. The test is from perforations below 16,100-31 feet.

Arkansas Fuel Oil Corp. is cor-going below 13,480-feet in the potential new oil field find, the Womack No. 1, sec. 35-1n-1e, in Smith County, four miles east of Magee.

The well is in the top of the Hosston sand that is productive at Raleigh and Maitinville fields.

Texas Co. is scheduled to run a second test of the recently discovered Boykin Church field of Smith County.

Operators have staked location for the board of supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-3n-7e, offset to the discovery well.

The second venture is scheduled to be drilled to 11,000 feet in search of Rodessa sand.

Larco Drilling Co. is below 12,-100 feet in the Jones County wildcat Whittington No. 1, sec. 4-9n-11w. No shows have been logged at 12,016-30 feet.

The well has logged several oil shows below 10,000 feet and several appear possible for commercial production.

The well is two miles southeast of the sharon gas condensate field.

In south Rankin County, Monsanto Chemical Co. is below 7,600 feet in the wildcat Rathell No.1, Cato. The venture is scheduled to be drilled to 13,500 feet.

Jett Drilling Co. has abandoned the wildcat Hauberg No. A-1, sec. 3-7n-4e in north Rankin County after logging no shows to a depth of 7,510 feet.

In Clarke County's shallow Langsdale field, Thurber, Kennington and Miller are below 4,-000 feet in the Long Bell No. 1, sec. 24-1n-173. Contract depth is 10,000 feet.

Perkins Ballew completed the Covington No. 3, sec. 35-5n-8e in the Little Creek field of Lincoln County. The well flowed 535 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 10,720-61 feet.

Sinclair Oil and Gas Co. logged oil sand in the Jeffreys No. 1, sec. 2-4n-83 in the Lincoln County side of Little Creek field.

Cotton Is Higher For Past Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures prices followed an irregular course this week and closed with all deliveries in higher territory.

The market strengthened on price fixing and short covering, and on buying prompted by expectations of a record high support price for the 1958 crop. Toward the close, the distant months were aided by the action of the U.S. House of Representatives in rejecting the omnibus farm bill.

On Friday the nearby July contract firmed on lack of notices.

Offerings were furnished through profit taking and some light hedge selling. The market eased late in the week on evening up operations prior to expected U.S. Senate consideration Monday of a farm bill submitted by the House Agriculture Committee.

Traders took in stride the U.S. Agriculture Department's announcement Friday that the mid-June cotton parity was 38.55 cents a pound. The decrease from the May figure of 38.68 cents was just about what brokers had expected.

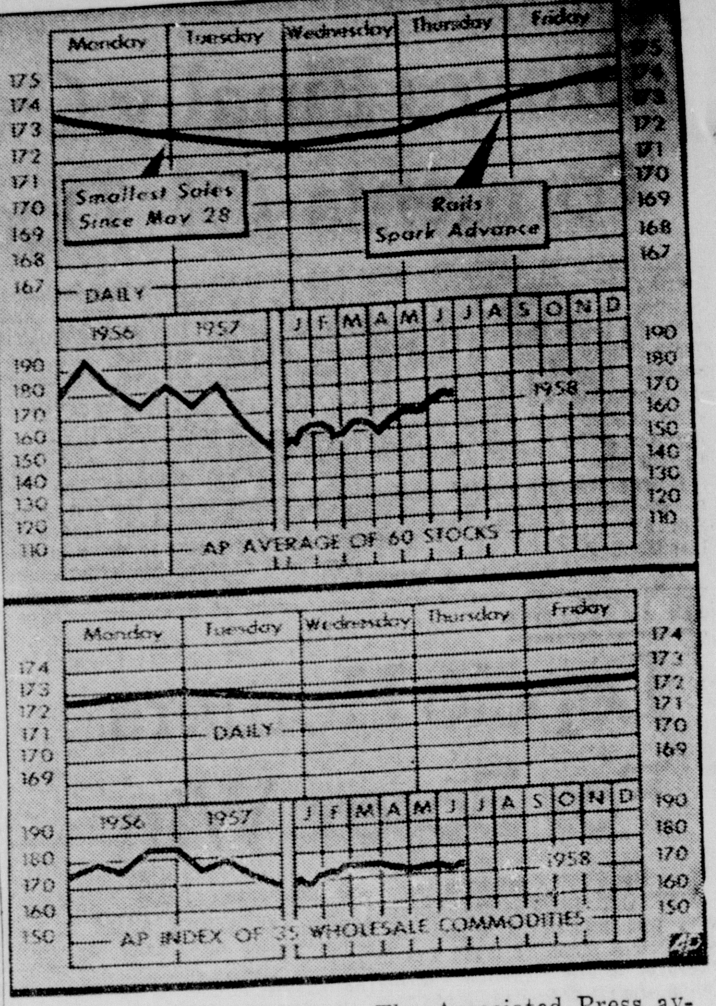
Average price received by farmers in mid-June was 29.09 cents a pound vs. 38.68 cents a pound in May and 37.06 cents last June. It was noted that if parity at the end of the season is the same as now, and if the support price for next season is no higher than 81 per cent of parity, a loan rate on middling one-inch cotton at average location of 35.08 cents a pound would be in prospect.

Domestic cotton traders are looking forward expectantly to the issuance July 8 of the first official statement on acreage planted for the 1958 crop. Consensus is that the report will show acreage in cultivation as of July 1 totaling about 12,250,000 acres vs. 14,066,000 a year ago.

If abandonment is about average, the harvested acreage may be the smallest since the 11,747,-000 acres recorded in 1876.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 105,-000 bales vs. 104,000 the previous week and 120,000 in the like week last year.

Exports for the season through June 24 were estimated at 5,268,-000 bales vs. 7,087,000 bales at approximately the same time last year.



STOCK AVERAGE UP — The Associated Press average to 174.3 from 173.8 a week ago. The 172.6 from 172.7 in the preceding period. Grains showed the biggest loss. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

1ST HALF OF '58

Stock Market Shows Advance

The market has now won back about 60 per cent of the losses suffered in the sharp decline from last July to the Oct. 22 low.

Although corporate earnings were slashed and dividends cut or omitted by many firms, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange rose an estimated 30 billion dollars, based on stock exchange figures and the rise in The Associated Press average.

In the past week the market consolidated recent gains to new 1958 highs. The AP stock average managed a 50 cent gain to $174.30, not much below this year's top of $175.40.

The market declined on the first two days and rose on the last three. The lower-priced stocks and more speculative issues were favored as the blue chips rested.

The six-months upsurge in the face of poor "fundamentals"—the lower earnings and dividends—bred a large army of skeptics on Wall Street. They regard present stock prices as "unrealistic." They've backed this opinion with their money, creating the largest short interest since the exchange began recording this in May 1951.

The short sellers are betting on a sizable market decline. Their short sales are a record 5,795,105 shares. This represents the sale of borrowed stock which the "shorts" hope to repay through future purchases at lower prices, thus making profits.

Wheat Prices Up Slightly During Week

CHICAGO (AP)—This was the week when wheat futures prices were expected to be under increasing selling pressure that buyers would be hard to find.

They weren't.

On the contrary, prices increased slightly in the face of the largest winter wheat crop of record now being harvested, and commercial buying at week's end was the heaviest it had been in many weeks.

Corn and oats also came through the week with small gains but rye, which had been firm recently, slipped a bit and soybeans finished with some fractional changes both in the September delivery. It moved up as below a week ago except in the as much as a cent a bushel.

Wheat closed the week ½ - 2 cents a bushel higher, July $1.85 ¼-⅜; corn 1-1⅝ higher, July $1.34 - 34¼; oats ⅝ - 1¼ higher, July 63⅜; rye ½-⅜ lower, July $1.27; soybeans ⅜ lower to ½ higher, July $2.24¼ ⅜; lard 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds lower, July $12.20.

The firmness in wheat first was derived from reports of excessive rainfall in the winter crop areas and a slow up in the harvest which now is moving toward its peak in the major producing state of Kansas.

Corporate And Gov't Bonds Show Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate and U.S. government bonds declined this week but this could not dim a solid rise by both markets in the first half of 1958.

The Federal Reserve's continued easing of credit curbs, lower interest rates and the business recession were underlying factors.

The government bond market, in particular, staged a sensational spring surge that attracted investors from the stock market. In June, long range bonds slipped back sharply from their April highs. That heavy concentration of speculative interest contributed, one leading treasury bond analysis say, to the sharpest losses of the year in government securities a fortnight ago.

AT KALLIO'S

Massey, George Curtis To Meet

Al Massey, current public enemy No. 1 at Kallio's Arena, will try to get another shot at state wrestling champion Jerry Christy with a win over George Curtis in tomorrow's main event on the local mat.

Massey beat Christy in straight falls in a state title contest last week but district athletic commissioner Dave Silverstein declared the match "no contest" because of Al's rough tactics. Al and George will tangle Monday over the 90-minute or less route with two falls to win.

"Curtis and Strong are the Southeastern tag team champions," says promoter Gus Kallio, "and this will be a title match."

"He looks something like Gorgeous George," says Kallio.

The relay fray will have an hour limit with two falls to win. Loy Scarborough will referee all the bouts.

George Curtis has been wanting a shot at Massey for sometime and had hoped to meet him in a title bout when it appeared Al had beaten Christy last week. However, Silverstein's ruling knocked that out so tomorrow night's match will be a regular bout.

George, long one of the best wrestlers in this area, has had tough luck in his quest for the Louisiana state crown. He came closest against Frank Hurley several months ago but lost three straight bouts, all of them close, to the Australian.

RALLY IN 9TH

Tribe Noses Out Orioles, 6 To 5

CLEVELAND (AP)—Vic Power doubled and J. W. Porter singled home the winning run in the ninth inning Saturday giving the Cleveland Indians a 6-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. The Tribe continued the winning habit for new Manager Joe Gordon, again using the formula of late inning rallies.

Gordon went up three pinch hitters who drove in as many runs.

The Indians wiped out a 5-2 deficit with two runs in the sixth inning and single runs in the eighth and ninth frames. It was the second victory for the Tribe under Gordon, and like Friday night, they won it 6-5. Don Mossi won his second straight in relief, to give the lanky southpaw a 6-6 mark.

The Orioles scored three runs in the first inning for Billy Loes, in search of his first victory after seven losses. Lenny Green drove in two of the markers with a bases-loaded single.

The Indians countered with two runs in the second inning on singles by Minnie Minoso and Porter, a hit batsmen and a wild pitch.

Baltimore made it 4-2 in the fifth on a double by Al Pilarcik, who moved to third on a long fly and scored on a wild pitch by Jim Grant.

The Orioles added another run in the sixth. Billy Gardner doubled, went to third on a sacrifice and scored on Bob Boyd's deep fly to center.

The Indians rallied for two runs in the sixth. Held's double followed a walk to Porter. Then pinch hitter Larry Doby delivered one run with a sacrifice fly and Russ Nixon, also a pinch hitte, drilled a single to center, scoring Held.

Bob Lemon, another pinch hitter, knocked in the tying run in the eighth with a single following another double by Held.

Huskie Crew Goes Against Russian Oars

HENLEY ON THAMES, Eng. (AP)—The University of Washington crew will make its first appearance in the Royal Henley Regatta against a formidable Russian crew, the Trud (Labor) Club of Leningrad.

Russians and the Washington eight were brought together in the draw Saturday. The Regatta starts Wednesday. The race is Thursday. The winner will meet the London Rowing Club in a semifinal Friday.

On the other side of the Grand Challenge Cup draw, the Leichhardt Rowing Club of Australia, will meet the Thames Rowing Club of London in the first heat.

In the first heat of the Thames Challenge Cup races the Harvard University lightweight eight will meet a relatively obscure British eight, the Twickenham Rowing Club, on Wednesday.

Kent School of Kent Conn., drew The First and Third Trinity Boat Club of Cambridge. If both American crews win they will meet in the second round.

In the Thames Cup competition, Washington-Lee High School of Arlington, Va., drew a bye. The Virginians will have to meet the winner of a first heat race between the Garda Siochana Boat Club of Dublin and Emmanuel College of Cambridge.

Thomas McDonough, Philadelphia sculler, will meet M. E. Gaylord of Britain's Imperial College Boat Club in the first heat of the Diamond Sculls.

OLD TIMERS AT BRIGGS STADIUM —Mickey Cochran left, and Ty Cobb had a lot to talk about when the former diamond greats appeared at Briggs Stadium in Detroit yesterday for Old Timers' Day. IT WAS A TIE

Oldtime Red Sox, Tigers Meet Again On Diamond

DETROIT (AP)—Lefty Grove, who won 300 major league games, wore a Boston Red Sox uniform and went to the pitching mound again Saturday.

The immortal Ty Cobb, who won a dozen batting championships as a Detroit Tiger, revisited the ball park he knew as Navin Field.

Six other Red Sox and Tiger members of the Hall of Fame and a host of former diamond greats took part in Detroit's Oldtimers' Day.

The entire starting line-up of the Tigers' first world championship team of 1935 was back. Manager Mickey Cochrane was behind the plate in the two-inning game between the old Red Sox and the old Tigers. Fittingly they battled to a 1-1 tie while baseball rules were regarded lightly.

Joe Cronin and Jimmie Foxx were back in the Red Sox line-up.

But it was light-hitting Jo Jo White from the 1934-35 Detroit pennant winners, who provided the big thrill in the short game.

White belted one of Grove's offerings on a line into the lower right field seats. He trotted around the bases shaking hands with Red Sox and umpire alike as he went.

"They must be throwing golf balls nowadays," White said. "I hit a home run off Grove. Ask him."

The Red Sox scored a first-inning run off Tommy Bridges, Schoolboy Rowe and under-armer Eldon Auker, all from the 1934-35 Tigers.

"You go in there' next inning," said Greenberg. "My gosh, second base has gotten awfully far away."

It was York who succeeded Greenberg as Tiger first sacker on the 1940 pennant winner. Greenberg then became an outfielder.

Cobb didn't get into uniform but drew a tremendous ovation when introduced.

"I wouldn't trust myself out there," he said. "I'm a small town country boy from a little town with a 2,800 population and I'm 71. So if I walk out there slowly, it's these old bones."

Red God Beats Foul Claim To Take Roseben

NEW YORK (AP) — Cain Hoy Stable's Red God scored an easy 4-length triumph in the $27,700 Roseben Handicap at Belmont Park Saturday.

The crowd of 33,322 established Cohoes as the 6-5 favorite in the 7-furlong sprint, and Red God, a stakes winner in England as a 2-year-old, paid $30.90 as the second longest price in the field of six.

Jockey Conn McCreary took a pound off his usual riding weight to make the 107 pounds on Red God, who was winning his first American stakes event. McCreary broke Red God in fourth place, moved the son of Nasrullah to the lead in the run down the backstretch and widened his lead from there to the finish to be timed in 1:22 3-5, just a second off Bold Ruler's track mark.

Montpelier's Nahodah, the topweight of the starters with 114 pounds, was third, another 4 lengths behind Cohoes. Howell E. Jackson's Tick Tock, second choice at 8-5, was fourth. Bunny's Babe and The Crack completed the small field in the 19th running of the Roseben.

A great deal had been expected of Red God when he returned from England in the fall of 1956 after winning the Richmond takes abroad.

The chestnut colt, raised on Guggenheim's estate at Sands Point, L. I., was established as one of the favorites for the 3-year-old classics last year. But Red God suffered a severely bruised foot early last year and was unable to return to the races until June, when injuries again forced him to the sidelines until this season. Guggenheim, who races his horses as the Cain Hoy Stable, received a purse of $17,705.

Deep Oil Well Seen For Miss.

The venture is the Board of Supervisors No. 1-3, sec. 16-6n-8s, in the Mallalieu field of Lincoln County.

The well was drilled to 16,604 feet and production casing was set to 16,242 feet. The test is from perforations below 16,108-31 feet.

Arkansas Fuel Oil Corp. is coring below 13,480-feet in the potential new oil field find, the Womack No. 1, sec. 35-1n-1e, in Smith County, four miles east of Magee.

The well is in the top of the Hosston sand that is productive at Raleigh and Martinville fields.

Texas Co. is scheduled to run a second test of the recently discovered Boykin Church field of Smith County.

Operators have staked location for the board of supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-3n-7e, offset to the discovery well.

The second venture is scheduled to be drilled to 11,000 feet in search of Rodessa sand.

Larco Drilling Co. is below 12,100 feet in the Jones County wildcat Whittington No. 1, sec. 4-9n-11w. No shows have been logged at 12,016-30 feet.

The well has logged several oil shows below 10,000 feet and several appear possible for commercial production.

The well is two miles southeast of the sharon gas condensate field.

In south Rankin County, Monsanto Chemical Co. is below 7,600 feet in the wildcat Rathell No.1, sec. 19-3n-4e. Two miles west of Cato, the venture is scheduled to be drilled to 13,500 feet.

Jett Drilling Co. has abandoned the wildcat Hauberg No. A-1, sec. 3-7n-4e in north Rankin County after logging no shows to a depth of 7,510 feet.

In Clarke County's shallow Langsdale field, Thurber, Kennington and Miller are below 4,000 feet in the Long Bell No. 1, sec. 24-1n-173. Contract depth is 10,000 feet.

Dorris Ballew completed the Covington No. 3, sec. 35-5n-8e in the Little Creek field of Lincoln County. The well flowed 535 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 10,720-61 feet.

Sinclair Oil and Gas Co. logged oil sand in the Jeffreys No. 1, sec. 2-4n-83 in the Lincoln County side of Little Creek field.

Cotton Is Higher For Past Week

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures prices followed an irregular course this week anl closed with all deliveries in higher territory.

The market strengthened on price fixing and short covering, and on buying prompted by expectations of a record high support price for the 1958 crop. Toward the close, the distant months were aided by the action of the U.S. House of Representatives in rejecting the omnibus farm bill.

On Friday the nearby July contract firmed on lack of notices.

Offerings were furnished through profit taking and some light hedge selling. The market eased late in the week on evening up operations prior to expected U.S. Senate consideration Monday of a farm bill submitted by the House Agriculture Committee.

Traders took in stride the U.S. Agriculture Department's announcement Friday that the mid-June cotton parity was 38.55 cents a pound. The decrease from the May figure of 38.68 cents was just about what brokers had expected.

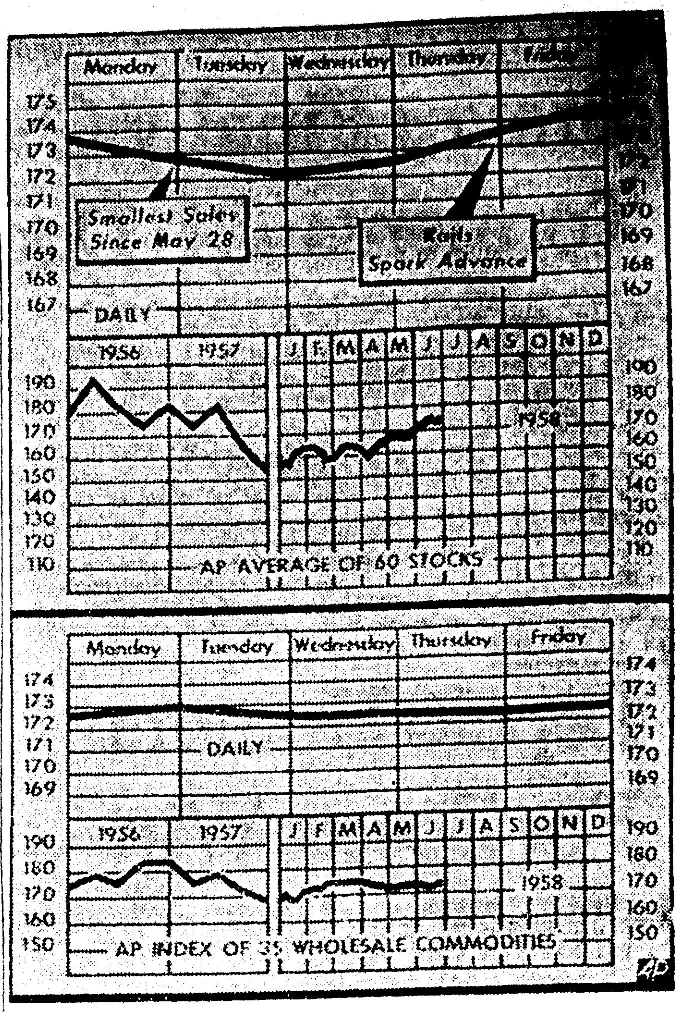
Average price received by farmers in mid-June was 29.09 cents a pound vs. 38.68 cents a pound in May and 37.06 cents last June. It was noted that if parity at the end of the season is the same as now, and if the support price for next season is no higher than 81 per cent of parity, a loan rate on middling one-inch cotton at average location of 35.08 cents a pound would be in prospect.

Domestic cotton traders are looking forward expectantly to the issuance July 8 of the first official statement on acreage planted for the 1958 crop. Consensus is that the report will show acreage in cultivation as of July 1 totaling about 12,250,000 acres vs. 14,066,000 acres a year ago.

If abandonment is about average, the harvested acreage may be the smallest since the 11,747,000 acres recorded in 1876.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau at 105,000 bales vs. 104,000 the previous week and 120,000 in the like week last year.

Exports for the season through June 24 were estimated at 5,268,000 bales vs. 7,087,000 bales at approximately the same time last year.



STOCK AVERAGE UP — The Associated Press average to 174.3 from 173.8 a week ago. The 172.6 from 172.7 in the preceding period. Grains showed the biggest loss. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

1ST HALF OF '58

Stock Market Shows Advance

The market has now won back about 60 per cent of the losses suffered in the sharp decline from last July to the Oct. 22 low.

Although corporate earnings were slashed and dividends cut or omitted by many firms, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange rose an estimated 30 billion dollars, based on stock exchange figures and the rise in The Associated Press average.

In the past week the market consolidated recent gains to new 1958 highs. The AP stock average managed a 50 cent gain to $174.30, not much below this year's top of $175.40.

The market declined on the first two days and rose on the last three. The lower-priced stocks and more speculative issues were favored as the blue chips rested.

The six-months upsurge in the face of poor "fundamentals"—the lower earnings and dividends—bred a large army of skeptics on Wall Street. They regard present stock prices as "unrealistic." They've backed this opinion with their money, creating the largest short interest since the exchange began recording this in May 1951.

The short sellers are betting on a sizable market decline. Their short sales are a record 5,795,105 shares. This represents the sale of borrowed stock which the "shorts" hope to repay through future purchases at lower prices, thus making profits.

Wheat Prices Up Slightly During Week

CHICAGO (AP)—This was the week when wheat futures prices were expected to be under such increasing selling pressure that buyers would be hard to find. But they weren't.

On the contrary, prices increased slightly in the face of the largest winter wheat crop of record now being harvested, and commercial buying at week's end was the heaviest it had been in many weeks.

Corn and oats also came through the week with small gains but rye, which had been firm recently, slipped a bit and soybeans finished with minor fractional changes both above and below a week ago except in the September delivery. It moved up as much as a cent a bushel.

Wheat closed the week ½ - 2 cents a bushel higher, July $1.85 ¼-⅜; corn 1-1⅝ higher, July $1.34 - 34⅛; oats ⅜ - 1¼ higher, July 63¾; rye ½-¾ lower, July $1.27; soybeans ⅜ lower to 1 cent higher, July $2.24¼ ⅜; lard 5 to 10 cents a hundred pounds lower, July $12.20.

The firmness in wheat first was derived from reports of excessive rainfall in the winter crop areas where the harvest is moving toward its peak in the major producing state of Kansas.

Corporate And Gov't Bonds Show Decline

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporate and U.S. government bonds declined this week but this could not dim a solid rise by both markets in the first half of 1958.

The Federal Reserve's continued easing of credit curbs, lower interest rates and the business recession were underlying factors.

The government bond market, in particular, staged a sensational spring surge that attracted investors from the stock market. In June, long range bonds slipped back sharply from their April highs. That heavy concentration of speculative interest contributed, treasury bond analysts say, to the sharpest losses of the year by government securities a fortnight ago.

FOR MRS. E. H. HILL

Many Memories Recalled As Retirement Time Near

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

The picture shows a pretty young woman, in the straight chemise - type dress that was popular in the 1920's.

She stands in the typical "posed group" picture, along with 12 distinguished police jurors. The picture is taken, printed, kept for 34 years . . . then reframed, to be placed in the Ouachita Parish Police Jury room, as a reminder of the lady who has been "mama" to hundreds of "children" during the past three decades.

No picture will be necessary, because pleasant memories of Mrs. E. H. Hill are printed indelibly in the hearts of all courthouse workers, police jury members and parish officials who have known her.

Tomorrow, 34 years after June 1, 1924, when she first went to work for the Police Jury, Mrs. Hill retires.

In those three decades, she became the first person to hold the consolidated post of secretary-treasurer of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury. She was president of the Secretary-Treasurers Association of the Louisiana Police Jury Association, the first woman to hold that office.

The only woman who has served on the Parochial Employees Retirement Board, she resigned from that post due to her approaching retirement, and was replaced by Richard Downs.

During those 34 years, she became a living example of the person who helps others "without letting her left hand know what her right hand was doing" — she avoided publicity and still thinks that what she does is not worth notice . . . much of the information in this article concerning Mrs. Hill has been revealed by courthouse associates.

The Beginning

For this lady, retirement will be the beginning of an increased enjoyment of her grandchildren. It will also be the final page on the book of her career in the official world of the parish . . . a career which she did not seek, but which was successful due to her ability and stamina.

The first day of June, 1924, Mrs. Hill took the temporary position of stenographer to W. A. O'Kelly, the clerk of the Police Jury.

In those days, the police jury office was located in the yellow brick building at 138 S. Grand St., where the state license bureau and revenue department is now housed.

"I remember coming to work on street cars. Women wore sack dresses then, just like now, but I think they're just as ugly as can be," Mrs. Hill chuckled.

Construction of the large new courthouse was past the architect stages and was well underway toward completion. The first meeting of the Police Jury in the new building was held on Dec. 16, 1925.

"Parts of the building were finished, so we held the meeting in one of the completed sections. The basement remained unfinished until long after we moved in," Mrs. Hill recalls.

Names . . . persons who were a "part" of the new courthouse . . . many are dead . . . all the names are still familiar to Mrs. Hill.

J. L. Single was the first building engineer, and Milton Coverdale was sheriff. The parish tax assessor was Joe Hanna, Pat Hamilton served as clerk of court, and Miss Lillian Collins was registrar of voters.

Only three members of the 1924 Police Jury are still alive. They are J. E. Rutledge, J. M. Breard and J. W. Collins. Other members were Charles W. Phillips, Charles Hancock, Theo F. Terzia, F. C. Peters, S. W. Pipes, J. L. Russ, J. E. Bryan, J. T. Mayes and S. L. Hendrix.

Promoted

On July 14, 1926, Mrs. Hill was promoted to the position of assistant secretary of the Jury and on Nov. 17 of that year was appointed secretary.

Two years later, tragedy made her career a necessity, when her husband died and she was left with the complete support of two young sons.

During that time, Oliver Morton succeeded Arthur Toliver in the posts of Police Jury treasurer. After his death, on June 7, 1933, Mrs. Hill was elected to the position of Secretary-Treasurer of the Police Jury, at a special meeting.

This was the first time that the jobs were combined . . . and Mrs. Hill was the first woman to hold either post.

While serving under eight different Police Juries, Mrs. Hill saw her two sons, Shelby and Walter graduate from high school. In 1940, Walter entered the Army, and stayed in until 1945.

During that time, she moved from her home on Ouachita Avenue to 507 Rochelle Ave., where she now resides with her sister, Mrs. J. B. Parker.

Many Duties

Records . . . bookkeeping . . . payrolls . . .

She now keeps all the books for the Ouachita Parish Police Jury, makes out the payroll for the parish highway department, serves as treasurer for the parish public library, keeps the books on Road District No. 1, is in charge of the Courthouse and jail sinking fund, keeps the books for the new library construction bond issue, signs about 800 checks each month and is in charge of the records for the parish mosquito fogging work. She also records the business at each Police Jury meeting.

Each morning she is up at 5:30, baking. Cakes, cookies, brownies, pies, apple and peach cobbler, gingerbread . . .

The old fashioned way of preparing food is the way Mrs. Hill does it. No cake mixes have entered her kitchen. She combines all the ingredients herself, using butter in her recipes.

Persons who have tasted the results honestly say that she makes the best baked goods they have even eaten.

She confided to friends that she always did a lot of baking when her sons were young, so they and their friends would know they were welcome in the Hill home and could look forward to plenty of cookies or cakes each day.

Modern parents might use that recipe so their children would enjoy bringing their friends home—and as one big preventive of juvenile delinquency.

"She's noted for baking cakes for the people in the courthouse and the police jurors," courthouse employees reveal.

Gracious, Kind

"And she remembers birthdays for people all over the city . . . she always has a good time — doing things for others," they added.

"Mrs. Hill has really meant a lot to me — I never went to her for help without getting it," mentioned a 30 - year acquaintance.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS — Mrs. E. H. Hill, who retires tomorrow from her post as secretary-treasurer of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury after 34 years of work, explains details to her successor, Miss Nell Cheek. Mrs. Hill is seated at her desk in the Police Jury room, where she has recorded the jury meetings. (Staff photo by Bill Coleman).

"I hope when I get as old as she is I've lived the wonderful life she has, and have as many friends," commented Forrest Jarvis, a civil deputy.

"A mama to everyone in the Courthouse."

"She's been a mother to the people here. If it were known all the good deeds she's done for others, your newspaper would be filled trying to tell them all. She's thought of other people dozens of times, to what she's thought of her own self," firmly stated Dick Brothers, building engineer for the Courthouse.

"Mrs. Hill was secretary of her Sunday School class at the First Baptist Church. Then, after she transferred to Parkview Baptist Church, she was secretary for the whole Sunday school as long as she was able to tend to it. She still goes to church and Sunday school, then goes home and cooks a big dinner or bakes a cake for someone else. She even has worked when she was ill," her friends comment.

Three months illness last summer forced Mrs. Hill to halt many of her activities at church and kept her out of work . . . but she was back on the job and at church sooner than many a 25-year-old person would have been.

Looks Younger

Always a baseball fan, she is looking forward to watching one of her five grandchildren, Richard Hill, 12, play in Little League games here in Monroe.

She takes a special interest in all her grandchildren, and in her son, Shelby, of the Hill Lumber Co., and Walter Lee Hill, who is associated with the CMH Construction Co., working out of Dallas, Tex.

"I love to read — most anything," she revealed, adding that she follows the David Lawrence editorial column faithfully.

A "cane pole" fisher, she intends to make use of some of her retirement time to enjoy fishing.

But cooking, which is her most pleasant occupation, will draw much of her attention.

"I haven't done anything but stay in the courthouse and work, and then go home and cook," is the way she explains her knack of cooking. The courthouse, friends reveal, is her favorite building in Monroe.

Tomorrow, Mrs. Hill will serve as secretary - treasurer at a special Police Jury meeting — her last official act.

Tuesday, Miss Nell Cheek of 1006 S. Third St., who has served as Mrs. Hill's assistant for the last six years, will become new secretary - treasurer of the Police Jury.

"She's going to be missed," Miss Cheek said reflectively, adding, "You can't replace her . . . you can just take over the work for her."

'MAMA TO COURTHOUSE EMPLOYEES' — That is the affectionate way in which Mrs. E. H. Hill is known to her co-workers. As secretary-treasurer of the Police Jury, she has kept innumerable books and records . . . and has never been too busy to help anyone who asked for her assistance on any problem. Hutto Walks Free From Tex. Prison

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — William Hutto walked free Friday from the state prison from which he was a fugitive for 33 years. In his pocket, the New Orleans used car salesman carried a pardon granted yesterday by Gov. Price Daniel for "his exemplary life and good character."

Hutto, 58, wore prison-issue khaki and had $74.34 in his pockets, $50 of it the usual state allowance to discharged prisoners. He gave his two wrist watches to prisoners who were his friends.

"I'm sure happy," he commented. "I didn't sleep too well last night, thinking about my son and all the things I can do for him.

"This experience has really been a blessing in disguise and had I known I was wanted, I would have cleared this matter up years ago."

Hutto was convicted of rape in Dallas and first came to prison in 1924 on a 15-year term. He was granted a furlough 13 months later on Aug. 5, 1925 when his father died. He did not return to prison, asserting he throught he had been pardoned. He lived most of the time in New Orleans, never hiding his name.

Then last March while visiting a daughter, Mrs. Guy Batchlor, he was arrested in Lyford on a traffic charge. Checks disclosed he was a fugitive and he was returned to Huntsville March 15.

Hutto headed from the prison walls for a bus station and a trip to Lyford to visit his daughter. After a day in the South Texas town, he plans to return to New Orleans. The son of whom he spoke is 17.

As he trudged hatless away from the penitentiary, Hutto carried only a small cotton sack in which he had extra shoes, underwear and hundreds of letters from New Orleans friends. He had only kind words for the prison, its officials and employes.

His stay in the pen totaled up to one year, four months and 27 days.

FOR MRS. E. H. HILL

Many Memories Recalled As Retirement Time Near

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

The picture shows a pretty young woman, in the straight chemise - type dress that was popular in the 1920's.

She stands in the typical "posed group" picture, along with 12 distinguished police jurors. The picture is taken, printed, kept for 34 years . . . then reframed, to be placed in the Ouachita Parish Police Jury room, as a reminder of the lady who has been "mama" to hundreds of "children" during the past three decades.

No picture will be necessary, because pleasant memories of Mrs. E. H. Hill are printed indelibly in the hearts of all courthouse workers, police jury members and parish officials who have known her.

Tomorrow, 34 years after June 1, 1924, when she first went to work for the Police Jury, Mrs. Hill retires.

In those three decades, she became the first person to hold the consolidated post of secretary-treasurer of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury. She was president of the Secretary-Treasurers Association of the Louisiana Police Jury Association, the first woman to hold that office.

The only woman who has served on the Parochial Employees Retirement Board, she resigned from that post due to her approaching retirement, and was replaced by Richard Downs.

During those 34 years, she became a living example of the person who helps others "without letting her left hand know what her right hand was doing" — she avoided publicity and still thinks that what she does is not worth notice . . . much of the information in this article concerning Mrs. Hill has been revealed by courthouse associates.

The Beginning

For this lady, retirement will be the beginning of an increased enjoyment of her grandchildren. It will also be the final page on the book of her career in the official world of the parish . . . a career which she did not seek, but which was successful due to her ability and stamina.

The first day of June, 1924, Mrs. Hill took the temporary position of stenographer to W. A. O'Kelly, the clerk of the Police Jury.

In those days, the police jury office was located in the yellow brick building at 138 S. Grand St., where the state license bureau and revenue department is now housed.

Street cars and sack dresses were the ordinary sight on Monroe streets.

"I remember coming to work on street cars. Women wore sack dresses then, just like now, but I think they're just as ugly as can be," Mrs. Hill chuckled.

Construction of the large new courthouse was past the architect stages and was well underway toward completion. The first meeting of the Police Jury in the new building was held on Dec. 16, 1925.

"Parts of the building were finished, so we held the meeting in one of the completed sections. The basement remained unfinfinished until long after we moved in," Mrs. Hill recalls.

Names . . . persons who were a "part" of the new courthouse . . . many are dead . . . all the names are still familiar to Mrs. Hill.

J. L. Single was the first building engineer, and Milton Coverdale was sheriff. The parish tax assessor was Joe Hanna, Pat Hamilton served as clerk of court, and Miss Lillian Collins was registrar of voters.

Only three members of the 1924 Police Jury are still alive. They are J. E. Rutledge, J. M. Breard and J. W. Collins. Other members were Charles W. Phillips, Charles Hancock, Theo F. Terzia, F. C. Peters, S. W. Pipes, J. L. Russ, J. E. Bryan, J. T. Mayes and S. L. Hendrix.

Promoted

On July 14, 1926, Mrs. Hill was promoted to the position of assistant secretary of the Jury and on Nov. 17 of that year was appointed secretary.

Two years later, tragedy made her career a necessity, when her husband died and she was left with the complete support of two young sons.

During that time, Oliver Morton succeeded Arthur Toliver in the posts of Police Jury treasurer. After his death, on June 7, 1933, Mrs. Hill was elected to the position of Secretary-Treasurer of the Police Jury, at a special meeting.

This was the first time that the jobs were combined . . . and Mrs. Hill was the first woman to hold either post.

While serving under eight different Police Juries, Mrs. Hill saw her two sons, Shelby and Walter graduate from high school. In 1940, Walter entered the Army, and stayed in until 1945.

During that time, she moved from her home on Ouachita Avenue to 507 Rochelle Ave., where she now resides with her sister, Mrs. J. B. Parker.

Many Duties

Records . . . bookkeeping . . . payrolls . . .

She now keeps all the books for the Ouachita Parish Police Jury, makes out the payroll for the parish highway department, serves as treasurer for the parish public library, keeps the books on Road District No. 1, is in charge of the Courthouse and jail sinking fund, keeps the books for the new library construction bond issue, signs about 800 checks each month and is in charge of the records for the parish mosquito fogging work. She also records the business at each Police Jury meeting.

Each morning she is up at 5:30, baking. Cakes, cookies, brownies, pies, apple and peach cobbler, gingerbread . . .

The old fashioned way of preparing food is the way Mrs. Hill does it. No cake mixes have entered her kitchen. She combines all the ingredients herself, using butter in her recipes.

Persons who have tasted the results honestly say that she makes the best baked goods they have even eaten.

She confided to friends that she always did a lot of baking when her sons were young, so they and their friends would know they were welcome in the Hill home and could look forward to plenty of cookies or cakes each day.

Modern parents might use that recipe so their children would enjoy bringing their friends home—and as one big preventive of juvenile delinquency.

"She's noted for baking cakes for the people in the courthouse and the police jurors," courthouse employees reveal.

Gracious, Kind

"And she remembers birthdays for people all over the city . . . she always has a good time — doing things for others," they added.

"Mrs. Hill has really meant a lot to me — I never went to her for help without getting it," mentioned a 30 - year acquaintance.

E-Tex. Oilmen May Establish TV On Formosa

MARSHALL, Tex. (UPI) — A Marshall attorney said Saturday four wealthy East Texas oilmen are behind a move to establish a television station on Formosa and then branch into other businesses.

Ruben Abney, attorney for James Chiang, said the oilmen do not want their names disclosed yet because "they're not sure what they're going to do."

Chiang discussed the possibility of developing T' and other industries on Formosa with Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek Saturday.

The Far East Development Co. wants to establish the television station and Lecuna Oil Corp. wants to drill offshore for oil there, Abney said.

He added that Chiang is representing both firms and soon will be an officer of the Far East Development Co.

Hope Fades For Trapped Miners

FUKUOKA, Japan (AP)—Hope faded today for 25 miners trapped in flooded Honsoeda Mine as rescue workers were hampered by excessive water leakage and threats of cave-ins.

Seven of 32 miners managed to escape when water, believed to be from an underground current, suddenly poured in Friday afternoon some 250 yards from the entrance. Two pumps were unable to drain the pit overnight.

State production taxes on oil in 1957 raised 152 million dollars; on gas, 41 million dollars.

Lumberman Is Given Sentence

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — County Judge Ben Guider yesterd., sentenced John M. Holmes of Jackson, acquitted of murder in a traffic death, to four months in jail and $500 fine for drunk driving.

Judge Guider also placed the 30-year-old lumberman on eight months probation.

Holmes was acquitted of murder in the Jan. 13 death of Mrs. Mary Jaunell White, 27, a Vicksburg divorcee.

Her crushed body was found on a city street. Holmes was arrested several blocks away.

Accuses Assessor Of Raising Taxes Over 600 Per Cent

MARKSVILLE, La. (AP)—The chairman of the Red River, Atchafalaya and Bayou Bouef Levee Board Friday accused the Avoyelles Parish assessor of raising assessments in the Monica-Lake Long area more than 600 per cent so property owners could get high prices for their land.

Board chairman Joseph Artall of Melville, who made the accusation at a board meeting, said the land involved is sought for a levee setback.

E-Tex. Oilmen May Establish TV On Formosa

MARSHALL, Tex. (UPI) — A Marshall attorney said Saturday four wealthy East Texas oilmen are behind a move to establish a television station on Formosa and then branch into other businesses.

Ruben Abney, attorney for James Chiang, said the oilmen do not want their names disclosed yet because "they're not sure what they're going to do."

Chiang discussed the possibility of developing T' and other industries on Formosa with Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek Saturday.

The Far East Development Co. wants to establish the television station and Lecuna Oil Corp. wants to drill offshore for oil there, Abney said.

He added that Chiang is representing both firms and soon will be an officer of the Far East Development Co.

Hope Fades For Trapped Miners

FUKUOKA, Japan (AP)—Hope faded today for 25 miners trapped in flooded Honsoeda Mine as rescue workers were hampered by excessive water leakage and threats of cave-ins.

Seven of 32 miners managed to escape when water, believed to be from an underground current, suddenly poured in Friday afternoon some 250 yards from the entrance. Two pumps were unable to drain the pit overnight.

State production taxes on oil in 1957 raised 152 million dollars; on gas, 41 million dollars.

SUMMER PLAYERS

New Theatrical Group Organized

By EARL COWAN
Staff Writer

The Summer Theater Players, a new theatrical group of the Monroe area, will stage its first production, "Blithe Spirit," a comedy by Noel Coward, July 14 and 15, at the Fine Arts Building auditorium on the campus of Northeast State College.

Due to the summer season, a group of college students, all experienced in acting, felt that the Monroe area was at loss because no dramatic plays would be produced until the next fall due to the excessive heat in a crowded auditorium.

They decided to produce their own play and use the air conditioned auditorium of the Fine Arts Building at the college. The auditorium's seating capacity is well over 200.

Phillip L. Lisotta, who graduated from Northeast with a BA degree last year, will direct the group which is chiefly composed of college students who have previous experience in acting at the college.

Lisotta, a native of Monroe, has been offered a position with the junior high school at Morgan City next fall teaching math but he still has high hopes of obtaining a position teaching speech.

He plans to further his education by working during the summer vacation period toward earning his master's degree.

Donnavae Hughes, publicity chairman of the Summer Theater Players, reported that there were no self appointed jobs or parts in the group. She explained that everything was done by elections.

George Brian, speech professor at Northeast, is the advisor of the group and Rita Snider is the stage manager with Carol Faulk as business manager.

The following is the cast that will be featured in "Blithe Spirit," and some of their previous acting experiences:

Gerry Kenny, who will play Ruth Condomine, the second wife, started acting at the age of 15 with the Little Theater and was featured in "Be Your Age." She was also featured in the first musical that was produced at the Little Theater which was "The Boy Friend."

Gerry also directed a one act play at the college and was featured in "Pygmalion." She was elected the best actress for her part in "Pygmalion," and has been a member of the Little Theater for six years and was featured in five of their productions.

Norman Jones, who is playing Charles Condomine, the male lead, was elected the most active speech major for the past year, directed a one act play at the college, had the male lead in a one act play, the male lead in the reading of "Phoenix Too Frequent," featured in his high school senior play, handled the lighting for "Pygmalion," and narrated the Christmas Pageant.

Charlene Correro, plays Elvira, the spirit of the first wife, had the supporting role in "The Very Young," which was featured on TV and on the stage. She had the second female lead in the "Male Animal," stage manager in "Pygmalion," and carried the lead in "Growing Pairs" which was the senior play at her high school.

Billie Sue Swanson, as Madam Areati, was named best supporting actress for general work this past year at the college, carried the lead in a one act play, had the supporting role in "Pygmalion" and the "Male Animal," and was elected the best actress at her high school.

Glen Morgan, who will play Dr. George Bradman, had the minor lead in a one act play, has taken several speech courses and handled the lighting in several plays at the college.

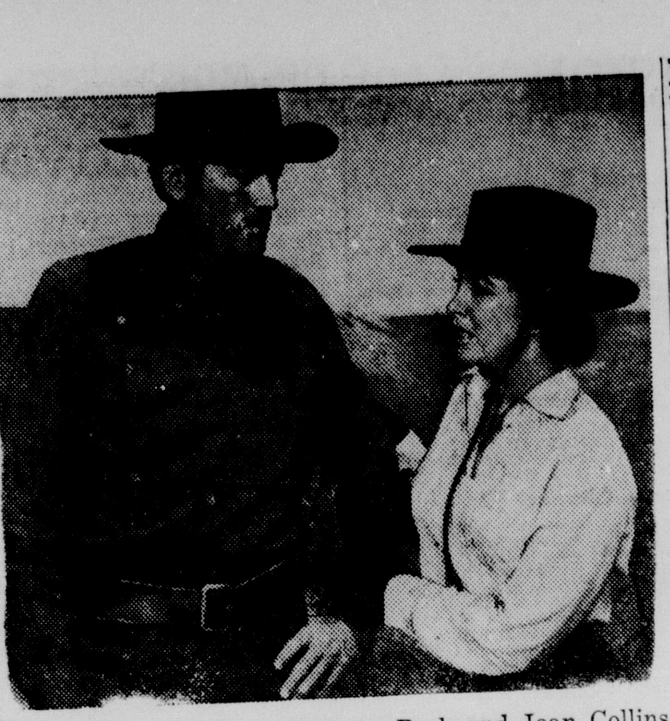
Donnavae Hughes, who will be featured as Mrs. Violet Bradman, had a minor part in "Pygmalion," had the second lead in her high school senior play, and has spent two years in England which is the background for the play.

Pat Medaries, who will play Edith, the maid, was the assistant director for "Pygmalion," had a minor role in a one act play, and in high school was featured in a one act play for the speech festival.

"Blithe Spirit," a comedy by Noel Coward, will be produced with an English accent and setting. The play takes place during the seance period, in which Madam Arcati brings Charles Condomine's first wife's spirit back by speaking to the dead. Madam Arcati is in a trance as she says, "Is anybody there, Is anybody there. One tap for yes. Two taps for no."

"Blithe Spirit" is a hilarious comedy which takes place in a typical English home which erupts into something that is quite unusual.

The whole group have been working diligently to bring Monroe another great attraction as rehearsals began June 7 and they have been working five nights a week and on Sunday afternoons to give you one evening's entertainment.



THE BRAVADOS — Gregory Peck and Joan Collins are shown in a scene from the exciting new film, "The Bravados" that opens today at the Paramount Theatre. Based on the famous western novel, "The Bravados" comes to the screen in CinemaScope and in color and tells the story of Jim Douglas, a man who set out to break the Bravados one by one for what they had done to the woman he loved.

Simon Bolivar Stamps On Sale In Washington

The second in the U. S. "Champion of Liberty" series — the 4 cent and 8 cent Simon Bolivar stamps — will go on first day sale July 24 at Washington, D.C.

Both denominations will be smaller than the first "Champion of Liberty" adhesive honoring Ramon Magsaysay.

The 4 cent will be ochre while the 8 center will be red.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send their addressed envelopes to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C., together with money orders to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

Remember to indicate plainly in the upper right corner of the covers whether the 4 cent or 8 cent denomination is desired.

Two new commemoratives have been issued by Israel. One stamp, a 400 pruta, commemorates the 10th Anniversary Exhibition being held in Jerusalem this summer. The other, a 200 pruta, honors the First World Congress of Zionist Youth which is being held in Israel this year.

The green and red Anniversary Exhibition stamp depicts the new Exhibition Building in Jerusalem. The violet, orange and yellow issue for the World Youth Congress shows a group of youngsters doing a folk dance called "the hora." In the center is a menora, seven - armed candelabra, symbol of the State of Israel.

Nationalist China has issued three new stamps commemorating the 10th anniversary of the World Health Organization. The colors are blue, orange and magenta. As with all stamps from Formosa, there is no gum on the back.

The Republic of Korea has issued a new 40 hwan stamp depicting an envelope and the wing of a bird. It commemorates Korean Postal Week. The colors are navy blue and red.

IN THE CAPITOL

Tax Ship Sinks, 'Longers' Scurry

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Gov. Earl K. Long's leaders and followers jumped off the sinking wine tax ship about as fast as the North Louisiana delegates climbed on.

The administration leaders went against the tax without passing the word down the line. Those legislators way down the line didn't like it one bit, either.

From the stand-point of Long's logic, which is to provide additional funds by taxes, it doesn't make sense to watch his party fight tooth and nail to put one tax across and later run from a second tax.

Perhaps the fact that the gas gathering tax primarily affects mostly North Louisiana delegates of which there are not so many, while the wine tax affects most all of South Louisiana, which accounts for the majority of legislators, is ample reason to believe that the administration tells two different stories.

Yet, a lot of people, chiefly the Louisiana Teachers Association, were convinced that the only way to get money for teacher's salaries was from an increase in the gas gathering tax.

A lot of people, again the LTA, said nothing when the wine tax, which would have provided funds for legislative scholarships, police men and trade schools, was abandoned by the Long Administration.

Again, capitol observers are wondering what a lot of people, especially the LTA, are saying now that the administration has thrown out a proposed appropriations bill allocating $12 million to the teachers from surpluses next year.

Capitol Eyes

Speculation around the capitol has F. F. Wimberly, the LTA's hustling legislative committee chairman, eyeing Shelby Jackson's job. Since everybody's in the race, they say Jackson wants to run for governor.

Which brings up two noteworthy observations. Jackson has difficulty with the press, even the working press, while Wimberly is not a favorite among his school colleagues.

He Likes Odom

Asked Wimberly, "Have you seen ex - superintendent Odom lately?" He added, "When you see him, tell him I'm lobbying for Steen's bill to elect superintendents."

"Huh," said Odom over the telephone, "I'm coming back down there tomorrow." But he failed to show.

Capitol Visitors

Making his first appearance at the capitol over the week, John J. McKeithen, public service commissioner, stood in the main lobby, shook hands and greeted friends passing by.

Although he's one of the chief rumored candidates for governor, McKeithen failed to visit his ex-colleagues in the House. He spent most of his time on the fourth floor where the hearings were in session.

Another hopeful for the big, lonely seat visiting this week was Ed Dubisson, polished Lafayette lawyer and one time member of the House.

Dubisson was introduced to the house.

They also introduced the Yam Festival queen, but in the excitement of her presence, forgot to mention her name.

Vote Switchers

In case some newspaper readers noticed a difference of reports in the final wine tax count, there was a mix-up when the actual vote was taken.

By the time the official House Journal was delivered to the solon's desk the next morning, another legislator had decided to change. Therefore, the official vote was 45-49.

They say it's illegal, but then, what the heck when it comes to getting somebody off the hook.

Dressing Down

Only the governor could have gotten away with dressing down Sen Willie Rainach, a feared legislator because of the strong stand he's taken for segregation.

But even frank Earl Long calmed down when Rainach failed to yield, as one reporter put it, "They were cooing at each other before it was over."

The Senate, however, has one member who isn't afraid of Rainach, that being Freshman J. D. Deblieux, a young Baton Rouge attorney who has been put through the mill in the current session.

Deblieux has the courage to question legislation when he knows his appearance before the Senate will be received unfavorably.

But sometimes Deblieux confuses the observers. Having opposed three of Rainach's segregation bills on technical points, Rainach came to the administration's side in throwing out the $12 million appropriation amendment.

In reality, he bucked those members of the Senate who have been kindest to him.

To best explain it, Deblieux votes his convictions.

Mystery Man

Back again is Monroe's mystery man. When the wine tax was meeting its destruction Tuesday, Ben Holt said, "I'm about half-disgusted with that fellow Clark."

Apparently he is. Holt joined his colleagues alone at a crayfish bisque party in St. Landry parish Wednesday. Asked where his friend was Holt said, "I left him in Baton Rouge.

"I am getting kinda worried about that fellow Clark, though," Holt explained. "Looks like I might have to reveal his identity."

No Publicity

One of the most interesting things which we noted this week was the silence on the part of those legislators who withdrew their special appropriations bills after grabbing the headlines when they introduced them.

Prior to the opening of the legislature, we had several legislators appear quite forward in telling of their loot bills for such and so projects.

But when they started withdrawing them Thursday, not one tipped us ahead of time.

As one observer put it, "Seventy - five per cent of the bills were introduced for publicity."

STEALING, POLICE SAY — Olga Lepesjinskaia, star of Russia's Bolshoi Ballet, was caught shoplifting in a Brussels, Belgium, department store, police said today. She was released after questioning. Police said that unless the store wants to prosecute, there will be no further action. (AP Wirephoto).

WRONG PARTY

MEMPHIS, Tenn — (UPI) — Mrs. E.G. Geater took pictures of her two-year-old son's birthday party, then sent them off by mail to be developed. The roll of film got lost, and Mrs. Geater asked the post office to trace it. The post office reported it had an unclaimed roll that "could" be hers. Only way to tell was to develop it. The pictures were of a birthday party, but the party was for twin four-year old girls.

Mail Carrier Retires After 50 Years On Job

LILLIE (Special) — A veteran rural mail carrier who has served more than 50 years on his job is scheduled to retire here tomorrow.

B. F. Farrar, the only carrier R. F. D. No. 2 out of the Lillie Post Office has known, served under five postmasters: B. F. Post, Bernice Gould, C. H. Cherry, C. L. Nelson and C. C. Brown. The route originated June 2, 1908.

Means of transportation on the route have varied from horseback, two-wheel cart, wagon to automobile. In bad weather, Farrar walked his route on some occasions.

Traveling approximately 470,500 miles during his 50 years of service, Farrar proved himself a servant and friend to his patrons.

C. L. Nelson has been appointed temporary carrier for the route.

SUMMER PLAYERS

New Theatrical Group Organized

By EARL COWAN
Staff Writer

The Summer Theater Players, a new theatrical group of the Monroe area, will stage its first production, "Blithe Spirit," a comedy by Noel Coward, July 14 and 15, at the Fine Arts Building auditorium on the campus of Northeast State College.

Due to the summer season, a group of college students, all experienced in acting, felt that the Monroe area was at loss because no dramatic plays would be produced until the next fall due to the excessive heat in a crowded auditorium.

They decided to produce their own play and use the air conditioned auditorium of the Fine Arts Building at the college. The auditorium's seating capacity is well over 200.

Phillip L. Lisotta, who graduated from Northeast with a BA degree last year, will direct the group which is chiefly composed of college students who have previous experience in acting at the college.

Lisotta, a native of Monroe, has been offered a position with the junior high school at Morgan City next fall teaching math but he still has high hopes of obtaining a position teaching speech.

He plans to further his education by working during the summer vacation period toward earning his master's degree.

Donnavae Hughes, publicity chairman of the Summer Theater Players, reported that there were no self appointed jobs or parts in the group. She explained that everything was done by elections.

George Brian, speech professor at Northeast, is the advisor of the group and Rita Snider is the stage manager with Carol Faulk as business manager.

The following is the cast that will be featured in "Blithe Spirit," and some of their previous acting experiences:

Gerry Kenny, who will play Ruth Condomine, the second wife, started acting at the age of 15 with the Little Theater and was featured in "Be Your Age." She was also featured in the first musical that was produced at the Little Theater which was "The Boy Friend."

Gerry also directed a one act play at the college and was featured in "Pygmalion." She was elected the best actress for her part in "Pygmalion," and has been a member of the Little Theater for six years and was featured in five of their productions.

Norman Jones, who is playing Charles Condomine, the male lead, was elected the most active speech major for the past year, directed a one act play at the college, had the male lead in a one act play, the male lead in the reading of "Phoenix Too Frequent," featured in his high school senior play, handled the lighting for "Pygmalion," and narrated the Christmas Pageant.

Charlene Correro, plays Elvira, the spirit of the first wife, had the supporting role in "The Very Young," which was featured on TV and on the stage. She had the second female lead in the "Male Animal," stage manager in "Pygmalion," and carried the lead in "Growing Pairs" which was the senior play at her high school.

Billie Sue Swanson, as Madam Areati, was named best supporting actress for general work this past year at the college, carried the lead in a one act play, had the supporting role in "Pygmalion" and the "Male Animal," and was elected the best actress at her high school.

Glen Morgan, who will play Dr. George Bradman, had the minor lead in a one act play, has taken several speech courses and handled the lighting in several plays at the college.

Donnavae Hughes, who will be featured as Mrs. Violet Bradman, had a minor part in "Pygmalion," had the second lead in her high school senior play, and has spent two years in England which is the background for the play.

Pat Medaries, who will play Edith, the maid, was the assistant director for "Pygmalion," had a minor role in a one act play, and in high school was featured in a one act play for the speech festival.

"Blithe Spirit," a comedy by Noel Coward, will be produced with an English accent and setting. The play takes place during the seance period, in which Madam Arcati brings Charles Condomine's first wife's spirit back by speaking to the dead. Madam Arcati is in a trance as she says, "Is anybody there, Is anybody there. One tap for yes. Two taps for no."

"Blithe Spirit" is a hilarious comedy which takes place in a typical English home which erupts into something that is quite unusual.

The whole group have been working diligently to bring Monroe another great attraction as rehearsals began June 7 and they have been working five nights a week and on Sunday afternoons to give you one evening's entertainment.

THE BRAVADOS — Gregory Peck and Joan Collins are shown in a scene from the exciting new film, "The Bravados" that opens today at the Paramount Theatre. Based on the famous western novel, "The Bravados" comes to the screen in CinemaScope and in color and tells the story of Jim Douglas, a man who set out to break the Bravados one by one for what they had done to the woman he loved.

Simon Bolivar Stamps On Sale In Washington

The second in the U. S. "Champion of Liberty" series — the 4 cent and 8 cent Simon Bolivar stamps — will go on first day sale July 24 at Washington, D.C.

Both denominations will be smaller than the first "Champion of Liberty" adhesive honoring Ramon Magsaysay.

The 4 cent will be ochre while the 8 center will be red.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send their addressed envelopes to the Postmaster, Washington 13, D. C., together with money orders to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

Remember to indicate plainly in the upper right corner of the covers whether the 4 cent or 8 cent denomination is desired.

Two new commemoratives have been issued by Israel. One stamp, a 400 pruta, commemorates the 10th Anniversary Exhibition being held in Jerusalem this summer. The other, a 200 pruta, honors the First World Congress of Zionist Youth which is being held in Israel this year.

The green and red Anniversary Exhibition stamp depicts the new Exhibition Building in Jerusalem. The violet, orange and yellow issue for the World Youth Congress shows a group of youngsters doing a folk dance called "the hora." In the center is a menora, seven - armed candelabra, symbol of the State of Israel.

Nationalist China has issued three new stamps commemorating the 10th anniversary of the World Health Organization. The colors are blue, orange and magenta. As with all stamps from Formosa, there is no gum on the back.

The Republic of Korea has issued a new 40 hwan stamp depicting an envelope and the wing of a bird. It commemorates Korean Postal Week. The colors are navy blue and red.

ROBINS TAKE OVER

HARTFORD, Conn. — (UPI) — The DiPietro-Kay service station has decided one of its gasoline pumps is "for the birds." When the tank stopped pumping, attendants discovered a nest with four baby robins inside.

IN THE CAPITOL

Tax Ship Sinks, 'Longers' Scurry

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE -- Gov. Earl K. Long's leaders and followers jumped off the sinking wine tax ship about as fast as the North Louisiana delegates climbed on.

The administration leaders went against the tax without passing the word down the line. Those legislators way down the line didn't like it one bit, either.

From the stand-point of Long's logic, which is to provide additional funds by taxes, it doesn't make sense to watch his party fight tooth and nail to put one tax across and later run from a second tax.

Perhaps the fact that the gas gathering tax primarily affects mostly North Louisiana delegates of which there are not so many, while the wine tax affects most all of South Louisiana, which accounts for the majority of legislators, is ample reason to believe that the administration tells two different stories.

Yet, a lot of people, chiefly the Louisiana Teachers Association, were convinced that the only way to get money for teacher's salaries was from an increase in the gas gathering tax.

A lot of people, again the LTA, said nothing when the wine tax, which would have provided funds for legislative scholarships, police men and trade schools, was abandoned by the Long Administration.

Again, capitol observers are wondering what a lot of people, especially the LTA, are saying now that the administration has thrown out a proposed appropriations bill allocating $12 million to the teachers from surpluses next year.

Capitol Eyes

Speculation around the capitol has F. F. Wimberly, the LTA's hustling legislative committee chairman, eyeing Shelby Jackson's job. Since everybody's in the race, they say Jackson wants to run for governor.

Which brings up two noteworthy observations. Jackson has difficulty with the press, even the working press, while Wimberly is not a favorite among his school colleagues.

He Likes Odom

Asked Wimberly, "Have you seen ex - superintendent Odom lately?" He added, "When you see him, tell him I'm lobbying for Steen's bill to elect superintendents."

"Huh," said Odom over the telephone, "I'm coming back down there tomorrow." But he failed to show.

Capitol Visitors

Making his first appearance at the capitol over the week, John J. McKeithen, public service commissioner, stood in the main lobby, shook hands and greeted friends passing by.

Although he's one of the chief rumored candidates for governor, McKeithen failed to visit his ex-colleagues in the House. He spent most of his time on the fourth floor where the hearings were in session.

Another hopeful for the big, lonely seat visiting this week was Ed Dubisson, polished Lafayette lawyer and one time member of the House.

Dubisson was introduced to the house.

They also introduced the Yam Festival queen, but in the excitement of her presence, forgot to mention her name.

Vote Switchers

In case some newspaper readers noticed a difference of reports in the final wine tax count, there was a mix-up when the actual vote was taken.

By the time the official House Journal was delivered to the solon's desk the next morning, another legislator had decided to change. Therefore, the official vote was 45-49.

They say it's illegal, but then, what the heck when it comes to getting somebody off the hook.

Dressing Down

Only the governor could have gotten away with dressing down Sen Willie Rainach, a feared legislator because of the strong stand he's taken for segregation.

But even frank Earl Long calmed down when Rainach failed to yield, as one reporter put it, "They were cooing at each other before it was over."

The Senate, however, has one member who isn't afraid of Rainach, that being Freshman J. D. Deblieux, a young Baton Rouge attorney who has been put through the mill in the current session.

Deblieux has the courage to question legislation when he knows his appearance before the Senate will be received unfavorably.

But sometimes Deblieux confuses the observers. Having opposed three of Rainach's segregation bills on technical points, Rainach came to the administration's side in throwing out the $12 million appropriation amendment.

In reality, he bucked those members of the Senate who have been kindest to him.

To best explain it, Deblieux votes his convictions.

Mystery Man

Back again is Monroe's mystery man. When the wine tax was meeting its destruction Tuesday, Ben Holt said, "I'm about half-disgusted with that fellow Clark."

Apparently he is. Holt joined his colleagues alone at a crayfish bisque party in St. Landry parish Wednesday. Asked where his friend was Holt said, "I left him in Baton Rouge.

"I am getting kinda worried about that fellow Clark, though," Holt explained. "Looks like I might have to reveal his identity."

No Publicity

One of the most interesting things which we noted this week was the silence on the part of those legislators who withdrew their special appropriations bills after grabbing the headlines when they introduced them.

Prior to the opening of the legislature, we had several legislators appear quite forward in telling of their loot bills for such and so projects.

But when they started withdrawing them Thursday, not one tipped us ahead of time.

As one observer put it, "Seventy - five per cent of the bills were introduced for publicity."

STEALING, POLICE SAY — Olga Lepesjinskaia, star of Russia's Bolshoi Ballet, was caught shoplifting in a Brussels, Belgium, department store, police said today. She was released after questioning. Police said that unless the store wants to prosecute, there will be no further action. (AP Wirephoto).

WRONG PARTY

MEMPHIS, Tenn — (UPI) — Mrs. E.G. Geater took pictures of her two-year-old son's birthday party, then sent them off by mail to be developed. The roll of film got lost, and Mrs. Geater asked the post office to trace it. The post office reported it had an unclaimed roll that "could" be hers. Only way to tell was to develop it. The pictures were of a birthday party, but the party was for twin four-year old girls.

Mail Carrier Retires After 50 Years On Job

LILLIE (Special) — A veteran rural mail carrier who has served more than 50 years on his job is scheduled to retire here tomorrow.

B. F. Farrar, the only carrier R. F. D. No. 2 out of the Lillie Post Office has known, served under five postmasters: B. F. Post, Bernice Gould, C. H. Cherry, C. L. Nelson and C. C. Brown. The route originated June 2, 1908.

Means of transportation on the route have varied from horseback, two-wheel cart, wagon to automobile. In bad weather, Farrar walked his route on some occasions.

Traveling approximately 470,500 miles during his 50 years of service, Farrar proved himself a servant and friend to his patrons.

C. L. Nelson has been appointed temporary carrier for the route.

Americans Must Let Hair Down In British School

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON, June 28 (AP)—The Royal Academy of Dramatic Art is no place for a crew-cut or short bob. Acting in Britain needs hair.

But they soon learned it's the old-fashioned long-haired approach of the Shakespearean stage — not the crew-cut vigor of the American stage —that is being taught in Britain.

Now 26-year-old Thomas Paige Sawyer of Topeka, Kan., is encouraging a beard, and 18-year-old Ellen Sheean of New York is letting her bob lengthen.

Tom is being prepared to play Macbeth in an academy presentation of the Shakespearean tragedy. Ellen merely knows that she is in for "something longhaired."

The two are among eight Americans studying at Britain's most famous dramatic school. The academy is patronized by royalty and supported by the nation's theatrical profession. A bust of playwright George Bernard Shaw, who remembered the academy in his controversial will, surveys traffic at the entrance.

The academy, which has a capacity enrollment of 260 usually makes room for about 10 Americans. They are chosen at yearly auditions in New York and then come here for two of the toughest years in their young lives.

In a building near the University of London, the academy hammers drama into them and teachers them fencing, phonetics, deportment and the histories of drama, costume and decor.

The British, said Mimi Shelton of Asheville, N. C., have a different approach to drama. "Some of us who have had some theatrical experience in the United States have a chance to get impressions of some quite different techniques here," she said.

"In America, theater has guts and vigor. Here it has polished style."

"After American realism it is pleasant to come into an atmosphere in which there is more appreciation of beauty," Sawyer said. "It is agreeable to inject a bit of poetry into acting, and while I'm here and have the chance I'm bearing down hard on Shakespearean roles."

"I spend more money for cigarettes (about 50 cents a package in London) than for rent," Sawyer said.

Notes On A Cocktail Party For T.S. Eliot

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — "To meet Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Eliot," the card says.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Straus Jr., "request the pleasure ... cocktails 5 to 7... RSVP."

I RSVP. Who would miss a cocktail party for the Nobel prize winner who wrote "The Cocktail Party?"

The maid downstairs takes your hat and up you go out of quiet into bedlam.

Here are publishers, authors, critics, their friends and acquaintances, teachers, wives, husbands. There is a tremendous buss-buzz-buzz and he-said and she-said:

"We got back from Europe yesterday."

"You read her new one?"

Fill that up for you sir?"

"Is there any other poet really!"

"I should remember your name but I don't."

Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, Eliot's publisher, is represented by Strauss; the kind and busy hostess, herself an author, the Cudahy and the Farrar, editor Robert Giroux and publicity director Lynn Caine.

The New York Times, led by Sunday editor Lester Markel, an author himself, has turned out in force. The Herald Tribune and the World - Telegram & Sun are represented, and among the wives are two stand - ins for husband on Time and The New Yorker magazines. There are authors unattached to papers: Jean Stafford, Mary McCarthy, poet Marianne Moore, James Johnson Sweeney (director of the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation museum) and Virgilia Peterson, currently a radio speaker. Publishing houses New Directions and Viking, the Book - of - the Month Club, the Ford Foundation, Harper's Bazaar and Publisher's Weekly have sent spokesmen.

Besides all the people you know without being introduced, there are many nameless others, bearded and bald, all dressed up or very informal, loudly talking in the middle of things or bashful in a corner, never missing a passing waiter or never touching a drop.

How does Eliot behave at his own party? You find the visiting poet, American-born but London resident, as successful with plays as with books, astraddle the arm of his wife's chair. He gets up, you shake his hand, and Mrs. Eliot's.

"You're so good to come and see us, Mrs. Eliot."

"Everybody is so nice."

She has received a wedding present from Miss Moore: A framed photo of her famous husband when he was younger, before the new wife met him. She is blonde, pinkly pale, as English as Bovril and set teas, and as likable as can be. He is stooped, even his head stoops; bespectacled, imposingly wrinkled. Was ever a literary figure so utterly literary looking?

Eliot says: "No, I haven't seen Ezra Pound (the American poet just released from an asylum, a profound influence on Eliot who has always staunchly defended him). I don't expect to, I'm afraid. Next time, I hope."

He switches to pounds: "I can spend here only the money I earn here. But I buy my passage in pounds."

You get out of the crowd around him; it's like being squeezed out of a tube. Someone asks: "What do you say to the great Eliot?" and someone answers: "How do you do." The first person disappears for a minute and then reports: "I said how do you do and he said it back."

Miss Moore Wryly takes to task a Columbia professor who is present on the subject of one who is not: "That article said people shouldn't look to Marianne Moore for the lyrical and it was signed LT and who could that be put Lionel Trilling'."

A painter's wife talks of his new work in a Washington church; someone thinks Pound was badly treated.

The people who stay late pay for it this time. Putting down their empty glasses, picking up a last tidbit, bidding their hosts goodnight and thanks ever so much, they hurry down to the street to find it is pouring. They wait in line, subdued, the fun all over, as taxis at delayed intervals are flagged down, load up and drive splashing off.

Thoughts Of A Saintly Boy In New Work

A young boy, Roger, of a saintliness at least as uncommon in literature as in life, is the central figure in this novel. Set in upper New York State half a century ago, the story tells of the effect of Roger's influence on people whose ages vary greatly but whose temperaments, except perhaps for mad Isabel, are seraphic. There is action, and then a climax, but this is not a novel in any conventional sense. It is, in Roger's words, and in Long's constant practice and purpose, an unremitting time of "having the most wonderful thoughts."

Mrs. Lindbergh was just the one to write the sympathetic preface. She did not know Long, she says, but corresponded with him. He died before this book was published. Some 40 years ago in "Song" he wrote of the dead:

"They are safe and shall not fade
After everything is done,
Past the solace of the shade
Or the rescue of the sun."

Lacking: A Head Or Tale

THE HARD BLUE SKY. By Shirley Ann Grau. Knopf. $5.

Just west of the Mississsippi delta on an island, low enough to be washed during hurricanes but high enough for homes if they are built on stilts, there is a fishing village chosen as setting for this first novel.

People named Claverie, LeBlanc, Richaud, Boudreau Arcenaux, Livaudais and Landry, or Didi, Philomene, Adele, Claudie, Marie and Andree, carry on their simple and elemental lives in a poetic and evocative patois. There are familiar fictional features — the girl and boy wanting love and fearfully picking a mate, the boy lost in the swamp, the mother - in - law hard to endure. The people are as vivid as in Miss Grau's admirable short stories, "The Black Prince." But unhappily this is not a novel but rather a great over - extended sketch without much head or tail or almost, tale.

RED SCHOOL HOUSE

Complacency Is Attacked

THIS IS THE CHALLENGE. By William Benton. Associated College Presses. $3.95.

Former Sen. Benton went to the Soviet Union in 1955 for a brief fact-finding trip. He devoted particular attention to the Soviet educational system. He returned to warn that the U. S. S. R. was making great progress in training and educating its young people — particularly in science and technology — and that America must make a tremendous effort to meet this challenge. Now that the Sputniks have made America conscious of Soviet advances, Benton has made available in book form his notes and observations.

The book was edited by Edward W. Barrett, dean of the Columbia School of Journalism, and carries a foreword by journalist John Gunther and a prefatory note by Adlai Stevenson.

The bulk of the book is speeches, articles and testimony before congressional committees and memoranda. Of this material only a small part becomes publicly available for the first time.

"This is the challenge" brings together many important facts about the U. S. S. R. and intelligent commentary by the author. It also presents concrete proposals to speed up our educational process. It is objective and sane — and impressive testimony to Benton's energy in attempting to make Americans aware of the continued dangers which lie in complacency.

An Excellent Work By Top Zippy Writer

MAIDEN'S PRAYER By Joan Fleming (Ives Washburn, Inc., $2.95.)

When Miss Maiden found herself free at last after many years of catering to other people's whims of iron, she was full of enthusiastic plans for the kind of life she wanted to live. Therefore, the appearance of the mysterious Aladdin, originally from Persia, and embodying all the exotic charm and flavor of the East, seemed to be an answer to prayer.

After the remarkably helpful Aladdin offered to sell her ancestral heirlooms at fabulous prices, her wildest dreams came nowhere near the actual results of his efforts. Neither could she have foreseen the romance that followed from a wholly unexpected quarter.

THE MODERNISTS:

Bold Investigation

THE BANQUET YEARS. By Roger Shattuck. Harcourt. Brace. $8.50.

Four men are the principal subjects of this bold investigation into the nature of what some folks call, pretentiously and incorrectly but comprehensibly the "moderne" or "modernistic" book, poem, play, painting and musical score. The works of this quartet ran from about 1885 to 1918 but their spirit runs on still, and their color, shape and substance are to be seen in much of the culture of our times.

The four chosen astutely by Shattuck to illustrate his interpretation of the marvelous creative fever that raged in Paris in the 30 years surrounding the turn of the century are a painter, a composer and a pair of writers:

Rousseau was not so simple as he seemed, nor was Apollinaire so sophisticated, Shattuck says; and his thesis is that the progression from one to the other contained the "vital principle" of what he aptly names "The Banquet Years."

Born in 1844 in Laval—Jarry's birthplace, too—Rosseau worked in the local Paris toll office, served in uniform, was a "Sunday" painter and achieved fame with such naive canvases as "The Sleeping Gypsy" and "The Jungle Lion." People who know their painters better than their paintings, as some do, may remember him best for that fabulous Bohemian banquet about which, as this devoted student of the era notes, there are written accounts by at least half a dozen participants, among them Gertrude and Leo Stein and Picasso's one time mistres, Fernande de Olivier.

Satie, born in 1866, one of "Les Six," wrote tinkly tart and witty pieces, short-breathed, novel and fresh as the dawning century, "Three Pieces in the Shape of a Pear," for example.

Jarry, whose birth date is 1873, is perhaps the least known to us; but those who do know him will identify him as author of "Ubu Roi," which stirred Paris as no play had done since Hugo.

Apollinaire, born in 1860 in Rome and a Frenchman by choice, wrote "Les Mamelles de Tiresias" which, to Poulenc's music, has been performed several times in this country. Apollinaire was in a fashion the impresario of the group, Shattuck says; he defined cubism, and eloquently upheld the cause of all kinds of modern art. He died only two days before the end of World War I, in which he was severaly wounded.

Out of this biographical tangle Shattuck gets the picture of the purpose and accomplishment of our artistic endeavors. These four in Paris — the locale is important — — broke away from what he calls the arts of transition and gave us the "arts of juxtaposition," of "nextness." Then he carries it farther to represent it as the ultimate simultaneity, the coming together in a single flash instead of the traditional going-on. This is the repetitiveness of Gertrude Stein; this is the many sides of an object shown all at once cubistically as by Picasso instead of the old fashioned thinning-out into perspective; this is the convergence of all meanings to a single instant in the new writing.

Shattuck has an enviable share of the wit he writes about — Jarry was "something of a sensible maniac," he says, and the Rousseau banquet was "a lark in earnest." Or he can cap an argument with a sentence that recapitulates and demonstrates all by itself, as when he comments that "the subject of a painting is not what it started with but what it ends up with."

Aside from the pleasure you get out of this book, there is the inestimable profit. This is a brilliant examination of the character of modern artistic expression. The next time anybody says he doesn't know what this modern stuff is all about tell him: "Read Shattuck." It is the wonderfully complete answer.

Crime Club Selection Is Top Suspense

THE WRECK OF THE GREY CAT By Winston Graham (Doubleday, $3.75.)

A Crime Club historical mystery and one that you will not lay down until the last page is read.

In the summer of 1898 young Anthony came to the Cornish port of Falmouth to live with his uncle Joe Veal. Life at "Smoky Joe's" cafe was dull and lonely for the boy—until he discovered a peephole through which he could peer into his uncle's study . . .

until he unearthed a dead man's will . . .

until he realized, too late, that he had seen far too much, and found himself aboard The Grey Cat on her disastrous last voyage . . .

Dog Of Dying Girl Killed

A few hours later, Trixy darted under the wheels of a passing car and was killed.

Americans Must Let Hair Down In British School

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON, June 28 (AP)—The Royal Academy of Dramatic Art is no place for a crew-cut or short bob. Acting in Britain needs hair.

But they soon learned it's the old-fashioned long-haired approach of the Shakespearean stage — not the crew-cut vigor of the American stage —that is being taught in Britain.

Now 26-year-old Thomas Paige Sawyer of Topeka, Kan., is encouraging a beard, and 18-year-old Ellen Sheean of New York is letting her bob lengthen.

Tom is being prepared to play Macbeth in an academy presentation of the Shakespearean tragedy. Ellen merely knows that she is in for "something longhaired."

The two are among eight Americans studying at Britain's most famous dramatic school. The academy is patronized by royalty and supported by the nation's theatrical profession. A bust of playwright George Bernard Shaw, who remembered the academy in his controversial will, surveys traffic at the entrance.

The academy, which has a capacity enrollment of 260 usually makes room for about 10 Americans. They are chosen at yearly auditions in New York and then come here for two of the toughest years in their young lives.

In a building near the University of London, the academy hammers drama into them and teachers them fencing, phonetics, deportment and the histories of drama, costume and decor.

The British, said Mimi Shelton of Asheville, N. C., have a different approach to drama. "Some of us who have had some theatrical experience in the United States have a chance to get impressions of some quite different techniques here," she said.

"In America, theater has guts and vigor. Here it has polished style."

"After American realism it is pleasant to come into an atmosphere in which there is more appreciation of beauty," Sawyer said. "It is agreeable to inject a bit of poetry into acting, and while I'm here and have the chance I'm bearing down hard on Shakespearean roles."

"I spend more money for cigarettes (about 50 cents a package in London) than for rent," Sawyer said.

Notes On A Cocktail Party For T.S. Eliot

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — "To meet Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Eliot." the card says.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Straus Jr., "request the pleasure ... cocktails 5 to 7... RSVP."

The maid downstairs takes your hat and up you go out of quiet into bedlam.

Here are publishers, authors, critics, their friends and acquaintances, teachers, wives, husbands. There is a tremendous buss-buzz-buzz and he-said and she-said:

"We got back from Europe yesterday."

"You read her new one?"

Fill that up for you sir?"

"Is there any other poet really!"

"I should remember your name but I don't."

Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, Eliot's publisher, is represented by Strauss; the kind and busy hostess, herself an author, the Cudahy and the Farrar, editor Robert Giroux and publicity director Lynn Caine.

The New York Times, led by Sunday editor Lester Markel, an author himself, has turned out in force. The Herald Tribune and the World - Telegram & Sun are represented, and among the wives are two stand - ins for husband on Time and The New Yorker magazines. There are authors unattached to papers: Jean Stafford, Mary McCarthy, poet Marianne Moore, James Johnson Sweeney (director of the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation museum) and Virgilia Peterson, currently a radio speaker. Publishing houses New Directions and Viking, the Book - of - the Month Club, the Ford Foundation, Harper's Bazaar and Publisher's Weekly have sent spokesmen.

Besides all the people you know without being introduced, there are many nameless others, bearded and bald, all dressed up or very informal, loudly talking in the middle of things or bashful in a corner, never missing a passing waiter or never touching a drop.

How does Eliot behave at his own party? You find the visiting poet, American-born but London resident, as successful with plays as with books, astraddle the arm of his wife's chair. He gets up, you shake his hand, and Mrs. Eliot's.

"You're so good to come and see us, Mrs. Eliot."

"Everybody is so nice."

She has received a wedding present from Miss Moore: A framed photo of her famous husband when he was younger, before the new wife met him. She is blonde, pinkly pale, as English as Bovril and set teas, and as likable as can be. He is stooped, even his head stoops; bespectacled, imposingly wrinkled. Was ever a literary figure so utterly literary looking?

Eliot says: "No, I haven't seen Ezra Pound (the American poet just released from an asylum, a profound influence on Eliot who has always staunchly defended him). I don't expect to, I'm afraid. Next time, I hope."

He switches to pounds: "I can spend here only the money I earn here. But I buy my passage in pounds."

You get out of the crowd around him; it's like being squeezed out of a tube. Someone asks: "What do you say to the great Eliot?" and someone answers: "How do you do." The first person disappears for a minute and then reports: "I said how do you do and he said it back."

Miss Moore Wryly takes to task a Columbia professor who is present on the subject of one who is not: "That article said people shouldn't look to Marianne Moore for the lyrical and it was signed LT and who could that be put Lionel Trilling'."

A painter's wife talks of his new work in a Washington church; someone thinks Pound was badly treated.

The people who stay late pay for it this time. Putting down their empty glasses, picking up a last tidbit, bidding their hosts goodnight and thanks ever so much, they hurry down to the street to find it is pouring. They wait in line, subdued, the fun all over, as taxis at delayed intervals are flagged down, load up and drive splashing off.

Thoughts Of A Saintly Boy In New Work

A young boy, Roger, of a saintliness at least as uncommon in literature as in life, is the central figure in this novel. Set in upper New York State half a century ago, the story tells of the effect of Roger's influence on people whose ages vary greatly but whose temperaments, except perhaps for mad Isabel, are seraphic. There is action, and then a climax, but this is not a novel in any conventional sense. It is, in Roger's words, and in Long's constant practice and purpose, an unremitting time of "having the most wonderful thoughts."

Mrs. Lindbergh was just the one to write the sympathetic preface. She did not know Long, she says, but corresponded with him. He died before this book was published. Some 40 years ago in "Song" he wrote of the dead:

"They are safe and shall not fade
After everything is done,
Past the solace of the shade
Or the rescue of the sun."

Lacking: A Head Or Tale

THE HARD BLUE SKY. By Shirley Ann Grau. Knopf. $5.

Just west of the Mississsippi delta on an island, low enough to be washed during hurricanes but high enough for homes if they are built on stilts, there is a fishing village chosen as setting for this first novel.

People named Claverie, LeBlanc, Richaud, Boudreau Arcenaux, Livaudais and Landry, or Didi, Philomene, Adele, Claudie, Marie and Andree, carry on their simple and elemental lives in a poetic and evocative patois. There are familiar fictional features — the girl and boy wanting love and fearfully picking a mate, the boy lost in the swamp, the mother - in - law hard to endure. The people are as vivid as in Miss Grau's admirable short stories, "The Black Prince." But unhappily this is not a novel but rather a great over - extended sketch without much head or tail or almost, tale.

RED SCHOOL HOUSE

Complacency Is Attacked

Former Sen. Benton went to the Soviet Union in 1955 for a brief fact-finding trip. He devoted particular attention to the Soviet educational system. He returned to warn that the U. S. S. R. was making great progress in training and educating its young people — particularly in science and technology — and that America must make a tremendous effort to meet this challenge. Now that the Sputniks have made America conscious of Soviet advances, Benton has made available in book form his notes and observations.

The book was edited by Edward W. Barrett, dean of the Columbia School of Journalism, and carries a foreword by journalist John Gunther and a prefatory note by Adlai Stevenson.

The bulk of the book is speeches, articles and testimony before congressional committees and memoranda. Of this material only a small part becomes publicly available for the first time.

"This is the challenge" brings together many important facts about the U. S. S. R. and intelligent commentary by the author. It also presents concrete proposals to speed up our educational process. It is objective and sane — and impressive testimony to Benton's energy in attempting to make Americans aware of the continued dangers which lie in complacency.

MAIDEN'S PRAYER By Joan Fleming (Ives Washburn, Inc., $2.95.)

When Miss Maiden found herself free at last after many years of catering to other people's whims of iron, she was full of enthusiastic plans for the kind of life she wanted to live. Therefore, the appearance of the mysterious Aladdin, originally from Persia, and embodying all the exotic charm and flavor of the East, seemed to be an answer to prayer.

After the remarkably helpful Aladdin offered to sell her ancestral heirlooms at fabulous prices, her wildest dreams came nowhere near the actual results of his efforts. Neither could she have foreseen the romance that followed from a wholly unexpected quarter.

THE MODERNISTS:

Bold Investigation

THE BANQUET YEARS. By Roger Shattuck. Harcourt. Brace. $8.50.

Four men are the principal subjects of this bold investigation into the nature of what some folks call, pretentiously and incorrectly but comprehensibly the "moderne" or "modernistic" book, poem, play, painting and musical score. The works of this quartet ran from about 1885 to 1918 but their spirit runs on still, and their color, shape and substance are to be seen in much of the culture of our times.

The four chosen astutely by Shattuck to illustrate his interpretation of the marvelous creative fever that raged in Paris in the 30 years surrounding the turn of the century are a painter, a composer and a pair of writers:

Rousseau was not so simple as he seemed, nor was Apollinaire so sophisticated, Shattuck says; and his thesis is that the progression from one to the other contained the "vital principle" of what he aptly names "The Banquet Years."

Born in 1844 in Laval—Jarry's birthplace, too—Rosseau worked in the local Paris toll office, served in uniform, was a "Sunday" painter and achieved fame with such naive canvases as "The Sleeping Gypsy" and "The Jungle Lion." People who know their painters better than their paintings, as some do, may remember him best for that fabulous Bohemian banquet about which, as this devoted student of the era notes, there are written accounts by at least half a dozen participants, among them Gertrude and Leo Stein and Picasso's one time mistress, Fernande de Olivier.

Satie, born in 1866, one of "Les Six," wrote tinkly tart and witty pieces, short-breathed, novel and fresh as the dawning century, "Three Pieces in the Shape of a Pear," for example.

Jarry, whose birth date is 1873, is perhaps the least known to us; but those who do know him will identify him as author of "Ubu Roi," which stirred Paris as no play had done since Hugo.

Apollinaire, born in 1860 in Rome and a Frenchman by choice, wrote "Les Mamelles de Tiresias" which, to Poulenc's music, has been performed several times in this country. Apollinaire was in a fashion the impresario of the group, Shattuck says; he defined cubism, and eloquently upheld the cause of all kinds of modern art. He died only two days before the end of World War I, in which he was severaly wounded.

Out of this biographical tangle Shattuck gets the picture of the purpose and accomplishment of our artistic endeavors. These four in Paris — the locale is important — broke away from what he calls the arts of transition and gave us the "arts of juxtaposition," of "nextness." Then he carries it farther to represent it as the ultimate simultaneity, the coming together in a single flash instead of the traditional going-on. This is the repetitiveness of Gertrude Stein; this is the many sides of an object shown all at once cubistically as by Picasso instead of the old fashioned thinning-out into perspective; this is the convergence of all meanings to a single instant in the new writing.

Shattuck has an enviable share of the wit he writes about — Jarry was "something of a sensible maniac," he says, and the Rousseau banquet was "a lark in earnest." Or he can cap an argument with a sentence that recapitulates and demonstrates all by itself, as when he comments that "the subject of a painting is not what it started with but what it ends up with."

Aside from the pleasure you get out of this book, there is the inestimable profit. This is a brilliant examination of the character of modern artistic expression. The next time anybody says he doesn't know what this modern stuff is all about tell him: "Read Shattuck." It is the wonderfully complete answer.

Crime Club Selection Is Top Suspense

THE WRECK OF THE GREY CAT By Winston Graham (Doubleday, $3.75.)

A Crime Club historical mystery and one that you will not lay down until the last page is read.

In the summer of 1898 young Anthony came to the Cornish port of Falmouth to live with his uncle Joe Veal. Life at "Smoky Joe's" cafe was dull and lonely for the boy—until he discovered a peephole through which he could peer into his uncle's study . . .

until he unearthed a dead man's will . . .

until he realized, too late, that he had seen far too much, and found himself aboard The Grey Cat on her disastrous last voyage . . .

Dog Of Dying Girl Killed

A few hours later, Trixy darted under the wheels of a passing car and was killed.

AT RACKETS PROBE

See Unmasking Of Big Combine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate rackets probers predicted Saturday they will unmask in hearings starting Monday a criminal combine wielding great power in businesses and labor unions.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) said hearings by the committee he heads will show a continuing tie between what the senator called an American criminal syndicate and the deported gangster Charles (Lucky) Luciano in Italy. Some, McClellan said, call it the Mafia.

He said he has subpoenaed 100 witnesses, including many racketeers and gangsters, for hearings here which will run off and on for months. McClellan said President James R. Hoffa on the Teamsters Union, with whom the committee has tangled previously, may be heard next month.

The starting point, McClellan said, will be an effort to cut through mystery still surrounding an assemblage raided last November by police at Apalachin, N. Y.

The police hinted but never proved that mobsters and others had gathered to carve up rackets left without a boss by the killing of Albert Anastasia. Some of those at Apalachin were evidently reputable businessmen.

McClellan said the hearings will switch from the Apalachin meeting to a study of gangster operations in the garment industry in New York, Scranton and Pittston, Pa.; then to Detroit and Chicago. Next, he said, they will cover other cities from coast to coast.

St. Louis, Mo., East St. Louis, Ill., Cleveland, Miami, Los Angeles and San Francisco had been named as among the cities whose underworlds were under scrutiny.

McClellan and Robert F. Kennedy, the committee counsel, named Vito Genovese, New York mobster, as perhaps the major witness from the Apalachin meeting ordered to be on hand for the hearing Monday.

McClellan said some men who had nothing to do with the Apalachin meeting also are under subpoena.

"Because some of these matters will directly affect the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and James R. Hoffa, its general president," McClellan said, "it is expected that Hoffa will be called to testify before the end of July."

He said Hoffa will be quizzed at that time also about the committee's accusations that Hoffa conspired with Carpenters Union President Maurice A. Hutcheson in an attempt to fix an Indiana grand jury.

New Officer Installation By Jaycees

The Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce will install incoming officers at the annual installation banquet to be held at the Fireside Room of The Rendezvous at 7 p.m. Monday, announced H. W. (Buddy) Tolson, chairman for the event.

State president Tom Ruffin of Shreveport will make the featured address and install the new officers. Ruffin will install the Monroe Jaycee elected president, Joe Rabun. Other officers to be installed are vice presidents, Bob Aymond and John Birdsong Jr. and secretary, Guy Jones.

Chapter treasurer will be Louis Daniel and the new board of directors will consist of Sidney Seegers, Joe Maggio, Rev. Jim Wattley, Jerry Johnston, Buster Crowler, William C. Kelly and Gene Ridings.

Awards Set

Out going president Billy R. Hargiss will present awards to several chairmen who have completed their projects in a commendable manner. As is the custom, the president will recognize those Jaycee members whom he considers "key men" with the presentation of the key awards.

Mrs. Ruffin will install the new Monroe Jaycee Jayne officers at this meeting. Incoming Jayne officers are Mrs. Gertrude Gill, president; Mrs. Caroline Masur, vice president; secretary, Mrs. Bonnie Passman; treasurer Mrs. Lybby Anders; membership chairman, Mrs. Nancy Aymond, publicity chairman, Mrs. Tom Easterling and sunshine chairman, Mrs. Vera Kelso.

Hargiss urged all members who have not made reservations to contact Tolson and do so. Over 125 Jaycees and their wives are expected. Hargiss said, "This will be the largest attended Monroe Jaycee installation within the past three years."

Reds Postpone Going Abroad

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—A government delegation's trip to Moscow has been postponed because Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is going aboard. Chancellor Julius Raab said Saturday.

The trip, originaly set for July 13, was put off until July 21 at the request of the Soviet ambassador to Vienna.

An Austrian government spokesman said it was not known here

SAM INGRAM

Ingram Heads N.E. Company Of Scabbard

Other newly-elected officers of the national honorary military organization include: 1st. Lt. Bennie Andrews, West Monroe junior, vice president; 2nd. Lt. Paul Fleming, West Monroe junior, treasurer; and 1st. Sgt. Jackie DuPriest, recording secretary.

Installed Here

Company B-13, which the local campus unit of Scabbard and Blade is called, was installed here in February 1956. Charter members consisted of 27 advanced cadets under command of Cadet Capt. John Earl Taylor of Farmerville.

Founders of the national organization underscored the principle that military service is an obligation of citizenship. The society cooperates with the Military Department to preserve and develop essential qualities of efficient officers.

Scabbard and Blade functions as a unit in sponsoring such events at Northeast as the annual military ball, one of the largest events on the social calendar, the faculty adviser said. During the past school year the organization served with Company Y-5 of the National Society of Pershing Rifles in cosponsoring the function.

Strike Action Voiced

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers reported Saturday its members were voting overwhelmingly in favor of authorizing strike action if necessary to back up the union's contract demands on General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

The union gave the latest tally as 128,127 in favor of striking and 8,645 against.

Strike votes among the union's locals at Big Three plants throughout the nation were requested by UAW President Walter P. Reuther to support union negotiators in their deadlocked contract talks with the carmakers.

UAW members employed at Big Three plants have been working without contracts for the past four weeks since the old ones ran out.

The strike votes are expected to continue through July. Reuther has indicated he is in no hurry about threatening strike action so long as the companies have a large inventory of unsold 1958 model cars.

The voting has just started among Chrysler workers and is less than half completed among GM and Ford workers.

Girl, 14, Receives Injury In Wreck

A 14-year-old West Monroe girl received an ankle injury at 7 a.m. yesterday, when a 1941 truck in which she was a passenger collided with a new Cadillac.

Joyace Floyd of Route 3, Box 138, West Monroe, was riding in the truck driven by C. O. McMahon, 74, of Lomran, Miss., going south on S. Eighth St.

At the intersection of Texas Avenue and S. Eight, authorities said, the traffic light was out of order, and the truck collided with a car driven by Bill M. Daugherty, 39, of Bossier City, who was going west on Texas Avenue.

The right side of the car was damaged, and the front of the truck was caved in.

Monroe police who investigated said that the truck had to be towed away. No charges were filed.

Father Of 7 Drowns Near Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Ralph Louis Baillio, 46-year-old city electrician and father of seven children, drowned Saturday in Saline Bayou near Alexandria

The body was recovered several hours later by sheriff's deputies who were alerted by a man who saw Baillio's unoccupied boat.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Baillio; his widow, three sons, four daughters, and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held Monday.

Services Set For 15 Killed

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — Special memorial services will be held Sunday at the base chapel for the 15 men who were killed early Friday in a crash of a jet Stratotanker.

Chaplain Col. William F. Taylor will conduct one service at 11 a.m. EDT and Chaplain Maj. Lawrence A. Dickson J.R. a second service at 11:45 a.m. It was explained two services will be held because of the many persons who may want to attend.

Says Few Can Afford House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Housing Conference said Saturday that fewer than 30 per cent of all American families can afford to buy and maintain a new house at present prices.

It made this estimate on the basis of a survey of 29 cities and on the assumption that a family should not spend more than a fifth of its income for housing.

The conference is a private group which has plugged for federal public housing programs since 1931.

Bob Hope Wins Union Award

WASHINGTON (AP)—Comedian Bob Hope was announced Saturday as the winner of the 1958 Murray-Green Award of the AFL-CIO.

The award, in memory of the late labor leaders Philip Murray and William Green, consists of a medal and $5,000.

The AFL-CIO said Hope was chosen for his services to the men and women of the armed services, whom he has entertained all over the world.

Tire Blowout, Freak Accident Fractures Leg

After he had the tire repaired and was replacing it on the car, the rim blew off and smashed into his leg, causing what was described as "nearly a compound fracture. The bone was pinching the skin, but had not protruded through."

He was taken to the hospital by a Hixson Brothers ambulance from Monroe, at 2:30 p.m., and his leg was placed in a cast.

John O. Groat, who gave his name to the settlement on Scotland's far northeastern tip, was a man of enormous tact, the National Geographic Magazine says. He supposedly had seven sons with turbulent dispositions. So he built a house with eight doors and an octagonal table to give them all equal precedence.

About 119,000 Texans work in drilling and production of oil for annual wages totaling $658 million. There are 47,000 employed in refining, with total annual wages of $294 million.

AT RACKETS PROBE

See Unmasking Of Big Combine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate rackets probers predicted Saturday they will unmask in hearings starting Monday a criminal combine wielding great power in businesses and labor unions.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark) said hearings by the committee he heads will show a continuing tie between what the senator called an American criminal syndicate and the deported gangster Charles (Lucky) Luciano in Italy. Some, McClellan said, call it the Mafia.

He said he has subpoenaed 100 witnesses, including many racketeers and gangsters, for hearings here which will run off and on for months. McClellan said President James R. Hoffa on the Teamsters Union, with whom the committee has tangled previously, may be heard next month.

The starting point, McClellan said, will be an effort to cut through mystery still surrounding an assemblage raided last November by police at Apalachin, N. Y.

The police hinted but never proved that mobsters and others had gathered to carve up rackets left without a boss by the killing of Albert Anastasia. Some of those at Apalachin were evidently reputable businessmen.

McClellan said the hearings will switch from the Apalachin meeting to a study of gangster operations in the garment industry in New York, Scranton and Pittston, Pa.; then to Detroit and Chicago. Next, he said, they will cover other cities from coast to coast.

St. Louis, Mo., East St. Louis, Ill., Cleveland, Miami, Los Angeles and San Francisco had been named as among the cities whose underworlds were under scrutiny.

McClellan and Robert F. Kennedy, the committee counsel, named Vito Genovese, New York mobster, as perhaps the major witness from the Apalachin meeting ordered to be on hand for the hearing Monday.

McClellan said some men who had nothing to do with the Apalachin meeting also are under subpoena.

"Because some of these matters will directly affect the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and James R. Hoffa, its general president," McClellan said, "it is expected that Hoffa will be called to testify before the end of July."

He said Hoffa will be quizzed at that time also about the committee's accusations that Hoffa conspired with Carpenters Union President Maurice A. Hutcheson in an attempt to fix an Indiana grand jury.

New Officer Installation By Jaycees

The Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce will install incoming officers at the annual installation banquet to be held at the Fireside Room of The Rendezvous at 7 p.m. Monday, announced H. W. (Buddy) Tolson, chairman for the event.

State president Tom Ruffin of Shreveport will make the featured address and install the new officers. Ruffin will install the Monroe Jaycee elected president, Joe Rabun. Other officers to be installed are vice presidents, Bob Aymond and John Birdsong Jr. and secretary, Guy Jones.

Chapter treasurer will be Louis Daniel and the new board of directors will consist of Sidney Seegers, Joe Maggio, Rev. Jim Wattley, Jerry Johnston, Buster Crowler, William C. Kelly and Gene Ridings.

Awards Set

Out going president Billy R. Hargiss will present awards to several chairmen who have completed their projects in a commendable manner. As is the custom, the president will recognize those Jaycee members whom he considers "key men" with the presentation of the key awards.

Mrs. Ruffin will install the new Monroe Jaycee Jayne officers at this meeting. Incoming Jayne officers are Mrs. Gertrude Gill, president; Mrs. Caroline Masur, vice president; secretary, Mrs. Bonnie Passman; treasurer Mrs. Lybby Anders; membership chairman, Mrs. Nancy Aymond, publicity chairman, Mrs. Tom Easterling and sunshine chairman, Mrs. Vera Kelso.

Hargiss urged all members who have not made reservations to contact Tolson and do so. Over 125 Jaycees and their wives are expected. Hargiss said, "This will be the largest attended Monroe Jaycee installation within the past three years."

Strike Action Voiced

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers reported Saturday its members were voting overwhelmingly in favor of authorizing strike action if necessary to back up the union's contract demands on General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

The union gave the latest tally as 128,127 in favor of striking and 8,645 against.

Strike votes among the union's locals at Big Three plants throughout the nation were requested by UAW President Walter P. Reuther to support union negotiators in their deadlocked contract talks with the carmakers.

UAW members employed at Big Three plants have been working without contracts for the past four weeks since the old ones ran out.

The strike votes are expected to continue through July. Reuther has indicated he is in no hurry about threatening strike action so long as the companies have a large inventory of unsold 1958 model cars.

The voting has just started among Chrysler workers and is less than half completed among GM and Ford workers.

Girl, 14, Receives Injury In Wreck

A 14-year-old West Monroe girl received an ankle injury at 7 a.m. yesterday, when a 1941 truck in which she was a passenger collided with a new Cadillac.

Joyace Floyd of Route 3, Box 138, West Monroe, was riding in the truck driven by C. O. McMahon, 74, of Lomran, Miss., going south on S. Eighth St.

At the intersection of Texas Avenue and S. Eight, authorities said, the traffic light was out of order, and the truck collided with a car driven by Bill M. Daugherty, 39, of Bossier City, who was going west on Texas Avenue.

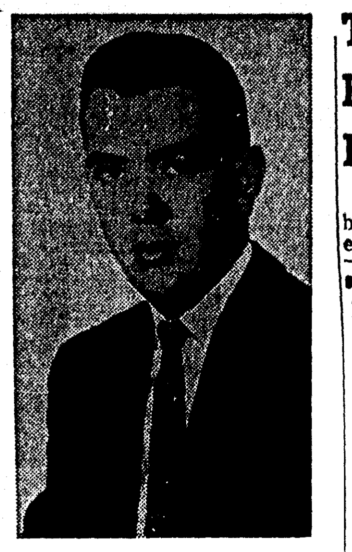
Monroe police who investigated said that the truck had to be towed away. No charges were filed.



SAM INGRAM

Ingram Heads N.E. Company Of Scabbard

Other newly-elected officers of the national honorary military organization include: 1st. Lt. Bennie Andrews, West Monroe junior, vice president; 2nd. Lt. Paul Fleming, West Monroe junior, treasurer; and 1st. Sgt. Jackie DuPriest, recording secretary.

Installed Here

Company B-13, which the local campus unit of Scabbard and Blade is called, was installed here in February 1956. Charter members consisted of 27 advanced cadets under command of Cadet Capt. John Earl Taylor of Farmerville.

Founders of the national organization underscored the principle that military service is an obligation of citizenship. The society cooperates with the Military Department to preserve and develop essential qualities of efficient officers.

Scabbard and Blade functions as a unit in sponsoring such events at Northeast as the annual military ball, one of the largest events on the social calendar, the faculty adviser said. During the past school year the organization served with Company Y-5 of the National Society of Pershing Rifles in cosponsoring the function.

Father Of 7 Drowns Near Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — Ralph Louis Baillio, 46-year-old city electrician and father of seven children, drowned Saturday in Saline Bayou near Alexandria

The body was recovered several hours later by sheriff's deputies who were alerted by a man who saw Baillio's unoccupied boat.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Baillio; his widow, three sons, four daughters, and three sisters.

Funeral services will be held Monday.

Services Set For 15 Killed

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP) — Special memorial services will be held Sunday at the base chapel for the 15 men who were killed early Friday in a crash of a jet Stratotanker.

Chaplain Col. William F. Taylor will conduct one service at 11 a.m. EDT and Chaplain Maj. Lawrence A. Dickson J.R. a second service at 11:45 a.m. It was explained two services will be held because of the many persons who may want to attend.

Says Few Can Afford House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Housing Conference said Saturday that fewer than 30 per cent of all American families can afford to buy and maintain a new house at present prices.

It made this estimate on the basis of a survey of 29 cities and on the assumption that a family should not spend more than a fifth of its income for housing.

The conference is a private group which has plugged for federal public housing programs since 1931.

Bob Hope Wins Union Award

WASHINGTON (AP)—Comedian Bob Hope was announced Saturday as the winner of the 1958 Murray-Green Award of the AFL-CIO.

The award, in memory of the late labor leaders Philip Murray and William Green, consists of a medal and $5,000.

The AFL-CIO said Hope was chosen for his services to the men and women of the armed services, whom he has entertained all over the world.

Tire Blowout, Freak Accident Fractures Leg

After he had the tire repaired and was replacing it on the car, the rim blew off and smashed into his leg, causing what was described as "nearly a compound fracture. The bone was pinching the skin, but had not protruded through."

He was taken to the hospital by a Hixson Brothers ambulance from Monroe, at 2:30 p.m., and his leg was placed in a cast.

John O. Groat, who gave his name to the settlement on Scotland's far northeastern tip, was a man of enormous tact, the National Geographic Magazine says. He supposedly had seven sons with turbulent dispositions. So he built a house with eight doors and an octagonal table to give them all equal precedence.

About 119,000 Texans work in drilling and production of oil for annual wages totaling $658 million. There are 47,000 employed in refining, with total annual wages of $294 million.

Georgia was the first state to require birth registration and to grant married women full property rights.

Miss Ruth Parkes To Wed Dr. Charles Bondurant, Jr.

Presaging an August wedding is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Edmundson Parkes of Shreveport of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Edmundson Parks, to Dr. Charles Palmer Bondurant, Jr. of Oklahoma City, Okla., son of Mrs. Charles Palmer Bondurant and the late Dr. Bondurant of Oklahoma City.

Their wedding will be solemnized Tuesday, August 19, at 8 o'clock in the evening at St. Marks Episcopal Church with Rev. J. Lawrence Plumley officiating.

The bride-elect is descended on the maternal side from Mr. and Mrs. William Micou Washburn of Monroe, and on the paternal side from Mrs. William Jay Parkes and the late Mr. Parkes of Shreveport. She received her education at C. E. Byrd High and Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Va., where she was a member of Kappa Delta social sorority.

Dr. Bondurant is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cropper of Kansas City, Mo., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer Bondurant of Miami, Mo. He attended Classen High School in Oklahoma City, Yale University, the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, and interned at the University of Michigan School of Medicine Hospital. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity, and Phi Chi medical fraternity. He is a lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Naval Reserve stationed at Subic Bay Naval Base in the Philippines.

Miss Rodriguez, Joe Otis Embry Exchange Vows

In an impressive double ring ceremony, Miss Mary Gertrude Rodriguez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. H. Rodriguez, and Joe Otis Embry, son of Mrs. Otis Embry of Springfield, Missouri and the late Mr. Embry were married.

The bride escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, was gowned in Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her shoulder length veil fell from a lace tiara. Her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered by a large white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Crawford announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Joan, to Robert Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Stewart of Piggott, Ark. The wedding will be solemnized at the First Baptist Church in Ferriday, La., on the fifth of July at seven o'clock in the evening.

Small woolen items such as gloves, socks and scarves can be kept free from moths in summer if stored in glass jars with tight lids.

Wedding Plans Revealed By Miss Sandborn

The Rev. John B. Hefley will perform the double ring ceremony at 10:00 a.m. in the First Methodist Church in Crossett. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, Mrs. W. B. Anderson will be organist, and will accompany Miss Elaine Wallace, of Dallas, Tex., vocalist.

Miss Suzanne Sandborn, of Fort Worth, Tex., sister of the bride will be maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Gerry Sue Hartman, and Miss Cynthia Smith, both of Dallas. Marian Moore and Deborah Conner will serve as flower girls.

The groom has chosen Jack Smithson as best man. Ushers will be William Robert Pape, Jr., of Oklahoma City, brother of the groom; Arthur Rubeck of Dallas) Douglas Jarvis, of Dallas, and Philip Snedecor, also of Dallas.

There will be a reception in the church parlor immediately following the ceremony.

Manufactuers, who encased feminine gams in color last spring hope to add even more glow for fall. Colors will include sienna, bronzed greens, blues, a whole range of the grey to black tones, and in browns, every shade from golden to smoky.

Miss Sharron Haynes And Charles R. Bigelow Wed In Morning Ceremony

Of wide interest was the wedding of Miss Sharron Haynes to Charles R. Bigelow. The couple exchanged vows on the morning of June 21, at a ten o'clock double ring ceremony. The Rev. Ralph Cain officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I on Dennis, and the bridegroom is the son of Emitt L. Bigelow of Oak Grove, and the late Mr. Bigelow.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a gown of imported white embroidered Swiss organdy. The gown was draped around the shoulders and gently scooped into a V neckline edged in lace. The waistline of the fitted bodice ended in graceful points, the back one ending in a fluffed butterfly bow. The bouffant skirt gracefully swept into an abbreviated chapel train. Her double veil of illusion fell from net leaves sprinkled with seed pearls. Her bouquet consisted of white roses and stephanotis centered with a white orchid. Melene and a touch of greenery added beauty and softness to the bouquet.

Miss Judy Reagan, cousin of the bride was maid of honor, while Misses Malone, Miss Glenda Bennett, Miss Barbara Elliott and Miss Nelda Dozier served as bridesmaids. They wore gowns of orchid Swiss organdy softly pleated over matching shades of taffeta. The bodice of the gowns were gently scooped in the front and plunging in the back. Gibson-Girl sleeves and orchid satin trim added an airy gracefulness to the gowns. The organdy that covered the picture hats was pleated with orchid satin trim around the opening of the crown. The bouquets were cascaded orchid pom pom mums with English ivy adding a touch of greenery. With their gowns, the maid of honor and bridesmaids wore white wrist-length gloves and white shoes.

The candlelighters were Brenda Farmer and Jan Reagan, cousins of the bride. Their gowns were identical to the bridesmaids in style and were of white Swiss organdy.

George Fontana served the groom as best man. The groomsmen and ushers were Jim Dennis, Doug Haynes, J. D. Cascio and Vincent Marsalla.

The bride's mother chose to wear for the wedding, a shell pink sheath with gently scooped neckline and brief sleeves. She wore a small feathered hat of darker pink and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Reception

A reception was held at eleven o'clock at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

The bride's table was round in style and beautifully adorned with a three-tiered wedding confection flanked by silver candelabrum. The table was laid in white organdy over satin with a deep flounce ruffle. On one end of the table was the silver coffee service while the punch bowl was on the other end.

The white and orchid theme was carried out in the reception, with several large standards of white gladioli placed at vantage points.

Registering the guests was Ann Farror.

The couple will be at home in this city.

Avoid buying lettuce with rusty-red streaks or spots. Although not harmful, they spread throughout the head and spoil its appearance.

Miss Puckett Is Engaged To George Luffey

The engagement of Miss Jane Puckett to George Louis Luffey, of this city, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Puckett of Sterlington.

The wedding will be an event of August eighth, at two o'clock in the afternoon at St. Matthews Catholic Church.

Miss Ruth Parkes To Wed Dr. Charles Bondurant, Jr.

Presaging an August wedding is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Edmundson Parkes of Shreveport of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Edmundson Parks, to Dr. Charles Palmer Bondurant, Jr. of Oklahoma City, Okla., son of Mrs. Charles Palmer Bondurant and the late Dr. Bondurant of Oklahoma City.

Their wedding will be solemnized Tuesday, August 19, at 8 o'clock in the evening at St. Marks Episcopal Church with Rev. J. Lawrence Plumley officiating.

The bride-elect is descended on the maternal side from Mr. and Mrs. William Micou Washburn of Monroe, and on the paternal side from Mrs. William Jay Parkes and the late Mr. Parkes of Shreveport. She received her education at C. E. Byrd High and Randolph-Macon Woman's College in Lynchburg, Va., where she was a member of Kappa Delta social sorority.

Dr. Bondurant is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cropper of Kansas City, Mo., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Palmer Bondurant of Miami, Mo. He attended Classen High School in Oklahoma City, Yale University, the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, and interned at the University of Michigan School of Medicine Hospital. He is a member of Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity, and Phi Chi medical fraternity. He is a lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Naval Reserve stationed at Subic Bay Naval Base in the Philippines.

Miss Rodriguez, Joe Otis Embry Exchange Vows

In an impressive double ring ceremony, Miss Mary Gertrude Rodriguez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. H. Rodriguez, and Joe Otis Embry, son of Mrs. Otis Embry of Springfield, Missouri and the late Mr. Embry were married.

The bride escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, was gowned in Chantilly lace over taffeta. Her shoulder length veil fell from a lace tiara. Her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered by a large white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Crawford announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Joan, to Robert Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Stewart of Piggott, Ark. The wedding will be solemnized at the First Baptist Church in Ferriday, La., on the fifth of July at seven o'clock in the evening.

Small woolen items such as gloves, socks and scarves can be kept free from moths in summer if stored in glass jars with tight lids.

Wedding Plans Revealed By Miss Sandborn

The Rev. John B. Hefley will perform the double ring ceremony at 10:00 a.m. in the First Methodist Church in Crossett. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, Mrs. W. B. Anderson will be organist, and will accompany Miss Elaine Wallace, of Dallas, Tex., vocalist.

Miss Suzanne Sandborn, of Fort Worth, Tex., sister of the bride will be maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Gerry Sue Hartman, and Miss Cynthia Smith, both of Dallas. Marian Moore and Deborah Conner will serve as flower girls.

The groom has chosen Jack Smithson as best man. Ushers will be William Robert Pape, Jr., of Oklahoma City, brother of the groom; Arthur Rubeck of Dallas) Douglas Jarvis, of Dallas, and Philip Snedecor, also of Dallas.

There will be a reception in the church parlor immediately following the ceremony.

Manufactuers, who encased feminine gams in color last spring hope to add even more glow for fall. Colors will include sienna, bronzed greens, blues, a whole range of the grey to black tones, and in browns, every shade from golden to smoky.

Miss Sharron Haynes And Charles R. Bigelow Wed In Morning Ceremony

Of wide interest was the wedding of Miss Sharron Haynes to Charles R. Bigelow. The couple exchanged vows on the morning of June 21, at a ten o'clock double ring ceremony. The Rev. Ralph Cain officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. I on Dennis, and the bridegroom is the son of Emitt L. Bigelow of Oak Grove, and the late Mr. Bigelow.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in a gown of imported white embroidered Swiss organdy. The gown was draped around the shoulders and gently scooped into a V neckline edged in lace. The waistline of the fitted bodice ended in graceful points, the back one ending in a fluffed butterfly bow. The bouffant skirt gracefully swept into an abbreviated chapel train. Her double veil of illusion fell from net leaves sprinkled with seed pearls. Her bouquet consisted of white roses and stephanotis centered with a white orchid. Melene and a touch of greenery added beauty and softness to the bouquet.

Miss Judy Reagan, cousin of the bride was maid of honor, while Misses Malone, Miss Glenda Bennett, Miss Barbara Elliott and Miss Nelda Dozier served as bridesmaids. They wore gowns of orchid Swiss organdy softly pleated over matching shades of taffeta. The bodice of the gowns were gently scooped in the front and plunging in the back. Gibson-Girl sleeves and orchid satin trim added an airy gracefulness to the gowns. The organdy that covered the picture hats was pleated with orchid satin trim around the opening of the crown. The bouquets were cascaded orchid pom pom mums with English ivy adding a touch of greenery. With their gowns, the maid of honor and bridesmaids wore white wrist-length gloves and white shoes.

The candlelighters were Brenda Farmer and Jan Reagan, cousins of the bride. Their gowns were identical to the bridesmaids in style and were of white Swiss organdy.

George Fontana served the groom as best man. The groomsmen and ushers were Jim Dennis, Doug Haynes, J. D. Cascio and Vincent Marsalla.

The bride's mother chose to wear for the wedding, a shell pink sheath with gently scooped neckline and brief sleeves. She wore a small feathered hat of darker pink and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Reception

A reception was held at eleven o'clock at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

The bride's table was round in style and beautifully adorned with a three-tiered wedding confection flanked by silver candelabrum. The table was laid in white organdy over satin with a deep flounce ruffle. On one end of the table was the silver coffee service while the punch bowl was on the other end.

The white and orchid theme was carried out in the reception, with several large standards of white gladioli placed at vantage points.

Registering the guests was Ann Farror.

The couple will be at home in this city.

Avoid buying lettuce with rusty-red streaks or spots. Although not harmful, they spread throughout the head and spoil its appearance.

MISS MARGARET JEANNIE RAGLAND

Miss Ragland Is Engaged To Raymond Lorren

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ragland, Sr. of Lake Providence, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Margaret Jeannie, to Loy Raymond Lorren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon L. Lorren of Bogalusa, Louisiana.

The marriage will be solemnized at 3:00 P.M., Sunday, July 27th, at the First Methodist Church in Lake Providence with Rev. George York officiating.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Lake Providence High School. She attended Louisiana State University where she was a member of Kappa Delta sorority. She later attended Northeast State College.

"The groom is a junior at Louisiana State University where he is majoring in real estate and insurance. He is affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

An impressive double ring ceremony united in marriage, Miss Janice June Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Johnson of Monroe, and Leon F. Hill, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Festus Hill, Sr. also of Monroe.

Rev. Wayne W. Gray presided over the ceremony on Sunday June 1, at four o'clock in the afternoon, at the Covenant Presbyterian Church.

Decorating the altar of the church was a beautiful arch entwined with southern smilax and white carnations. On each side of the arch were large arrangements of white gladioli and a background of fern trees and softly burning tapers in wrought iron candelabras

The soloist was Elvis Stout who sang "Through the Years" and "Because" accompanied at the organ by Ronny Brothers. At the closing of the ceremony he sang "The Lord's Prayer."

To the strains of the traditional wedding march, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white nylon marquisette over silk taffeta with a fitted bodice of chantilly lace. The short sleeves and long tapered mitts were of lace with scalloped edge. The full, floor length skirt was embellished with delicate traceries of chantilly lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of pearls.

Miss Betty Johnson, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. R. H. Gleghorn, sister of the groom, from Sweetwater, Texas and Miss Brenda Ringo from Monroe. They wore waltz length dresses of nylon organdy in pastel shades and headdresses of nylon fashioned with tiny pearls. They carried white lace fans adorned with pink feathered carnations.

The flower girl was Doris Shannon, a cousin of the bride from West Monroe. Her dress and headdress were fashioned identical to the bridesmaid's. She carried a straw basket of Ester Reed daisies in rainbow colors.

Serving the groom as best man was Mr. Virgil Dollar of Huttig, Arkansas. The ushers who also served as candle-lighters were Mr. Bunnie Cummins and Mr. Larry Parisey of Monroe.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony was a reception at the Highland Park Country Club. The bride's table was overlaid with a white linen cloth and centered with the three - tiered wedding cake. On each side of the cake were candelabras entwined with string smilax and arrangements of pink stock, pink carnations, pink roses, gardenias and spring tone daisies. At each end of the table was a large punch bowl. Mrs. George M. Shannon, , Mrs. Phil Duncan, Mrs. M. A. Denoux, Mrs. Russell Ray and Miss Paula Jean Ray served the guests. Miss Patsy Johnson, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the bride's book.

For travel the bride wore a white linen chemise with white accessories and a white orchid corsage on her shoulder. After a wedding trip through the Ozarks, the couple will be at home in Monroe.

Among the out of town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Lee from New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. Victor Carper and Vickie from Baton Rouge; Mrs. R. H. Gleghorn and Toni from Sweetwater, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Nugent Hill and Miss Janice Hill from Alexandria, Mr. Robert Hill, Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hill, Jr. from Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Gilliam-Higgs Engagement Announced

DODSON — Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Higgs are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Veronica, to James Allen Gilliam of Winnfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Gilliam.

The Southside Baptist Church was the scene of the wedding which was celebrated on Saturday evening June 14 at 8:30 in the evening with the Rev. Charles Barfield reading the impressive single service.

Earl Fredrick of Winnfield was best man.

The bride wore a lovely creation of pink with full skirt, fitted bodice and sleeveless, it featured a dainty collar and bows tied over the shoulders, an attractive bow completed the belt line. Accessories were pink and she wore pink crystal beads and earscrews.

The couple will be at home in Winnfield.

Miss Jeannette Cobb, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Sgt. William M. Barron, U. S. Marine Corps, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leamon E. Cobb of Columbia. The wedding will be an event of July 25.

Three 'Rs' May Get A 'T' Added

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The three "Rs" may get a "T" added, if a University of North Dakota professor's summer teaching experiment proves a success.

Dr. John L. Rowe, chairman of the university's business education department, believes that typing instruction should begin in grade school, not high, just as some educators say that instruction in foreign languages should begin at the grade, even the kindergarten, level.

To find whether he is correct, Rowe is teaching a touch-typing course of one-hour daily to 28 volunteer third and fourth graders (14 boys, 14 girls) in an eight weeks session on the university campus. He hopes by the end of the classes, most of his pupils will be able to do 30 words a minute.

"Actually there are only 50 minutes of instruction," said the genial professor, in an interview. "We give 'em a 10-minute milk break."

Rowe said he chose the third and fourth grade groups because "at that age, they're an uninhibited fast-learning set. When parents heard about the experiment, we could have enrolled a thousand kids."

Harris-Huckaby Engagement Is Announced

Announcement is made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Marion Hodge Huckaby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne H. Huckaby to Peter Kenfield Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucian H. Harris, Jr., of Pompano Beach, Florida.

MISS NELDA DOZIER'S engagement to Lanis Pettit Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Pettit, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dozier, all of this city. The wedding will be an event of July fifth, at five o'clock in the afternoon, at the Calvary Baptist Church. The Rev. D. W. Nix will officiate over the ceremony.

MISS MARGARET JEANNIE RAGLAND

Miss Ragland Is Engaged To Raymond Lorren

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Ragland, Sr. of Lake Providence, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Margaret Jeannie, to Loy Raymond Lorren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon L. Lorren of Bogalusa, Louisiana.

The marriage will be solemnized at 3:00 P.M., Sunday, July 27th, at the First Methodist Church in Lake Providence with Rev. George York officiating.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Lake Providence High School. She attended Louisiana State University where she was a member of Kappa Delta sorority. She later attended Northeast State College.

"The groom is a junior at Louisiana State University where he is majoring in real estate and insurance. He is affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

An impressive double ring ceremony united in marriage, Miss Janice June Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Johnson of Monroe, and Leon F. Hill, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Festus Hill, Sr. also of Monroe.

Rev. Wayne W. Gray presided over the ceremony on Sunday June 1, at four o'clock in the afternoon, at the Covenant Presbyterian Church.

Decorating the altar of the church was a beautiful arch entwined with southern smilax and white carnations. On each side of the arch were large arrangements of white gladioli and a background of fern trees and softly burning tapers in wrought iron candelabras

The soloist was Elvis Stout who sang "Through the Years" and "Because" accompanied at the organ by Ronny Brothers. At the closing of the ceremony he sang "The Lord's Prayer."

To the strains of the traditional wedding march, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of white nylon marquisette over silk taffeta with a fitted bodice of chantilly lace. The short sleeves and long tapered mitts were of lace with scalloped edge. When you make taffy, caramels or nut brittles, this is the way to pour the hot mixture into the pan in which it is to be cooled: hold the saucepan with the candy in it within an inch or so of the cooling pan and pour steadily but do not scrape out the last of the syrup.

Ever add drained canned tomatoes to meat loaf?

Blend a quarter cup of butter with half a teaspoon of curry powder and spread on eight slices of French bread. Place in a hot oven until crispy. Serve with creamed chicken.

Salted nuts may be used when you are making candy brittle, but be sure to rub the nuts between sheets of paper toweling to remove a lot of the salt before using.

We are in the midst of a group of informal parties —and don't believe that old saying about appetites being lost in the summer. Just wait till you hear about the good food that's been served in Monroe this week.

The CHRIS ULRICHS and the OLIVER VREELANDS entertained with a seated dinner at the Vreeland home last Saturday night. All white arrangements of stock and majestic daisies were used in the den and in the dining room. Roast beef and the trimmings were served to eight couples.

Daisies and other garden flowers were the decoration when the MIKE RICKETTS entertained Saturday night. It was an informal supper party, with boiled shrimp, salad, and lemon pie making up the menu. Five couples attended . . . The TOM MARTINS gave two supper parties this week. Four couples were present for each occasion, with bridge games following the meal.

Saturday night was also party time at the SONNY DIXONS. Fourteen guests enjoyed a delicious meal of ham, stuffed baked potatoes, sanpbeans with cheese, salad, and pie. Later the group went on to the dance at the country club. Dancing enthusiasts gathered at the Bayou DeSiard country club last Saturday night for an informal dance to the music of Jerry Lane of Jackson, Miss. Sport shorts were in order for the men, while the ladies were informally — but stylishly — attired. BESS JAMES chose a chemise of orange linen . . . A print of blue roses on a white ground-distinguished VIRGINIA WINDES' silk shirtwaist . . . LAMY STODDARD was in a full - skirted bright print . . . Watered silk in shades of blue was the choice of TONY VEAZEY . . . KATHERINE JORDAN's yellow linen was made with a bias fold at the high waistline . . . PAT RILEY wore a black headache band with a black flounce - skirted chemise . . . POLLY SHLOSMAN was in yellow linen . . . DOROTHEA GARRETT chose black and white block printed linen . . . Pink and white print was most becoming to NANCY WEAKS . . . DIANA ANDERS was in pale blue linen appliqued in white beads.

DICKIE MAJOR and GLO WRIGHT were hostesses at a coffee on Wednesday honoring LILA SHELBY WALLACE of New York and New Orleans. Blue hydrangeas decorated the entrance hall, where Glo, wearing a French blue polished cotton, and Dickie in black voile received the guests. Lila was wearing black lace with a corsage of red roses.

Center of interest in the living room was the portrait of Glo, recently done by Lila, which was shown to friends at this time . . . The Wrights, incidentally, have just returned from a short vacation at the Sun and Sands in Biloxi, Miss.

Another out - of - towner at this party was BERYL MADISON SWIFT, who is visiting her sister, LESSIE GARRETT. Beryl was formerly on the staff at Neville, and then, with her husband spent several years teaching in Alaska. They are now at the University of Kentucky, where he teaches mining metallurgy.

Guests of the A. C. WARNERS this week were Virginia's parents, MR. and MRS. JAMES NELSON, SR., of Rhodessa; her brother, JAMES NELSON, JR., of Andrews, Tex., and his children, MARY ANN, JAMES III, and RUTH. The group was together from Tuesday until Friday, celebrating the birthday of Mr. Nelson, Sr., on Thursday.

JOAN BOARDMAN PECK arrived from Florida for a visit with her parents, the CLARK BOARDMANS. She will be here through the first week in July. . . . Arriving yesterday for a two week's visit with the HAROLD WOODS, JR., was ROSEMARY ROACH. Rosemary and Jackie were roommates for a year in New York.

Visiting the ARTHUR SMITHS, JR., this week were MRS. SIDNEY GALONGNE, MRS. PAUL BORRON, JR., MRS. CHARLES ROW III, and her son, BENSON, all of Baton Rouge, and CAROL DORMON of Lafayette. The guests were entertained at dinner on Sunday night in the home of the JOE GOYNES and on Wednesday night at the JIM SPARKS.

KATHY M'MILLAN of New Orleans was honored with a Coke party hosted by MARGARET MOORE on Tuesday. Garden flowers centered the table, where sandwiches, tiny doughnuts, and soft drinks were served. About forty teen-agers came by between the hours of ten and twelve. . . . Kathy is the guest of her grandmother, MRS. R. J. SKILLMAN, and will be here another week.

MARTHA and LINDA DOWNING are here from Baton Rouge for a visit with their grandmother, MARGARET DOWNING, and the BOB DOWNINGS. They are the daughters of the BEN DOWNINGS, JR. They will be here another few days. Martha goes from here to Houma to visit her aunt, MARTHA MENEFEE.

The FRED BECKETTS and their children, DEWITT and MARY EVE, are settled in their new home on Beechwood Drive. They are returning to Monroe after an absence of several years.

MARTHA ANN STOKER, a newcomer to Monroe, was guest of honor at a bridge luncheon in the home of CAROL MOUK. The twelve players gathered early Friday morning and enjoyed an eye-opener of coffee and sweet rolls before the card game began. Later in the day the hostess served a cold fruit plate with cheese biscuits.

Another lovely luncheon was that hosted by CISSY RYAN on Tuesday. This affair was held in the private dining room of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club. The table was covered with a green cloth. Silver candelabra were used on each side of a silver bowl filled with white glads. Green goblets and tiny silver and white place cards carried out the color theme. The meal consisted of tomato aspic with artichokes and shrimp, crabmeat au gratin, and asparagus rolls, with melon balls and sherbert for dessert.

Little Miss CHERRY ANN SAMPOGNARO, first child of the JOHN A. SAMPOGNAROS was born on Father's Day, June 15. Proud grandparents are the MICHAEL J. FONTANAS and the R. J. SAMPOGNAROS, all of Monroe.

Off to Florida for a week of fishing, swimming, and other water sports went FLO and ROY KELLY, GLORIA ROBERTSON, and ROBERTINE and BEN COBB, and their children. Joining them there will be Ben's brother, DR. JOHN COBB of Shreveport, and his sister, FRANKIE SEAGRIST of Alabama, and their families. A total of twenty - one children will be included in the party.

MRS. D. X. ELLETT and JO MARIE left this week for Fort Worth for a visit with JOHN ELLETT. En route they will stop over in Tyler to see the HUGH LAINES. Mrs. Laine is the former Linda Noe of Monroe.

The MAURICE FRAZIERS are vacationing in Alaska. They were in Fairbanks this week. Plans are to stop over at Lake Louise, Canada, on the way back . . . The DICK DICKENHORSTS are fishing at Grand Isle this week end . . . MARGUERITE GORDON is scheduled to leave this week for a trip to Hawaii.

The THOMAS GODFREYS and the V. H. REITZELLS left yesterday for Ft. Bragg, North Carolina, where they will visit the THOMAS GODFREYS, JR., and their little daughter, CATHERINE JUNE.

The BOB BRIGHTS and children, JIMMY and KITTYE, have returned from a short vacation trip. They visited relatives in Jackson, Tenn., and then made quick stops wiht friends in Missouri and Arkansas on the way home.

NANCY HAMMONS celebrated her ninth birthday with a backyard party attended by about twenty children. Games were played, with CLAIRE SCHONLAU, SALLIE SUDDUTH, MARK BRUSCATO, and BILLIE CAVERLEE winning prizes. Supper of hamburgers, ice cream, and a pink doll cake was served.

There are some things that have been so well said by the Elizabethans that we haven't improved on them in over three hundred years. Here are some lines by Robert Greene:

Sweet are the thoughts that savor of content:
The quiet mind is richer than a crown.
Sweet are the nights in careless slumber spent;
The poor estate scorns fortune's angry frown:
Such sweet content, such minds, such sleep, such bliss
Beggars enjoy when princes oft do miss.
The homely house that harbors quiet rest;
The cottage that affords no pride nor care;
The mean that 'grees with country music best;
The sweet consort of mirth and music's fare;
Obscured life sets down a type of bliss:
A mind content both crown and kingdom is.

MISS BECKY WEEMS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Weems, of West Monroe, is engaged to marry Kenley Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Silvester Clark also of West Monroe. The wedding date has been set for July third, at eight o'clock in the evening in the First Methodist Church.

When you make taffy, caramels or nut brittles, this is the way to pour the hot mixture into the pan in which it is to be cooled: hold the saucepan with the candy in it within an inch or so of the cooling pan and pour steadily but do not scrape out the last of the syrup.

Blend a quarter cup of butter with half a teaspoon of curry powder and spread on eight slices of French bread. Place in a hot oven until crispy. Serve with creamed chicken.

Salted nuts may be used when you are making candy brittle, but be sure to rub the nuts between sheets of paper toweling to remove a lot of the salt before using.

We are in the midst of a group of informal parties—and don't believe that old saying about appetites being lost in the summer. Just wait till you hear about the good food that's been served in Monroe this week.

The CHRIS ULRICHS and the OLIVER VREELANDS entertained with a seated dinner at the Vreeland home last Saturday night. All white arrangements of stock and majestic daisies were used in the den and in the dining room. Roast beef and the trimmings were served to eight couples.

Daisies and other garden flowers were the decoration when the MIKE RICKETTS entertained Saturday night. It was an informal supper party, with boiled shrimp, salad, and lemon pie making up the menu. Five couples attended . . . The TOM MARTINS gave two supper parties this week. Four couples were present for each occasion, with bridge games following the meal.

Saturday night was also party time at the SONNY DIXONS. Fourteen guests enjoyed a delicious meal of ham, stuffed baked potatoes, sanpbeans with cheese, salad, and pie. Later the group went on to the dance at the country club. Dancing enthusiasts gathered at the Bayou DeSiard country club last Saturday night for an informal dance to the music of Jerry Lane of Jackson, Miss. Sport shorts were in order for the men, while the ladies were informally — but stylishly — attired. BESS JAMES chose a chemise of orange linen . . . A print of blue roses on a white ground-distinguished VIRGINIA WINDES' silk shirtwaist . . . LAMY STODDARD was in a full - skirted bright print . . . Watered silk in shades of blue was the choice of TONY VEAZEY . . . KATHERINE JORDAN's yellow linen was made with a bias fold at the high waistline . . . PAT RILEY wore a black headache band with a black flounce - skirted chemise . . . POLLY SHLOSMAN was in yellow linen . . . DOROTHEA GARRETT chose black and white block printed linen . . . Pink and white print was most becoming to NANCY WEAKS . . . DIANA ANDERS was in pale blue linen appliqued in white beads.

DICKIE MAJOR and GLO WRIGHT were hostesses at a coffee on Wednesday honoring LILA SHELBY WALLACE of New York and New Orleans. Blue hydrangeas decorated the entrance hall, where Glo, wearing a French blue polished cotton, and Dickie in black voile received the guests. Lila was wearing black lace with a corsage of red roses.

Center of interest in the living room was the portrait of Glo, recently done by Lila, which was shown to friends at this time . . . The Wrights, incidentally, have just returned from a short vacation at the Sun and Sands in Biloxi, Miss.

Another out - of - towner at this party was BERYL MADISON SWIFT, who is visiting her sister, LESSIE GARRETT. Beryl was formerly on the staff at Neville, and then, with her husband spent several years teaching in Alaska. They are now at the University of Kentucky, where he teaches mining metallurgy.

Guests of the A. C. WARNERS this week were Virginia's parents, MR. and MRS. JAMES NELSON, SR., of Rhodessa; her brother, JAMES NELSON, JR., of Andrews, Tex., and his children, MARY ANN, JAMES III, and RUTH. The group was together from Tuesday until Friday, celebrating the birthday of Mr. Nelson, Sr., on Thursday.

JOAN BOARDMAN PECK arrived from Florida for a visit with her parents, the CLARK BOARDMANS. She will be here through the first week in July. . . . Arriving yesterday for a two week's visit with the HAROLD WOODS, JR., was ROSEMARY ROACH. Rosemary and Jackie were roommates for a year in New York.

Visiting the ARTHUR SMITHS, JR., this week were MRS. SIDNEY GALONGNE, MRS. PAUL BORRON, JR., MRS. CHARLES ROW III, and her son, BENSON, all of Baton Rouge, and CAROL DORMON of Lafayette. The guests were entertained at dinner on Sunday night in the home of the JOE GOYNES and on Wednesday night at the JIM SPARKS.

KATHY M'MILLAN of New Orleans was honored with a Coke party hosted by MARGARET MOORE on Tuesday. Garden flowers centered the table, where sandwiches, tiny doughnuts, and soft drinks were served. About forty teen-agers came by between the hours of ten and twelve. . . . Kathy is the guest of her grandmother, MRS. R. J. SKILLMAN, and will be here another week.

MARTHA and LINDA DOWNING are here from Baton Rouge for a visit with their grandmother, MARGARET DOWNING, and the BOB DOWNINGS. They are the daughters of the BEN DOWNINGS, JR. They will be here another few days. Martha goes from here to Houma to visit her aunt, MARTHA MENEFEE.

The FRED BECKETTS and their children, DEWITT and MARY EVE, are settled in their new home on Beechwood Drive. They are returning to Monroe after an absence of several years.

MARTHA ANN STOKER, a newcomer to Monroe, was guest of honor at a bridge luncheon in the home of CAROL MOUK. The twelve players gathered early Friday morning and enjoyed an eye-opener of coffee and sweet rolls before the card game began. Later in the day the hostess served a cold fruit plate with cheese biscuits.

Another lovely luncheon was that hosted by CISSY RYAN on Tuesday. This affair was held in the private dining room of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club. The table was covered with a green cloth. Silver candelabra were used on each side of a silver bowl filled with white glads. Green goblets and tiny silver and white place cards carried out the color theme. The meal consisted of tomato aspic with artichokes and shrimp, crabmeat au gratin, and asparagus rolls, with melon balls and sherbert for dessert.

Little Miss CHERRY ANN SAMPOGNARO, first child of the JOHN A. SAMPOGNAROS was born on Father's Day, June 15. Proud grandparents are the MICHAEL J. FONTANAS and the R. J. SAMPOGNAROS, all of Monroe.

Off to Florida for a week of fishing, swimming, and other water sports went FLO and ROY KELLY, GLORIA ROBERTSON, and ROBERTINE and BEN COBB, and their children. Joining them there will be Ben's brother, DR. JOHN COBB of Shreveport, and his sister, FRANKIE SEAGRIST of Alabama, and their families. A total of twenty - one children will be included in the party.

MRS. D. X. ELLETT and JO MARIE left this week for Fort Worth for a visit with JOHN ELLETT. En route they will stop over in Tyler to see the HUGH LAINES. Mrs. Laine is the former Linda Noe of Monroe.

The MAURICE FRAZIERS are vacationing in Alaska. They were in Fairbanks this week. Plans are to stop over at Lake Louise, Canada, on the way back . . . The DICK DICKENHORSTS are fishing at Grand Isle this week end . . . MARGUERITE GORDON is scheduled to leave this week for a trip to Hawaii.

The THOMAS GODFREYS and the V. H. REITZELLS left yesterday for Ft. Bragg, North Carolina, where they will visit the THOMAS GODFREYS, JR., and their little daughter, CATHERINE JUNE.

The BOB BRIGHTS and children, JIMMY and KITTYE, have returned from a short vacation trip. They visited relatives in Jackson, Tenn., and then made quick stops wiht friends in Missouri and Arkansas on the way home.

NANCY HAMMONS celebrated her ninth birthday with a backyard party attended by about twenty children. Games were played, with CLAIRE SCHONLAU, SALLIE SUDDUTH, MARK BRUSCATO, and BILLIE CAVERLEE winning prizes. Supper of hamburgers, ice cream, and a pink doll cake was served.

There are some things that have been so well said by the Elizabethans that we haven't improved on them in over three hundred years. Here are some lines by Robert Greene:

Sweet are the thoughts that savor of content:
The quiet mind is richer than a crown.
Sweet are the nights in careless slumber spent;
The poor estate scorns fortune's angry frown:
Such sweet content, such minds, such sleep, such bliss
Beggars enjoy when princes oft do miss.
The homely house that harbors quiet rest;
The cottage that affords no pride nor care;
The mean that 'grees with country music best;
The sweet consort of mirth and music's fare;
Obscured life sets down a type of bliss:
A mind content both crown and kingdom is.

MISS BECKY WEEMS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Weems, of West Monroe, is engaged to marry Kenley Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Silvester Clark also of West Monroe. The wedding date has been set for July third, at eight o'clock in the evening in the First Methodist Church.

MRS. JOHN C. SCALIA

Miss Barbara Hightower And John C. Scalia Exchange Marriage Vows

A double ring ceremony united in marriage Miss Barbara Hightower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hightower of West Monroe, and John C. Scalia, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Scalia of this city.

Father Joe Montalbano officiated over the ceremony on June ninth, at nine o'clock in the morning at St. Matthew's Church. Vows were exchanged before an altar decorated with various spring flowers, flanked by tall burning white tapers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white lace over satin. Her finger tip veil of illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls. She carried a white prayer book topped by a white orchid with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Roy J. Scalia served the bride as maid of honor and was gowned in pink silk organza. She carried a bouquet of pink daisies. Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. A. D. Tucker dressed identical to the maid of honor.

Roy J. Scalia served the groom as best man and the ushers were Arnold Tucker and Richard Morrison.

The bride's mother chose to wear an embroidered silk organza model with a white carnation corsage at her shoulder.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the groom's parents.

White flowers were used in profusion in the reception room.

Out - of town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Richardson Morrison, Katy and Lia, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scalia and Steven of New Orleans, Miss Jo Beth and Miss Mary Lucy Dana of Beaumont, Texas, and Mrs. H. R. Hightower of Blytheville, Ark.

MISS EFFIE JEAN FULLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Ruple of this city and A/1c Louis Bourque, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bourque of Lafayette, are engaged to be married on July fifth. The wedding will be held in Shreveport.

Miss Garlington Becomes Bride Of Jimmy Martin

Miss Bettye Jean Garlington of Jonesboro, became the bride of Jimmy Ray Martin of Calvin in a ceremony held at 4 o'clock Sunday, June 8.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Terry of Jonesboro. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Martin of Calvin are the bridegroom's parents.

The Rev. Edgar Gunter officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Derinda Spurlock rendered the nuptial music. Pink and white gladioli and blue hydrangea were used to decorate the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. Thomas in Jonesboro. The bride chose to wear a waltz-length white lace over satin fashioned on traditional lines. A flinger - tip veil of illusion fell softly from a tiara of seed pearls.

She carried a white Bible with a cascade of white carnations and satin ribbon.

Miss Patricia Stevenson, cousin of the bride, served as her only attendant. She wore an intermission - length yellow embroidered nylon with matching halo hat. Her accessories were white and [illegible] flowers were orchids and asters. The best man was Johnny Mack Carraway.

The bride's mother wore a street length spring model of charcoal grey silk shantung with black accessories. Her corsage was pink carnations. Mrs. Martin, the groom's mother, chose a pink linen dress and white accessories. White carnations made up her corsage.

After the reception the bride changed to a pink dacron cotton sheath accented with a cosrage of white carnations. After a short wedding trip the couple will make their home in Winnfield.

MR. AND MRS. EARL LINGLE, JR.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites In Marriage Miss Kramer, E. Lingle, Jr.

Miss Leajane Kramer and Earl Lingle, Jr. exchanged wedding vows Tuesday evening in the Gospel Hall at Garnavillo, Iowa. Lorne E. McBain of Jackson, Michigan, performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kramer of Garnavillo, Iowa, and Mrs. Earl Lingl and the late Earl Lingle, Sr. of Monroe, Louisiana.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length gown of tulle and lace enhanced by Chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured the Queen Ann collar and long tapered sleeves. The voluminous pointed overskirt of lace is caught with a silk illusion finger-tip veil. Her bouquet was a cascading arrangement of pink roses.

A sister of the bride, Miss Muriel Kramer, served as Maid of Honor, in a ballerina length gown of French nylon lavender mist over matching taffeta. Her lavender lace head piece matched her formal. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow carnations.

Philip Hamilton, of San Antonio, Texas, served as the best man. Lawrence Aspenson, of La Crosse, Wisconsin, and Robert Brandt of Garnavillo, seated the guests.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the Gospel Hall for 150 guests. Mrs. Eugene Burkart of Dubuque cut the cake. Presiding over the guest book was Mrs. Philip Hamilton of San Antonio, Texas. Miss Ruth Brandt and Miss Janet Guyer were in charge of the gifts. Hostesses were Mrs. Dale Hyde, Mrs. Harold Brandt, Mrs. Larry Gull, Mrs. Dale Wahls, Miss Faye Wahls, Miss Neala Thurber, Miss Janice Brandt, and Mrs. Lawrence Guyer.

The bride graduated from Garnavillo High School, and attended the University of Dubuque and Bayless Business in Dubuque.

The groom is a graduate of Louisiana Tech at Ruston Louisiana, where he received his B. S. degree in Personal Management.

Don't Be Fooled By Delicate Look

By DOROTHY ROE

Don't be fooled by the delicate look and soft life of today's city girl, warns Mari Sandoz, historian of the Old West and author of "The Cattlemen."

"If the need arose, they'd be just as tough as their pioneer ancestors, who jolted across the plains by covered wagon," says Miss Sandoz. "Remember that many of the women who helped their husbands open up the West, who cooked over campfires and fired their own guns, were city girls too. They came from New York, Baltimore and Boston, and they learned to survive the hardships and dangers of the overland trail and to fight side by side with their men.

"Don't tell me a modern woman couldn't take it. As a matter of fact she might do better than her great-grandmother, being by training more self-reliant, more athletic and certainly healthier.

"The female of the species always has had to be tough, and I don't think the pattern has changed today."

Miss Sandoz is proudly tough, though she admits apologetically that she hasn't herded cattle to market for the last few years—not, in fact, since jeeps replaced horses on the Old Jules ranch in Sheridan County, Neb., where she was born, eldest of the six children of Jules and Mary Elizabeth Sandoz.

MR. AND MRS. EARL LINGLE, JR.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites In Marriage Miss Kramer, E. Lingle, Jr.

Miss Leajane Kramer and Earl Lingle, Jr. exchanged wedding vows Tuesday evening in the Gospel Hall at Garnavillo, Iowa. Lorne E. McBain of Jackson, Michigan, performed the double ring ceremony at 7:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kramer of Garnavillo, Iowa, and Mrs. Earl Lingl and the late Earl Lingle, Sr. of Monroe, Louisiana.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length gown of tulle and lace enhanced by Chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured the Queen Ann collar and long tapered sleeves. The voluminous pointed overskirt of lace is caught with a silk illusion finger-tip veil. Her bouquet was a cascading arrangement of pink roses.

A sister of the bride, Miss Muriel Kramer, served as Maid of Honor, in a ballerina length gown of French nylon lavender mist over matching taffeta. Her lavender lace head piece matched her formal. She carried a colonial bouquet of yellow carnations.

Philip Hamilton, of San Antonio, Texas served as the best man. Lawrence Aspenson, of La Crosse, Wisconsin, and Robert Brandt of Garnavillo, seated the guests.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the basement of the Gospel Hall for 150 guests. Mrs. Eugene Burkart of Dubuque cut the cake. Presiding over the guest book was Mrs. Philip Hamilton of San Antonio, Texas. Miss Ruth Brandt and Miss Janet Guyer were in charge of the gifts. Hostesses were Mrs. Dale Hyde, Mrs. Harold Brandt, Mrs. Larry Gull, Mrs. Dale Wahls, Miss Faye Wahls, Miss Neala Thurber, Miss Janice Brandt, and Mrs. Lawrence Guyer.

The bride graduated from Garnavillo High School, and attended the University of Dubuque and Bayless Business in Dubuque.

The groom is a graduate of Louisiana Tech at Ruston Louisiana, where he received his B. S. degree in Personal Management.

Up. . return from a trip through the East, the couple will make their home in San Antonio, Texas, where he is stationed at Lackland Air Force Base.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Earl Lingle, Sr. of Monroe, Louisiana, Mr. Arthur Pomeroy from San Antonio, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Glass of Pomona, California, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Smith, Carla and Lowell of Manchester, Mrs. Myrtle Smith of Manchester and also Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lubben of Manchester, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Burkart, Florence Noyes, and Mrs. A Nuendorf of Dubuque.

MRS. EARL RICHARD BAIN

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss Nelson And Earl Richard Bain

United in marriage on June 14, were Miss Betty Louise Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis Nelson, of West Monroe, and Earl Richard Bain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Rue Bain of Chanute, Kansas.

The Rev. Fred D. Wall performed the double ring ceremony in the First Assembly of God Church at seven o'clock in the evening, under an arch decorated with greenery. In the background were bouquets of white gladioli flanked by white cathedral tapers in wrought iron candalabrum.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal-length gown of imported Chantilly lace and tulle over taffeta. The figurene bodice was of Chantilly lace and enhanced with irridescent sequins at the portrait neckline and long sleeves which tapered into petal points over her wrist. The bouffant skirt, accented with lace panels, swept to a chapel-length train. The finger tip veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and irridescent sequins. She wore small pearl earrings, a gift of the groom and a single strand of pearls. Her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of stephanotis and feathered carnations and leaves of pearl covered satin. A cattleya orchid was the center of the bouquet.

Miss Joyce Nicklas, cousin of the bride, served as maid of honor. She was gowned in blue nylon organdy over taffeta. Her headdress was a bandeau of blue edged with irridescent sequins. Her bouquet was kissing rings fashioned of imported irridescent nylon tubing and decorated with blue and white pompon chrysanthemums nestled in blue satin ribbons and lace.

Mrs. Myrtis Abbott and Mrs. Billie Little served as bridesmaids and were gowned in lighter blue dresses identical to the maid of honor, as were their headdress and bouquets.

The flower girl was Susan Pickens, gowned in floor length pale blue organdy. She wore a headdress identical to the bridesmaids.

Ray Vineyard served the groom as best man and the ring bearer was Phil Mahoney. Richard Abbott and Roy Dietrich were the ushers. The candlelighters were Thomas Dowdy and Larry Williams.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nelson chose to wear mauve lace over matching taffeta with irridescent sequins at the neck. At her shoulder was a corsage of feathered pink carnations.

Reception

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church.

The reception table was centered with an arrangement of white carnations, white candytuft and blue tinted ferns.

For travel, the bride chose an embroidered blue and white linen sheath with lighter blue accessories. At her shoulder was an orchid from her bouquet.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Rockett, Mrs. J. W. Nicklas, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Nelson, Doyle Nicklas, Miss Joyce Nicklas, Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Abbott, and Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bain.

MRS. NATHAN COPELAND, whose marriage was an event of June 27, is the former Miss Marie Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Richard Perkins. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Copeland, all of this city.

PRESAGING A LATE AUGUST wedding is the announcement made today of the engagement of Miss Patricia May Tudor of Jonesboro, to Billy Gene Waits of Ruston. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Tudor of Jonesboro, La., and her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Waits of Arcadia, La. The nuptial ceremny will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on Sunday, August 17, at the First Baptist Church of Jonesboro.

Jones-Anderson Marriage Vows Are Spoken

WINNSBORO — An out-of-town wedding of much interest is that of Miss Barbara Ann Anderson and Luther L. Jones, Jr., which was solemnized Saturday, June 14. The wedding was in the chapel of the Episcopal church in Opelousas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Anderson of Opelousas and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Luther L. Jones, Sr., of Winnsboro.

The candlelight ceremony was at 10 o'clock in the morning, with the white cathedral tapers illuminating the chapel. The Rev. J.D. Hayes officiated at the impressive services.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her dress was a most becoming model designed of beige and was two piece, with the fitted jacket complimenting the ensemble. She wore white accessories.

Mrs. Doris Groff, sister of the bride, was the only attendant. She wore a becoming light green summer model with complimentary accessories.

Mrs. Jones wore a becoming printed silk with fashionable accessories.

Following the wedding ceremony, the young couple departed on their honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at 201 East Arizana Street, Ruston.

The bride graduated from Opelousas High School and has completed three years at S. L. I.

The bridegroom graduated from Winnsboro High School, and B. M. I., Monroe and has attended Tech and S. L. I. He spent three years of army service in Japan.

Woman Finds Job Is Just Shear Heaven

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. — Several years ago, Marilla Sowards took her son to have his hair cut. The job took three hours, and Mrs. Sowards decided something had to be done.

Today she wields the clippers in a barber shop.

She began her new career recently after attending a college for barbers. Before she left school, her boss decided she was the one to "man" the extra chair in his shop.

During her first days on the job, passers-by would stop to stare in the window, she said. Many customers shied away from her at first, and some still are bashful about having a woman cut their hair. But many men now wait in line for the lady barber.

Following the wedding ceremony, the young couple departed on their honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside at 201 East Arizana Street, Ruston.

The bride graduated from Opelousas High School and has completed three years at S. L. I.

The bridegroom graduated from Winnsboro High School, and B. M. I., Monroe and has attended Tech and S. L. I. He spent three years of army service in Japan.

Woman Finds Job Is Just Shear Heaven

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. — Several years ago, Marilla Sowards took her son to have his hair cut. The job took three hours, and Mrs. Sowards decided something had to be done.

Today she wields the clippers in a barber shop.

She began her new career recently after attending a college for barbers. Before she left school, her boss decided she was the one to "man" the extra chair in his shop.

During her first days on the job, passers-by would stop to stare in the window, she said. Many customers shied away from her at first, and some still are bashful about having a woman cut their hair. But many men now wait in line for the lady barber.

Miss Young F. B. Cooper Pledge Troth

The College Place Baptist Church was the setting of the beautiful wedding ceremony uniting Miss Shirley Faye Young and Fredrick Berna Cooper.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Young of this city. The groom is the son of Mrs. David Cooper and the late Fred Cooper of Tallulah.

The Rev. Earl Ogg performed the double ring ceremony on June first. Vows were exchanged before an altar bearing containers of gladioli and stock.

Mrs. C. L. Dillingham rendered the nuptial music and Mrs. Jane Oldenburg was soloist.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father in a gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta, designed with a portrait neckline, and long torso bodice with a full skirt falling in a chapel train, her finger tip veil of finest illusion fell softly from a queen crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis and orchids. Her single strand of pearls was a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Marie Elliot, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor; her waltz length gown of yellow was fashioned with draped neckline, fitted bodice and bouffant skirt. She carried yellow chrysanthemums in semi - crescent design.

Bridesmaids wearing dresses identical with the matron of honor were: Misses Virginia Cooper, Betty Ann Panguin, Sharon Haynes, and Neva Lyons, and Miss Jane Bentz, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl.

Mr. Larry Seab served as best man. Groomsmen were P. E. Elliott, C. W. Statham, Bobby Fainlayson and the little ring bearer was the brides' brother, Marvin Cooper.

Mrs. Young chose for her daughter's wedding an ice blue gown with matching accessories. She pinned an orchid at her shoulder. Mrs. Cooper assisted her in receiving and she chose for the occasion a navy chiffon with white accessories.

A reception followed in the church parlor. Large arrangements of white carnations decorated the tables. Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Gertrude Lyons, Miss Betty Thompson served the cake, assisted by Miss Sara Smith. Miss Martha Williams registered guests in the bride's book.

Out of town guests were: Mrs. Floyd Smith, Mis Betty Smith, Mr. Young, of Fordyce, Arkansas; Mrs. Hester Norris of Carthage, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Vardman Panguin, Mr. George McDonald, Miss Elizabeth Cooper, Miss Norma Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Tannier, of Tallulah, Mrs. G. L. Cumpton and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Statham of New Orleans, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Robinson, Ruston, and Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Naron of Rayville.

Area Church Sends Girl To Hong Kong

TALLULAH (Special) — Miss Betty Wall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wall of Tallulah is a delegate to a work camp in Hong Kong, China, which is under the sponsorship of Ecumenical Voluntary Service, a branch of the World Council of Churches.

Two girls and two boys are chosen from the United States who will serve as part of a group of approximately 30 young people from various countries of the world. The young people will be working in a voluntary service project in a Christian group. "Ecumenical" refers to the movement toward a realization of greater unity among the separate branches and divisions of the Christian Church. The participants will be ministering to the needs of the community, whatever they may be.

Work camps involve physical labor on a project of social significance. This is supplemented by a program of study, discussion, and worship which points up the responsibility of the group to the community and the individual to the group. Work campers volunteer their time, share in living expenses and pay their own transportation.

The term of the work camp in Hong Kong is July 20 to August 15. During this time the young people will work and remain together. They have free time before and after the project in order to shop, visit, and do as they wish.

Miss Wall sailed from Los Angeles on June 14 on the President Cleveland. The ship will stop in Hawaii and Japan before getting to Hong Kong on July 5. There will be time to see the sights before the camp starts. After the camp is over she will sail back and arrive in San Francisco on September 6.

Miss Wall has been active in the youth work of the Tallulah Methodist Church and in college participation in the Methodist Wesley Foundation.

Armed Services

Byron M. Boutwell, apprentice petty officer third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Boutwell of Route 3, Box 205, Winnsboro, La., graduated June 20 from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

Apprentice petty officers are chosen from the ranks of the seaman recruits to assist company commanders. The selection is based on individual aptitude and leadership qualities.

PFC Edrie A. Futch, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Futch, Route 4, Rayville, La., recently participated in a field training exercise conducted by the 4th Armored Division near Grafenwohr, Germany.

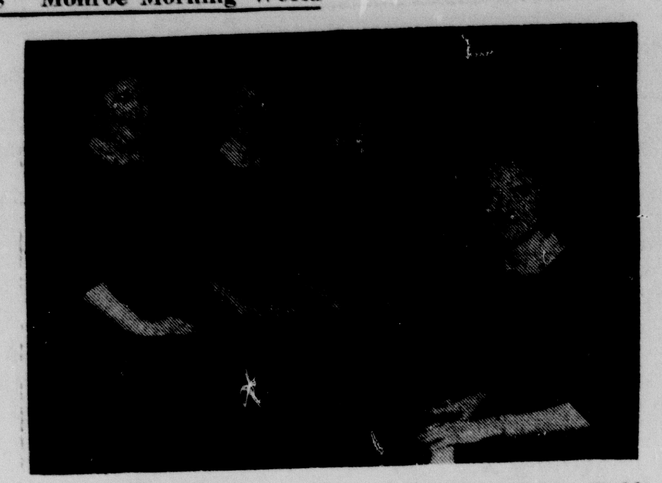
Robert M. Butler, personnelman third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton H. Butler of 213 Bell ave., Monroe, La., and husband of the former Miss Nancy S. Smith of Edgewater Gardens, Monroe, is serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Shangri - La operating with the U. S. Pacific fleet.

Byron M. Boutwell, apprentice petty officer third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Boutwell of Route 3, Box 205, Winnsboro, La., graduated June 20 from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

Apprentice petty officers are chosen from the ranks of the seaman recruits to assist company commanders. The selection is based on individual aptitude and leadership qualities.



GOSPEL QUARTET — The Gospelaires from Gulf-coast Bible College, Houston, Texas, will bring an inspirational program of song and testimony to the First Church Of God, 1513 S. 3rd St. today when they will take part in the 11 a.m. service.

Investments Fund Set Up By Lutherans

NEW YORK (AP)—For the past four years, the United Lutheran Church in America has been employing big business methods — with big business success—to raise money for its member churches and affiliates.

The ULC's offbeat adventure in modern church finance is the Common Investing Fund, which, since Jan. 1, 1954, has distributed nearly $600,000 in dividends to almost 100 shareholders.

The CIF is similar to a mutual investment fund in that it has no share limit and it reinvests shareholders' money in the stock and bonds of private business.

The big difference is that only institutions affiliated with the ULC —its boards, synods, colleges and congregations—are eligible to become shareholders.

The fund was started in 1954 with 10 shareholders and a net asset value of 2½ million dollars. In the first quarter of 1958 there were 92 shareholders and net assets totaled more than five million dollars.

Since its inception, the CIF has been headed by Edmund F. Wagner, president of the General Realty and Utilities Corp. of New York. It has a board of directors that reads like a who's who of investment banking.

Wagner is also treasurer of the ULC, the highest church office open to a layman, and president of the Interchurch Center, Inc., a headquarters for various Protestant churches in upper Manhattan.

"The chief benefit of our service," says Wagner, "is that it gives the shareholders a protection they couldn't afford as individual investors. The United States Trust Co. is our investment counsellor."

Although the CIF has more than 350,000 shares outstanding only a thousand of them are classified as voting stock. The ULC itself owns all of them.

Last year, the CIF returned a high 48.6 cent dividend per $10 share, largely because its officers serve without pay and, as a church organization, it is not subject to federal income and capital gains taxes.

Altar Guild Of Southside Church Holds Meeting

The Altar Guild Society of the Southside Methodist Church held its regular monthly meeting on June 20th, in the home of Mrs. R. C. Perkins at 1212 South 8th Street, Monroe.

On the occasion the newly elected officers of the organization served in their respective capacities for the first time. Mrs. Ernest Hammonds, Jr., president, presided over the meeting which was opened by a Devotional from Isiah C. 12, V. 2. Miss Pearl LeFevre gave a talk on ten beliefs and practices of Methodists. Mrs. Virginia Goodman, secretary-treasurer took minutes of the business meeting. The Guild purchases material which will be used by the Golden Maturity Club in a basket weaving course which will be taught by Miss LeFevre, the finished products will be used by the Guild membership as containers for flowers to be delivered to hospital patients in the Monroe area.

Youth Serving With Baptist Mission Board

RUSTON (Special) — Serving with the Baptist Mission Board this summer is Miss Eva Jeanne Shirley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Shirley of Ruston.

As a student at Louisiana Tech, Miss Shirley is active in many programs including her church student union. These activities played a major part in her selection to the Mission Board which is located in Dayton, Ohio.

Training Of Officers For CWF Planned

All women interested in the work of the Christian Women's Fellowship are cordially invited to attend the Officers Training School session which will be held at the St. John Christian Church, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The session will begin with a worship period with those attending dispersing afterwards into the various work shops made available to them. The meeting will conclude with an assembly followed by lunch.

Convention Planned By 'Witnesses'

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Monroe Unit East and West congregations today announced that plans were under way to attend an international convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in New York City this summer.

C. L. Hester, and Henry C. Trull, presiding ministers of the local group, said the convention could well be the largest in the history of Jehovah's Witnesses. It is scheduled for July 27 through August 3 and will be held in Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds simultaneously.

The last international convention attended by many of Monroe's Witnesses, was held in 1953 in Yankee Stadium and reached a peak attendance of 165,000 including the overflow audience. Watchtower officials, the ministers said, have arranged this year for the program to be held in both places, with most program features repeated at the Polo Grounds immediately following the first presentation in Yankee Stadium.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, governing agency for Jehovah's Witnesses, has been making special travel arrangements for foreign delegates. Many missionaries who have served in other lands will also be brought to the United States for the Bible convention. Purpose of the gathering is to provide stimulus for the New World society of Jehovah's Witnesses in Christian association, Bible instruction and ministerial training.

It is not yet known how many Witnesses from the area will attend, but travel arrangements were being made. It was pointed out it may be necessary to make limited meeting arrangements or cancel meetings altogether during convention time.

Newly Arrived Priests Given Welcome Party

A reception and welcome party for Father David Daubre and Father Richard Fale was held Tuesday night at the Knights of Columbus Hall by the study club group of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

Father Daubre, who was assistant to Msgr. John C. Marsh of St. Matthews for two years, has returned after a three-year abscence to head as pastor the new scheduled Catholic parish. This parish, which will be named "Jesus, the Good Shepard," will cover approximately all of Monroe north and northeast of Hilton Street.

Father Fale will be the new assistant to Msgr. Marsh at St. Matthews, replacing Father Joe Montalbano who has been transferred to Shreveport.

Rev. W. D. Boddie Delegate To Meet In Washington

The Rev. W. D. Boddie, pastor of the Rayville Methodist Church and Louisiana Conference secretary of evangelism for the Methodist Church, will be a delegate of the Conference Board of Evangelism to the Methodist Convocation on evangelism in Washington, D. C., July 3-6.

On Saturday afternoon July 5, Rev. Boddie will speak to one of the discussion groups on the subject "Every Methodist An Evangelist." He will also be a member of the Preacher's Chorus, composed of several hundred Methodist ministers, which will sing Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at Uline Arena and on Sunday evening as a part of the Massed Choir in the great Evangelistic service at Griffith Stadium.

Group Attends Conference At Sewanee

SEWANEE, Tenn. — Nearly 150 Episcopal laymen gathered at the University of the South last week for the annual Episcopal Laymen's Conference of the church's Fourth Province that includes 15 dioceses in nine Southern states. Conference theme was "Extending the Impact of Christianity."

Principal program speaker was Hugh C. Laughlin, president of the Owens - Illinois Glass Company, Toledo, Ohio, and chairman of Episcopal laymen in the church's Fifth Province. A special guest was Mrs. S. M. Montgomery of Blanton, Miss., president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Fourth Province.

Elected new chairman of Fourth Province laymen was Grover C. Willis, Jr., of Columbus, Ga., where he is a member of the new St. Thomas' Mission and formerly was a member of Trinity Church. He succeeds Frank C. Englesing of Port Gibson, Miss., who presided at the conference.

New vice - chairmen elected were: Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gerhardt of Winter Park, Fla., where he is a member of All Saints' Church; T. Fitzhugh Wilson of Monroe, La., where he is a member of Grace Church; and Mark C. Holmes of Erlanger, Ky., and a member of Grace Church in Florence, Ky. Their term of office will be three years.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a student in college. The friend who has supported me while studying has done so because he thought I was preparing for the ministry. Recently I have realized that I have no call to the ministry, though I still want to serve the Lord. How can I explain such a situation and still keep his support until I finish? D.B.

ANSWER: It seems to me that you are being too selfish in the matter. Certainly you don't expect to keep your decision from the one who is making it financially possible. That would not be honest nor Christian. He is entitled to know your intentions.

In fact, I detect a definite spiritual defect here that needs some heart searching on your part. There is nothing wrong whatever about your change of plan in view of a lack of calling to the Christian ministry. In fact, he and other Christians would admire you for your honesty in this matter. You must tell him, and risk losing his support, or you would be as guilty as one who misappropriates funds.

A call to the ministry must be very clear, though there may be no single sign or evidence that you have one. But the person God calls to preach has no doubt about it. One of the prophets once said, "The Lord hath spoken, who can but preach?" Amos 3, Verse 8.

At ship launchings in Japan, no wine is wasted in breaking a bottle over the prow. The Japanese release doves and balloons as means of good luck and then drink the wine.

Area Church Sends Girl To Hong Kong

TALLULAH (Special) — Miss Betty Wall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wall of Tallulah is a delegate to a work camp in Hong Kong, China, which is under the sponsorship of Ecumenical Voluntary Service, a branch of the World Council of Churches.

Two girls and two boys are chosen from the United States who will serve as part of a group of approximately 30 young people from various countries of the world. The young people will be working in a voluntary service project in a Christian group. "Ecumenical" refers to the movement toward a realization of greater unity among the separate branches and divisions of the Christian Church. The participants will be ministering to the needs of the community, whatever they may be.

Work camps involve physical labor on a project of social significance. This is supplemented by a program of study, discussion, and worship which points up the responsibility of the group to the community and the individual to the group. Work campers volunteer their time, share in living expenses and pay their own transportation.

The term of the work camp in Hong Kong is July 20 to August 15. During this time the young people will work and remain together. They have free time before and after the project in order to shop, visit, and do as they wish.

Miss Wall sailed from Los Angeles on June 14 on the President Cleveland. The ship will stop in Hawaii and Japan before getting to Hong Kong on July 5. There will be time to see the sights before the camp starts. After the camp is over she will sail back and arrive in San Francisco on September 6.

Miss Wall has been active in the youth work of the Tallulah Methodist Church and in college participation in the Methodist Wesley Foundation.

Armed Services

Byron M. Boutwell, apprentice petty officer third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Boutwell of Route 3, Box 205, Winnsboro, La., graduated June 20 from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

Apprentice petty officers are chosen from the ranks of the seaman recruits to assist company commanders. The selection is based on individual aptitude and leadership qualities.

PFC Edrie A. Futch, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Futch, Route 4, Rayville, La., recently participated in a field training exercise conducted by the 4th Armored Division near Grafenwohr, Germany.

Lonnie L. Hayden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Hayden of 1105 Audubon St., West Monroe, La., is scheduled to complete recruit training June 27 at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.

Upon completion of training new Marines are assigned to a unit for further infantry training, or to one of the many Marine Corps schools.

U. S. Naval Academy Midshipman second class Kenneth D. Savage, son of Chief hospital Corpsman and Mrs. P. G. Savage of 1601 Filhiol Ave., Monroe, La., completed two weeks of amphibious training June 20 at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, Norfolk, Va.

The training was climaxed June 20 by a mammoth assault on the beaches of Camp Pendleton, Va. The midshipmen joined two thousand members of the 6th Marine Regiment from Camp Lejeune, N. C., for the full-scale amphibious landing.

George H. Hancock was promoted to Marine First Sergeant May 19 while serving as the First Sergeant of "K" Company of the Third Battalion, Eighth Marines, a part of the Second Division at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

1st Sgt. Hancock is the son of Mrs. Maggie Hancock of Route 5, Springhill, Ala., and the husband of the former Miss Edith R. Mayo of 3804 Harrison St., Monroe, La.

Navy Cdr. Raymond L. Earl, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Earl of 3708 Cypress st., West Monroe, La., and husband of the former Miss Martha G. Hamer of Monroe, departed Long Beach, Calif., June 20, aboard the support aircraft carrier USS Princeton as a member of helicopter anti-submarine squadron four for a six-month tour of duty in the Far East.

Robert M. Butler, personnelman third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton H. Butler of 213 Bell ave., Monroe, La., and husband of the former Miss Nancy S. Smith of Edgewater Gardens, Monroe, is serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Shangri - La operating with the U. S. Pacific fleet.

Byron M. Boutwell, apprentice petty officer third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Boutwell of Route 3, Box 205, Winnsboro, La., graduated June 20 from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

Apprentice petty officers are chosen from the ranks of the seaman recruits to assist company commanders. The selection is based on individual aptitude and leadership qualities.

GOSPEL QUARTET — The Gospelaires from Gulf-coast Bible College, Houston, Texas, will bring an inspirational program of song and testimony to the First Church Of God, 1513 S. 3rd St. today when they will take part in the 11 a.m. service.

Investments Fund Set Up By Lutherans

NEW YORK (AP)—For the past four years, the United Lutheran Church in America has been employing big business methods — with big business success—to raise money for its member churches and affiliates.

The ULC's offbeat adventure in modern church finance is the Common Investing Fund, which, since Jan. 1, 1954, has distributed nearly $600,000 in dividends to almost 100 shareholders.

The CIF is similar to a mutual investment fund in that it has no share limit and it reinvests shareholders' money in the stock and bonds of private business.

The big difference is that only institutions affiliated with the ULC —its boards, synods, colleges and congregations—are eligible to become shareholders.

The fund was started in 1954 with 10 shareholders and a net asset value of 2½ million dollars. In the first quarter of 1958 there were 92 shareholders and net assets totaled more than five million dollars.

Since its inception, the CIF has been headed by Edmund F. Wagner, president of the General Realty and Utilities Corp. of New York. It has a board of directors that reads like a who's who of investment banking.

Wagner is also treasurer of the ULC, the highest church office open to a layman, and president of the Interchurch Center, Inc., a headquarters for various Protestant churches in upper Manhattan.

"The chief benefit of our service," says Wagner, "is that it gives the shareholders a protection they couldn't afford as individual investors. The United States Trust Co. is our investment counsellor."

Although the CIF has more than 350,000 shares outstanding only a thousand of them are classified as voting stock. The ULC itself owns all of them.

Last year, the CIF returned a high 48.6 cent dividend per $10 share, largely because its officers serve without pay and, as a church organization, it is not subject to federal income and capital gains taxes.

Altar Guild Of Southside Church Holds Meeting

The Altar Guild Society of the Southside Methodist Church held its regular monthly meeting on June 20th, in the home of Mrs. R. C. Perkins at 1212 South 8th Street, Monroe.

On the occasion the newly elected officers of the organization served in their respective capacities for the first time. Mrs. Ernest Hammonds, Jr., president, presided over the meeting which was opened by a Devotional from Isiah C. 12, V. 2. Miss Pearl LeFevre gave a talk on ten beliefs and practices of Methodists. Mrs. Virginia Goodman, secretary-treasurer took minutes of the business meeting. The Guild purchases material which will be used by the Golden Maturity Club in a basket weaving course which will be taught by Miss LeFevre, the finished products will be used by the Guild membership as containers for flowers to be delivered to hospital patients in the Monroe area.

Youth Serving With Baptist Mission Board

RUSTON (Special) — Serving with the Baptist Mission Board this summer is Miss Eva Jeanne Shirley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Shirley of Ruston.

As a student at Louisiana Tech, Miss Shirley is active in many programs including her church student union. These activities played a major part in her selection to the Mission Board which is located in Dayton, Ohio.

Training Of Officers For CWF Planned

All women interested in the work of the Christian Women's Fellowship are cordially invited to attend the Officers Training School session which will be held at the St. John Christian Church, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The session will begin with a worship period with those attending dispersing afterwards into the various work shops made available to them. The meeting will conclude with an assembly followed by lunch.

Convention Planned By 'Witnesses'

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Monroe Unit East and West congregations today announced that plans were under way to attend an international convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in New York City this summer.

C. L. Hester, and Henry C. Trull, presiding ministers of the local group, said the convention could well be the largest in the history of Jehovah's Witnesses. It is scheduled for July 27 through August 3 and will be held in Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds simultaneously.

The last international convention attended by many of Monroe's Witnesses, was held in 1953 in Yankee Stadium and reached a peak attendance of 165,000 including the overflow audience. Watchtower officials, the ministers said, have arranged this year for the program to be held in both places, with most program features repeated at the Polo Grounds immediately following the first presentation in Yankee Stadium.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, governing agency for Jehovah's Witnesses, has been making special travel arrangements for foreign delegates. Many missionaries who have served in other lands will also be brought to the United States for the Bible convention. Purpose of the gathering is to provide stimulus for the New World society of Jehovah's Witnesses in Christian association, Bible instruction and ministerial training.

It is not yet known how many Witnesses from the area will attend, but travel arrangements were being made. It was pointed out it may be necessary to make limited meeting arrangements or cancel meetings altogether during convention time.

Newly Arrived Priests Given Welcome Party

A reception and welcome party for Father David Daubre and Father Richard Fale was held Tuesday night at the Knights of Columbus Hall by the study club group of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

Father Daubre, who was assistant to Msgr. John C. Marsh of St. Matthews for two years, has returned after a three-year abscence to head as pastor the new scheduled Catholic parish. This parish, which will be named "Jesus, the Good Shepard," will cover approximately all of Monroe north and northeast of Hilton Street.

Father Fale will be the new assistant to Msgr. Marsh at St. Matthews, replacing Father Joe Montalbano who has been transferred to Shreveport.

Rev. W. D. Boddie Delegate To Meet In Washington

The Rev. W. D. Boddie, pastor of the Rayville Methodist Church and Louisiana Conference secretary of evangelism for the Methodist Church, will be a delegate of the Conference Board of Evangelism to the Methodist Convocation on evangelism in Washington, D. C., July 3-6.

On Saturday afternoon July 5, Rev. Boddie will speak to one of the discussion groups on the subject "Every Methodist An Evangelist." He will also be a member of the Preacher's Chorus, composed of several hundred Methodist ministers, which will sing Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at Uline Arena and on Sunday evening as a part of the Massed Choir in the great Evangelistic service at Griffith Stadium.

Group Attends Conference At Sewanee

SEWANEE, Tenn. — Nearly 150 Episcopal laymen gathered at the University of the South last week for the annual Episcopal Laymen's Conference of the church's Fourth Province that includes 15 dioceses in nine Southern states. Conference theme was "Extending the Impact of Christianity."

Principal program speaker was Hugh C. Laughlin, president of the Owens - Illinois Glass Company, Toledo, Ohio, and chairman of Episcopal laymen in the church's Fifth Province. A special guest was Mrs. S. M. Montgomery of Blanton, Miss., president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Fourth Province.

Elected new chairman of Fourth Province laymen was Grover C. Willis, Jr., of Columbus, Ga., where he is a member of the new St. Thomas' Mission and formerly was a member of Trinity Church. He succeeds Frank C. Englesing of Port Gibson, Miss., who presided at the conference.

New vice - chairmen elected were: Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gerhardt of Winter Park, Fla., where he is a member of All Saints' Church; T. Fitzhugh Wilson of Monroe, La., where he is a member of Grace Church; and Mark C. Holmes of Erlanger, Ky., and a member of Grace Church in Florence, Ky. Their term of office will be three years.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a student in college. The friend who has supported me while studying has done so because he thought I was preparing for the ministry. Recently I have realized that I have no call to the ministry, though I still want to serve the Lord. How can I explain such a situation and still keep his support until I finish? D.B.

ANSWER: It seems to me that you are being too selfish in the matter. Certainly you don't expect to keep your decision from the one who is making it financially possible. That would not be honest nor Christian. He is entitled to know your intentions.

In fact, I detect a definite spiritual defect here that needs some heart searching on your part. There is nothing wrong whatever about your change of plan in view of a lack of calling to the Christian ministry. In fact, he and other Christians would admire you for your honesty in this matter. You must tell him, and risk losing his support, or you would be as guilty as one who misappropriates funds.

A call to the ministry must be very clear, though there may be no single sign or evidence that you have one. But the person God calls to preach has no doubt about it. One of the prophets once said, "The Lord hath spoken, who can but preach?" Amos 3, Verse 8.

At ship launchings in Japan, no wine is wasted in breaking a bottle over the prow. The Japanese release doves and balloons as means of good luck and then drink the wine.

EXTENSION NEWS AND VIEWS

Lawn, Fashion, Wedding Hints

By AUDREY DAWSON

Many of the home owners and landscape lovers in this area have planted the lawn grass known as Meyer Zoysia. To make a beautiful sod this grass needs some care during the summer. Our garden specialist recommends once each month during the summer to fertilize with five pounds of nitrogen per thousand square feet. Zoysia is recommended as a warm season grass that will grow and persist over a wide range of soil types and at low fertility levels. Nitrogen is the most important element for rapid top runner growth and root development of Zoysia. Never apply the solid fertilizers to wet grass. Remember to hose the ferilizer in to prevent burning.

Fall Fashions

The latest information we have received from our clothing specialist, Miss Margaret Brumby, gives the outlook for fall. The chemise look will be featured in an increased share of women's apparel but one concession will be made to male complaints. The fall styles will hug the female figure a little more than the first extreme versions of the chemise. The sack look will stay and even will have a heavy impact on women's coats, suits, sportswear and nightgowns. Also, the number of derivatives of the sack look—the trapeze, for example will continue to be offered in the fall fashions.

There are trends in other categories such as hosiery, jewelry, men's furnishings and sportswear that are expected to be important in completing the changes in the wardrobe. For example, emphasis on stockings will be greater because of shorter skirt lengths. Tinted hose black, navy and beige will be offered as accessories to the chemise look, but the gaudier shades will not be back in the fall of course the well known shades of hosiery will be available. Because of the plain look of the dress styles bright pins and rope length necklaces will be popular jewelry styles in the fall. Also, hip length, straight line sweaters will reflect the chemise look in women's sportswear. Bulky, 4-button sweaters for men will be popular, too.

Bride's Parents

To continue our wedding do's and don'ts here are reminders for parents. If you are the parents of the bride this is a day you have been thinking about for many years. Father has little to do but dress for the big day. His boutonniere is the same flower as that of the groom. Of course, the bills are his big headache. On the day of the wedding he will ride to the church with his daughter and will walk down the aisle with her on his right arm. He remains at the spot where the groom meets the bride. At the proper time the father steps forward, places the bride's right hand in that of the clergyman, this signifying that he gives the bride in marriage and then takes his place next to his wife at the end of the first pew on the left of the church.

The bride's mother has been busy with guest lists and other arrangements weeks before the wedding. As the bride's mother, you are the last person to be seated before the ceremony and are the first to leave after the bridal party has gone down the aisle. You and your husband leave the church together. At the reception you will receive first at the door of entrance. You may ask the groom's mother to assist you.

Groom's Parents

If you are the groom's parents, your role is little more than that of a guest, especially for the groom's father. Before the wedding, the groom's mother prepares a list of relatives and friends for the bride's mother to combine with her list for invitations.

On the day of the wedding you will wait in the vestibule until entire wedding party has arrived. Groom's mother is escorted by the head usher to the first pew on the right, her husband follows alone and stands beside her. The groom's mother is escorted from the church immediately after the bride's mother.

A Thought

You weren't born under a lucky star? So what! You're living under 48 of them.

'Red Menace' Means Trouble For Landscape

Red "dust" that moves spells trouble for your landscaping. That is because the animate specks undoubtedly will be pesky red spiders, or spider mites.

These tiny arachnids — they are not insects, at all — thrive in hot weather. And when their population soars, these sap-suckers can seriously weaken host plants, says E. J. Ledger, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

They usually are so tiny they are difficult to detect on trees or other plantings. There is a simple test that uncovers them quickly. Vigorously shake twigs and leaves over a clean sheet of white paper. If plant debris, dirt and what appears to be grains of dust show on the white paper, study the dust for a moment. Grains that suddenly become mobile usually indicate an abundance of red spiders.

Until recent years, forceful hosing down of plants was about the only means of keeping the spider population somewhat in check. Today, however miticides like malathion can keep the back yard red menaces under effective control. Spiders usually are so numerous at summer's peak that one spraying rarely effects 100 per cent kill. Periodic spraying for the rest of the growing season is indicated for heavy infestations.

Men's Garden Clubs Grow In Numbers

Yessir! You can have the most beautiful flowers on your block. You can exercise your secret yearning to cover the south fence with passion flowers, and the women won't rib you either—pretty soon you'll have them outnumbered

You'll be one of ten thousand men, and they're 100 per cent male, that belong to the nearly 200 clubs making up the fast-growing Men's Garden Clubs of America. A few members are pros, but for the most part they are learners who garden because it's a satisfying, rewarding way of life.

What do they do besides talk? They beautify cities, arrange flowers in great, robust shows that would curl the hair of women, give flowers and vegetables to hospitals, organize school gardens, and have a heck of a lot of fun in the process.

One of their most popular pasttimes is testing flowers — the newer the better. Last year, for instance, plant breeders sent seeds of experimental flowers to a hotshot flower grower in each club. They planted and carefully observed eleven different samples. Four came out looking real good all over the country. Want to know what they were?

Three were marigolds. A short yellow one for edgings, dainty Marietta, bloomed all summer long — even through hot southern summers. A medium height marigold, Crackerjack, yielded a tremendous number of large, carnation-like blooms, on plants that were as uniform as a clipped hedge. Serenade, a short, double-flowered variety, bloomed with a soft golden color that agreed with all other colors in the garden. Lastly, an F-2 petunia mixture, colorama, pleased the testers with its array of bright colors and continuous bloom.

Now, maybe roses are your favorite flower — or iris — or day lilies. Whatever your hobby plant, you'll find others who share your interest. So reclaim your pet trowel and pruning shears from your wife, and join your local Men's Garden Club of America!

TROPICAL TOUCH — Mimosa trees, now blooming in the Monroe area and throughout the south add a touch of the tropics to local lawns and parks.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Time Now To Plant Seed For Mulleins

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

What has happened to the Salvia called "Vatican Variety" that was so popular some years back? This handsome large-leaved plant might be grown for the fine fuzzy leaves alone, but the big fat bud —as big as a baby's fist—and the intriguing mother-of-pearl to lavender effect of the large heads of pinkish lavender bracts and light lavender flowers is something unique in a garden. Perhaps the fact that this salvia is a biennial is partly responsible for its disappearance from Southern gardens.

Like most biennials, salvia Vatican usually reseeds itself, and there are usually plenty of seedlings coming up everywhere near vacant spots in the shrub border the old plants. If you have some where you would like to have some bold foliage in summer, plant some seeds of Vatican right away.

Mulleins Adaptable

The mulleins are good for this sort of position, too. Dry places are to their liking, but be sure that they do not starve. We can tell how much they like potash and phosphorous from the way they respond to bone meal and come up in the woods around the ashes of wood fires. The most striking flowers are produced on the Greek mullein (Verbascum olympicum). Verbascum Thapsus, called Aaron's Rod and Hag Taper has straight, unbranching spikes of wooliness, with a flower only here and there at a time. For flower arrangements, this is a very striking plant.

The woolly mullein is the largest and showiest plant in the group. While its flowers are not as showy, singly, as those of the Greek kind, the plants of Woolly mullein produce enormous candelabra of yellow flowers that are real eye-catchers when planted at the back of borders or as occasional pieces near the front of borders.

Right now is a good time to sow the seeds of both salvia Vatican and of the mulleins. Look under Salvia sclarea for the Vatican variety. This is just a selected variety of the old plant called Clary that was grown in our grandmothers' gardens for brewing herb-wine. It has come down to us since before the time of Charlemagne as a plant grown in herb gardens.

While you are sowing these biennials, you may as well sow seeds of the different kinds of dusty miller for their grey foliage. Centaurea candidissima is the Latin name for one kind. The tall kind is Centaurea gymnocarpa. We have written about this one before in the column. It stays out all winter without freezing. Only the oldest parts of the plants froze in last winter's low temperatures. Under Cineraria maritima, you will find the other dusty millers. All of them come very easily from seed planted in summer. They will be big enough by August to transplant to their permanent place in the garden.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

June Flowers Are Featured

By MARY M. JARDINE

Flowers that bloom in June were featured by the talented arrangers of the Bayou DeSiard Garden Club Monroe in their display at the Garden Center this week. Cannas, zinnias and daylilies were the "stars" of this show.

Highlight of the show was Mrs. Marcus Mapp's eye - catching composition. Elise selected a high-heeled laced up ladies shoe (vintage of the nineties; of soft brown leather for her container. This was placed on a brown plaque with a pair of great-grandmothers' spectacles as an accessory. The design was diagonal in pattern and featured canna bud stalks for height, strengthened by green canna leaves. Brilliant yellow and orange canna blooms were placed in the focal area. Elise bought the antique shoes at an auction several years ago. When used as a container a water glass filled with vermiculite is used as a mechanic, and placed inside the shoe. This design, originally planned for the family room in the Mapp home, is always a conversation piece. The shoes double for costume parties and amateur plays.

Zinnias

Mrs. Dan Cox created a lovely design featuring zinnias. The round pottery bowl was a deep rose color. Pat made a modified crescent design with curly brown dock for the primary lines. The crescent was emphasized with zinnias in shades of pink. This was very lovely staged against a pink background.

Mrs. E. J. Foster featured cannas in her mass arrangement for a living room table. She selected a rectangular black compote of modern design for her arrangement. Background placements were tall stalks of canna buds with green canna foliage. Maroon foliage was placed low on either side of the design providing a color transition. Yellow and orange canna blooms were massed as a center of interest. Very colorful and staged against a chartreuse background. The flowers and foliage of canna are very popular with flower arrangers.

Here's how to condition them. Cut when the first two florets are open. Buds develop well after cutting. Submerge flower and stem until all parts are crisp. Then split stems and place in cold water to condition overnight. For the foliage, split stems and submerge in cold water for an hour or two, then keep stems in cold water until used.

Kwanso

Pat Cox also made a beautiful vertical design using the Kwanso double daylily. Her container and matching base were of natural wood. The container was cylindrical in shape. The tall background placements were of brown dock followed by daylily buds and slender aspidistra leaves. A rippled leaf of the aspidistra was brought over the side of the container, thus softening the severe vertical line. Bright orange double daylilies, skillfully placed, enhanced the vertical pattern.

'Asta' Awards Presented To Top Writers

The Asta Awards are presented annually to outstanding writers in agricultural and horticultural journalism by the American Seed Trade Association.

True D. Morse, Under-Secretary of Agriculture, made the award presentations to the writers in recognition of their contributions to the advancement of agriculture and horticulture in 1957.

The judging board which determined this year's Asta winners consisted of leaders in the journalism and technical education departments of colleges and universities. Members of the judging board were: Professor Brison of Texas A. and M. College, Dr. L.R. Bryant of Washington State College, Professor Shideler of Oregon State College, Dr. Sabine of Michigan State University, Professor Kemmerer of the University of Illinois, Dr. Pollard of Utah State University, Dr. Copeland of the University of Illinois, Dr. Pollard of Utah State University, Dr. Copeland of the University of Oklahoma, Professor Marvin of Iowa State College, Professor Burchard of Texas A. and M. College, Dr. English of the University of Missouri, Dr. Pohlman of West Virginia University, Professor Lashbrook of Kansas State College, Dr. Kearl of the University of Wisconsin, Professor Holden of the University of Wisconsin, and Dr. Rogers of Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Schneider, Successful Farming Magazine's associate editor, is responsible for livestock, dairy, and poultry articles in the magazine.

Pyracantha Is Versatile Plant

By MILDRED SWIFT

What can't you do with a pyracantha? I never cease to be amazed at the versatility of the plant. About ten years ago we were touring the Jack Rogers' garden that had been planned by one of the south's leading landscape architects. That was my first introduction to the many charming habits of the pyracantha.

In the Rogers' garden this plant has been trained as a vine. Back to the tour. Everybody was exclaiming over the beauty of the vine. Mary Lee Milam asked me the name, and I answered, "If my glasses didn't need changing, I'd say it was a pyracantha." We laughed about that, only to find out later it wasn't a vine, but a pyracantha.

At 612 Auburn two pyracanthas have been trained on "forms," I guess you'd call them. Certainly not trellises. You go by and see them. The plants have been pruned and trained and are so interesting.

Of course you're familiar with the ease of espaliering the pyracantha. You don't get as many blooms and berries when you make the plant do what nature didn't plan for it to do. You have to prune so severely you keep the flowers and fruit cut off.

Lots of Blooms

When hydrangeas are in bloom, we wonder why we don't have this plant in our own garden. But — isn't that true of any plant as it reaches its height of glory? We can't have everything. We'd end up with a hodge - podge garden.

Back to hydrangeas — seen most often here is the familiar Hortensia variety. This you can make pink by working sulphur in the soil, or blue by using aluminum sulphate. This should be done between October and January — so write a note to yourself to do that job in one of those months. Usually the process has to be repeated two years in succession to get the desired change.

The flowers of the oak leaf hydrangea are beautiful but lesser known. It is so named because its large lobed medium green leaves resemble an oak leaf in shape. It grows as high as six feet or more and bears long panacles of creamy white flowers which are slightly fragrant. The blooming period lasts three to four weeks beginning in May. As the flowers age they change color. Thus the many arguments about the color of the blooms of the oak leaf hydrangea. This plant grows wild in Louisiana, but is among the 20 scarce plants on the conservation list. This forbids such plants to be used at flower shows except in educational or conservation exhibits. There are several gardens growing this type but I just can't remember now. Nurserymen sell this oak leaf variety.

Most varieties of hydrangeas are propagated by cuttings. Some gardeners prefer to make these when they prune the shrubs, right after they finish blooming. Some wait until August to get the summer rains. While others prefer to wait until October when the wood is more mature.

From our garden, we give hydrangea plants (of the Hortensia variety) to our friends. The plants are large. Those limbs that touch the ground take root and by winter are ready to be cut from the parent plant and transplanted.

Hydrangeas like a rich, moist soil and partial shade. Sun fades the blossom.

Berries are dropping from hollys for the same reason that leaves are falling and plants are wilting. The sudden change in temperature was too fast for the plant to adjust. Plants put on more berries than usual this year, too, and I guess the shrubs just couldn't feed them all.

Vinegar comes in for many household chores. A tablespoon added to the soap and water in which blue jeans are washed will keep them soft, lint free and easier to iron.

Stop hunting a bib every time you put baby in the high chair. Attach a cup hook on the back of the high chair and keep a bib or two hanging on it to save yourself steps.

Would you like to end the confusion of what cord to pull when opening or closing venetian blinds or draw draperies? Get out your red nail polish and paint a ring around the knob at the end of one of the cords. Then you'll know at a glance which cord to pull. Of course there's still the problem of remembering whether the red painted cord handle opens or closes the blind, but at least half the problem is solved.

Even the smallest household accessories are getting a new look these days. For instance, the waste basket has come into its own. It has been streamlined with a flat back so it will fit snugly against a wall or side of a desk, and it is available in a wide variety of decorator colors.

Making of junior sized washcloths that a small child can handle comfortably may be just the simple trick that leads to more joyous use for face and hand washing. Children who are intrigued by miniature items scaled to their own dimensions, love to use things that are indubitably their "very own."

When your supper menu consists of leftovers, heat them in a skillet the easy way. Line the skillet with aluminum foil and make individual pockets with extra foil for the different foods.

EXTENSION NEWS AND VIEWS

Lawn, Fashion, Wedding Hints

By AUDREY DAWSON

Many of the home owners and landscape lovers in this area have planted the lawn grass known as Meyer Zoysia. To make a beautiful sod this grass needs some care during the summer. Our garden specialist recommends once each month during the summer to fertilize with five pounds of nitrogen per thousand square feet. Zoysia is recommended as a warm season grass that will grow and persist over a wide range of soil types and at low fertility levels. Nitrogen is the most important element for rapid top runner growth and root development of Zoysia. Never apply the solid fertilizers to wet grass. Remember to hose the ferilizer in to prevent burning.

Fall Fashions

The latest information we have received from our clothing specialist, Miss Margaret Brumby, gives the outlook for fall. The chemise look will be featured in an increased share of women's apparel but one concession will be made to male complaints. The fall styles will hug the female figure a little more than the first extreme versions of the chemise. The sack look will stay and even will have a heavy impact on women's coats, suits, sportswear and nightgowns. Also, the number of derivatives of the sack look—the trapeze, for example will continue to be offered in the fall fashions.

There are trends in other categories such as hosiery, jewelry, men's furnishings and sportswear that are expected to be important in completing the changes in the wardrobe. For example, emphasis on stockings will be greater because of shorter skirt lengths. Tinted hose black, navy and beige will be offered as accessories to the chemise look, but the gaudier shades will not be back in the fall of course the well known shades of hosiery will be available. Because of the plain look of the dress styles bright pins and rope length necklaces will be popular jewelry styles in the fall. Also, hip length, straight line sweaters will reflect the chemise look in women's sportswear. Bulky, 4-button sweaters for men will be popular, too.

Bride's Parents

To continue our wedding do's and don'ts here are reminders for parents. If you are the parents of the bride this is a day you have been thinking about for many years. Father has little to do but dress for the big day. His boutonniere is the same flower as that of the groom. Of course, the bills are his big headache. On the day of the wedding he will ride to the church with his daughter and wlll walk down the aisle with her on his right arm. He remains at the spot where the groom meets the bride. At the proper time the father steps forward, places the bride's right hand in that of the clergyman, this signifying that he gives the bride in marriage and then takes his place next to his wife at the end of the first pew on the left of the church.

The bride's mother has been busy with guest lists and other arrangements weeks before the wedding. As the bride's mother, you are the last person to be seated before the ceremony and are the first to leave after the bridal party has gone down the aisle. You and your husband leave the church together. At the reception you will receive first at the door of entrance. You may ask the groom's mother to assist you.

Groom's Parents

If you are the groom's parents, your role is little more than that of a guest, especially for the groom's father. Before the wedding, the groom's mother prepares a list of relatives and friends for the bride's mother to combine with her list for invitations.

On the day of the wedding you will wait in the vestibule until entire wedding party has arrived. Groom's mother is escorted by the head usher to the first pew on the right, her husband follows alone and stands beside her. The groom's mother is escorted from the church immediately after the bride's mother.

A Thought

You weren't born under a lucky star? So what! You're living under 48 of them.

'Red Menace' Means Trouble For Landscape

Red "dust" that moves spells trouble for your landscaping. That is because the animate specks undoubtedly will be pesky red spiders, or spider mites.

These tiny arachnids — they are not insects, at all — thrive in hot weather. And when their population soars, these sap-suckers can seriously weaken host plants, says E. J. Ledger, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

They usually are so tiny they are difficult to detect on trees or other plantings. There is a simple test that uncovers them quickly. Vigorously shake twigs and leaves over a clean sheet of white paper. If plant debris, dirt and what appears to be grains of dust show on the white paper, study the dust for a moment. Grains that suddenly become mobile usually indicate an abundance of red spiders.

Until recent years, forceful hosing down of plants was about the only means of keeping the spider population somewhat in check. Today, however miticides like malathion can keep the back yard red menaces under effective control. Spiders usually are so numerous at summer's peak that one spraying rarely effects 100 per cent kill. Periodic spraying for the rest of the growing season is indicated for heavy infestations.

Men's Garden Clubs Grow In Numbers

Yessir! You can have the most beautiful flowers on your block. You can exercise your secret yearning to cover the south fence with passion flowers, and the women won't rib you either—pretty soon you'll have them outnumbered

You'll be one of ten thousand men, and they're 100 per cent male, that belong to the nearly 200 clubs making up the fast-growing Men's Garden Clubs of America. A few members are pros, but for the most part they are learners who garden because it's a satisfying, rewarding way of life.

What do they do besides talk? They beautify cities, arrange flowers in great, robust shows that would curl the hair of women, give flowers and vegetables to hospitals, organize school gardens, and have a heck of a lot of fun in the process.

One of their most popular pastimes is testing flowers — the newer the better. Last year, for instance, plant breeders sent seeds of experimental flowers to a hotshot flower grower in each club. They planted and carefully observed eleven different samples. Four came out looking real good all over the country. Want to know what they were?

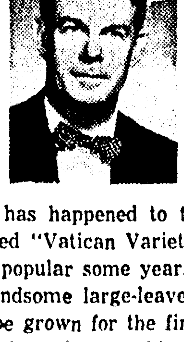
Three were marigolds. A short yellow one for edgings, dainty Marietta, bloomed all summer long — even through hot southern summers. A medium height marigold, Crackerjack, yielded a tremendous number of large, carnation-like blooms, on plants that were as uniform as a clipped hedge. Serenade, a short, double-flowered variety, bloomed with a soft golden color that agreed with all other colors in the garden. Lastly, an F-2 petunia mixture, colorama, pleased the testers with its array of bright colors and continuous bloom.

Now, maybe roses are your favorite flower — or iris — or day lilies. Whatever your hobby plant, you'll find others who share your interest. So reclaim your pet trowel and pruning shears from your wife, and join your local Men's Garden Club of America!

TROPICAL TOUCH — Mimosa trees, now blooming in the Monroe area and throughout the south add a touch of the tropics to local lawns and parks.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Time Now To Plant Seed For Mulleins



By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

What has happened to the Salvia called "Vatican Variety" that was so popular some years back? This handsome large-leaved plant might be grown for the fine fuzzy leaves alone, but the big fat bud —as big as a baby's fist—and the intriguing mother-of-pearl to lavender effect of the large heads of pinkish lavender bracts and light lavender flowers is something unique in a garden. Perhaps the fact that this salvia is a biennial is partly responsible for its disappearance from Southern gardens.

Like most biennials, salvia Vatican usually reseeds itself, and there are usually plenty of seedlings coming up everywhere near vacant spots in the shrub border the old plants. If you have some where you would like to have some bold foliage in summer, plant some seeds of Vatican right away.

Mulleins Adaptable

The mulleins are good for this sort of position, too. Dry places are to their liking, but be sure that they do not starve. We can tell how much they like potash and phosphorous from the way they respond to bone meal and come up in the woods around the ashes of wood fires. The most striking flowers are produced on the Greek mullein (Verbascum olympicum). Verbascum Thapsus, called Aaron's Rod and Hag Taper has straight, unbranching spikes of wooliness, with a flower only here and there at a time. For flower arrangements, this is a very striking plant.

The woolly mullein is the largest and showiest plant in the group. While its flowers are not as showy, singly, as those of the Greek kind, the plants of Woolly mullein produce enormous candelabra of yellow flowers that are real eye-catchers when planted at the back of borders or as occasional pieces near the front of borders.

Area Church Sends Girl To Hong Kong

TALLULAH (Special) — Miss Betty Wall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wall of Tallulah is a delegate to a work camp in Hong Kong, China, which is under the sponsorship of Ecumenical Voluntary Service, a branch of the World Council of Churches.

Two girls and two boys are chosen from the United States who will serve as part of a group of approximately 30 young people from various countries of the world. The young people will be working in a voluntary service project in a Christian group. "Ecumenical" refers to the movement toward a realization of greater unity among the separate branches and divisions of the Christian Church. The participants will be ministering to the needs of the community, whatever they may be.

Work camps involve physical labor on a project of social significance. This is supplemented by a program of study, discussion, and worship which points up the responsibility of the group to the community and the individual to the group. Work campers volunteer their time, share in living expenses and pay their own transportation.

The term of the work camp in Hong Kong is July 20 to August 15. During this time the young people will work and remain together. They have free time before and after the project in order to shop, visit, and do as they wish.

Miss Wall sailed from Los Angeles on June 14 on the President Cleveland. The ship will stop in Hawaii and Japan before getting to Hong Kong on July 5. There will be time to see the sights before the camp starts. After the camp is over she will sail back and arrive in San Francisco on September 6.

Miss Wall has been active in the youth work of the Tallulah Methodist Church and in college participation in the Methodist Wesley Foundation.

Investments Fund Set Up By Lutherans

NEW YORK (AP)—For the past four years, the United Lutheran Church in America has been employing big business methods — with big business success—to raise money for its member churches and affiliates.

The ULC's offbeat adventure in modern church finance is the Common Investing Fund, which, since Jan. 1, 1954, has distributed nearly $600,000 in dividends to almost 100 shareholders.

The CIF is similar to a mutual investment fund in that it has no share limit and it reinvests shareholders' money in the stock and bonds of private business.

The big difference is that only institutions affiliated with the ULC —its boards, synods, colleges and congregations—are eligible to become shareholders.

The fund was started in 1954 with 10 shareholders and a net asset value of 2½ million dollars. In the first quarter of 1958 there were 92 shareholders and net assets totaled more than five million dollars.

Since its inception, the CIF has been headed by Edmund F. Wagner, president of the General Realty and Utilities Corp. of New York. It has a board of directors that reads like a who's who of investment banking.

Wagner is also treasurer of the ULC, the highest church office open to a layman, and president of the Interchurch Center, Inc., a headquarters for various Protestant churches in upper Manhattan.

"The chief benefit of our service," says Wagner, "is that it gives the shareholders a protection they couldn't afford as individual investors. The United States Trust Co. is our investment counsellor."

Although the CIF has more than 350,000 shares outstanding only a thousand of them are classified as voting stock. The ULC itself owns all of them.

Last year, the CIF returned a high 48.6 cent dividend per $10 share, largely because its officers serve without pay and, as a church organization, it is not subject to federal income and capital gains taxes.

Altar Guild Of Southside Church Holds Meeting

The Altar Guild Society of the Southside Methodist Church held its regular monthly meeting on June 20th, in the home of Mrs. R. C. Perkins at 1212 South 8th Street, Monroe.

On the occasion the newly elected officers of the organization served in their respective capacities for the first time. Mrs. Ernest Hammonds, Jr., president, presided over the meeting which was opened by a Devotional from Isiah C. 12, V. 2. Miss Pearl LeFevre gave a talk on ten beliefs and practices of Methodists. Mrs. Virginia Goodman, secretary-treasurer took minutes of the business meeting. The Guild purchases material which will be used by the Golden Maturity Club in a basket weaving course which will be taught by Miss LeFevre, the finished products will be used by the Guild membership as containers for flowers to be delivered to hospital patients in the Monroe area.

As a student at Louisiana Tech, Miss Shirley is active in many programs including her church student union. These activities played a major part in her selection to the Mission Board which is located in Dayton, Ohio.

Training Of Officers For CWF Planned

All women interested in the work of the Christian Women's Fellowship are cordially invited to attend the Officers Training School session which will be held at the St. John Christian Church, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The session will begin with a worship period with those attending dispersing afterwards into the various work shops made available to them. The meeting will conclude with an assembly followed by lunch.

Convention Planned By 'Witnesses'

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Monroe Unit East and West congregations today announced that plans were under way to attend an international convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in New York City this summer.

C. L. Hester, and Henry C. Trull, presiding ministers of the local group, said the convention could well be the largest in the history of Jehovah's Witnesses. It is scheduled for July 27 through August 3 and will be held in Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds simultaneously.

The last international convention attended by many of Monroe's Witnesses, was held in 1953 in Yankee Stadium and reached a peak attendance of 165,000 including the overflow audience. Watchtower officials, the ministers said, have arranged this year for the program to be held in both places, with most program features repeated at the Polo Grounds immediately following the first presentation in Yankee Stadium.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, governing agency for Jehovah's Witnesses, has been making special travel arrangements for foreign delegates. Many missionaries who have served in other lands will also be brought to the United States for the Bible convention. Purpose of the gathering is to provide stimulus for the New World society of Jehovah's Witnesses in Christian association, Bible instruction and ministerial training.

It is not yet known how many Witnesses from the area will attend, but travel arrangements were being made. It was pointed out it may be necessary to make limited meeting arrangements or cancel meetings altogether during convention time.

Newly Arrived Priests Given Welcome Party

A reception and welcome party for Father David Daubre and Father Richard Fale was held Tuesday night at the Knights of Columbus Hall by the study club group of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

Father Daubre, who was assistant to Msgr. John C. Marsh of St. Matthews for two years, has returned after a three-year abscence to head as pastor the new scheduled Catholic parish. This parish, which will be named "Jesus, the Good Shepard," will cover approximately all of Monroe north and northeast of Hilton Street.

Father Fale will be the new assistant to Msgr. Marsh at St. Matthews, replacing Father Joe Montalbano who has been transferred to Shreveport.

Rev. W. D. Boddie Delegate To Meet In Washington

The Rev. W. D. Boddie, pastor of the Rayville Methodist Church and Louisiana Conference secretary of evangelism for the Methodist Church, will be a delegate of the Conference Board of Evangelism to the Methodist Convocation on evangelism in Washington, D. C., July 3-6.

On Saturday afternoon July 5, Rev. Boddie will speak to one of the discussion groups on the subject "Every Methodist An Evangelist." He will also be a member of the Preacher's Chorus, composed of several hundred Methodist ministers, which will sing Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at Uline Arena and on Sunday evening as a part of the Massed Choir in the great Evangelistic service at Griffith Stadium.

Group Attends Conference At Sewanee

SEWANEE, Tenn. — Nearly 150 Episcopal laymen gathered at the University of the South last week for the annual Episcopal Laymen's Conference of the church's Fourth Province that includes 15 dioceses in nine Southern states. Conference theme was "Extending the Impact of Christianity."

Principal program speaker was Hugh C. Laughlin, president of the Owens - Illinois Glass Company, Toledo, Ohio, and chairman of Episcopal laymen in the church's Fifth Province. A special guest was Mrs. S. M. Montgomery of Blanton, Miss., president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Fourth Province.

Elected new chairman of Fourth Province laymen was Grover C. Willis, Jr., of Columbus, Ga., where he is a member of the new St. Thomas' Mission and formerly was a member of Trinity Church. He succeeds Frank C. Englesing of Port Gibson, Miss., who presided at the conference.

New vice - chairmen elected were: Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gerhardt of Winter Park, Fla., where he is a member of All Saints' Church; T. Fitzhugh Wilson of Monroe, La., where he is a member of Grace Church; and Mark C. Holmes of Erlanger, Ky., and a member of Grace Church in Florence, Ky. Their term of office will be three years.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a student in college. The friend who has supported me while studying has done so because he thought I was preparing for the ministry. Recently I have realized that I have no call to the ministry, though I still want to serve the Lord. How can I explain such a situation and still keep his support until I finish? D.B.

ANSWER: It seems to me that you are being too selfish in the matter. Certainly you don't expect to keep your decision from the one who is making it financially possible. That would not be honest nor Christian. He is entitled to know your intentions.

In fact, I detect a definite spiritual defect here that needs some heart searching on your part. There is nothing wrong whatever about your change of plan in view of a lack of calling to the Christian ministry. In fact, he and other Christians would admire you for your honesty in this matter. You must tell him, and risk losing his support, or you would be as guilty as one who misappropriates funds.

A call to the ministry must be very clear, though there may be no single sign or evidence that you have one. But the person God calls to preach has no doubt about it. One of the prophets once said, "The Lord hath spoken, who can but preach?" Amos 3, Verse 8.

At ship launchings in Japan, no wine is wasted in breaking a bottle over the prow. The Japanese release doves and balloons as means of good luck and then drink the wine.

Area Church Sends Girl To Hong Kong

TALLULAH (Special) — Miss Betty Wall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Wall of Tallulah is a delegate to a work camp in Hong Kong, China, which is under the sponsorship of Ecumenical Voluntary Service, a branch of the World Council of Churches.

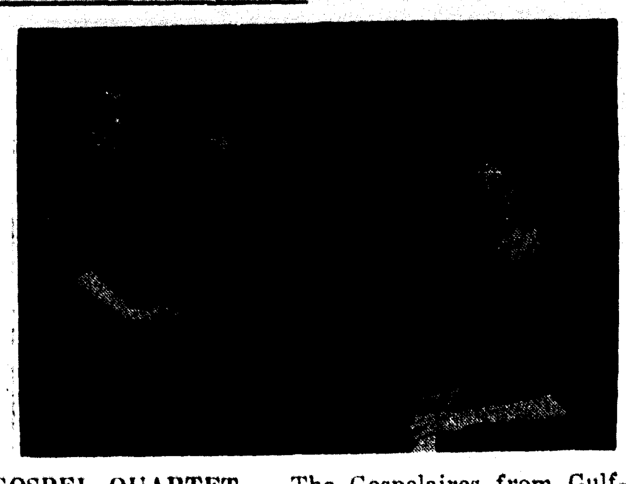
Two girls and two boys are chosen from the United States who will serve as part of a group of approximately 30 young people from various countries of the world. The young people will be working in a voluntary service project in a Christian group. "Ecumenical" refers to the movement toward a realization of greater unity among the separate branches and divisions of the Christian Church. The participants will be ministering to the needs of the community, whatever they may be.

Work camps involve physical labor on a project of social significance. This is supplemented by a program of study, discussion, and worship which points up the responsibility of the group to the community and the individual to the group. Work campers volunteer their time, share in living expenses and pay their own transportation.

The term of the work camp in Hong Kong is July 20 to August 15. During this time the young people will work and remain together. They have free time before and after the project in order to shop, visit, and do as they wish.

Miss Wall sailed from Los Angeles on June 14 on the President Cleveland. The ship will stop in Hawaii and Japan before getting to Hong Kong on July 5. There will be time to see the sights before the camp starts. After the camp is over she will sail back and arrive in San Francisco on September 6.

Miss Wall has been active in the youth work of the Tallulah Methodist Church and in college participation in the Methodist Wesley Foundation.



GOSPEL QUARTET — The Gospelaires from Gulfcoast Bible College, Houston, Texas, will bring an inspirational program of song and testimony to the First Church Of God, 1513 S. 3rd St. today when they will take part in the 11 a.m. service.

Armed Services

Byron M. Boutwell, apprentice petty officer third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Boutwell of Route 3, Box 205, Winnsboro, La., graduated June 20 from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

Apprentice petty officers are chosen from the ranks of the seaman recruits to assist company commanders. The selection is based on individual aptitude and leadership qualities.

PFC Edrie A. Futch, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Futch, Route 4, Rayville, La., recently participated in a field training exercise conducted by the 4th Armored Division near Grafenwohr, Germany.

Lonnie L. Hayden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Hayden of 1105 Audubon St., West Monroe, La., is scheduled to complete recruit training June 27 at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, Calif.

Upon completion of training new Marines are assigned to a unit for further infantry training, or to one of the many Marine Corps schools.

U. S. Naval Academy Midshipman second class Kenneth D. Savage, son of Chief hospital Corpsman and Mrs. P. G. Savage of 1601 Filhiol Ave., Monroe, La., completed two weeks of amphibious training June 20 at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, Norfolk, Va.

The training was climaxed June 20 by a mammoth assault on the beaches of Camp Pendleton, Va. The midshipmen joined two thousand members of the 6th Marine Regiment from Camp Lejeune, N. C., for the full-scale amphibious landing.

George H. Hancock was promoted to Marine First Sergeant May 19 while serving as the First Sergeant of "K" Company of the Third Battalion, Eighth Marines, a part of the Second Division at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

1st Sgt. Hancock is the son of Mrs. Maggie Hancock of Route 5, Springhill, Ala., and the husband of the former Miss Edith R. Mayo of 3804 Harrison St., Monroe, La.

Navy Cdr. Raymond L. Earl, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Earl of 3708 Cypress st., West Monroe, La., and husband of the former Miss Martha G. Hamer of Monroe, departed Long Beach, Calif., June 20, aboard the support aircraft carrier USS Princeton as a member of helicopter anti-submarine squadron four for a six-month tour of duty in the Far East.

Robert M. Butler, personnelman third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton H. Butler of 213 Bell ave., Monroe, La., and husband of the former Miss Nancy S. Smith of Edgewater Gardens, Monroe, is serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Shangri - La operating with the U. S. Pacific fleet.

Byron M. Boutwell, apprentice petty officer third class, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Boutwell of Route 3, Box 205, Winnsboro, La., graduated June 20 from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

Apprentice petty officers are chosen from the ranks of the seaman recruits to assist company commanders. The selection is based on individual aptitude and leadership qualities.

Investments Fund Set Up By Lutherans

NEW YORK (AP)—For the past four years, the United Lutheran Church in America has been employing big business methods — with big business success—to raise money for its member churches and affiliates.

The ULC's offbeat adventure in modern church finance is the Common Investing Fund, which, since Jan. 1, 1954, has distributed nearly $600,000 in dividends to almost 100 shareholders.

The CIF is similar to a mutual investment fund in that it has no share limit and it reinvests shareholders' money in the stock and bonds of private business.

The big difference is that only institutions affiliated with the ULC —its boards, synods, colleges and congregations—are eligible to become shareholders.

The fund was started in 1954 with 10 shareholders and a net asset value of 2½ million dollars. In the first quarter of 1958 there were 92 shareholders and net assets totaled more than five million dollars.

Since its inception, the CIF has been headed by Edmund F. Wagner, president of the General Realty and Utilities Corp. of New York. It has a board of directors that reads like a who's who of investment banking.

Wagner is also treasurer of the ULC, the highest church office open to a layman, and president of the Interchurch Center,Inc., a headquarters for various Protestant churches in upper Manhattan.

"The chief benefit of our service," says Wagner, "is that it gives the shareholders a protection they couldn't afford as individual investors. The United States Trust Co. is our investment counsellor."

Although the CIF has more than 350,000 shares outstanding only a thousand of them are classified as voting stock. The ULC itself owns all of them.

Last year, the CIF returned a high 48.6 cent dividend per $10 share, largely because its officers serve without pay and, as a church organization, it is not subject to federal income and capital gains taxes.

Altar Guild Of Southside Church Holds Meeting

The Altar Guild Society of the Southside Methodist Church held its regular monthly meeting on June 20th, in the home of Mrs. R. C. Perkins at 1212 South 8th Street, Monroe.

On the occasion the newly elected officers of the organization served in their respective capacities for the first time. Mrs. Ernest Hammonds, Jr., president, presided over the meeting which was opened by a Devotional from Isiah C. 12, V. 2. Miss Pearl LeFevre gave a talk on ten beliefs and practices of Methodists. Mrs. Virginia Goodman, secretary-treasurer took minutes of the business meeting. The Guild purchases material which will be used by the Golden Maturity Club in a basket weaving course which will be taught by Miss LeFevre, the finished products will be used by the Guild membership as containers for flowers to be delivered to hospital patients in the Monroe area.

Youth Serving With Baptist Mission Board

RUSTON (Special) — Serving with the Baptist Mission Board this summer is Miss Eva Jeanne Shirley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Shirley of Ruston.

As a student at Louisiana Tech, Miss Shirley is active in many programs including her church student union. These activities played a major part in her selection to the Mission Board which is located in Dayton, Ohio.

Training Of Officers For CWF Planned

All women interested in the work of the Christian Women's Fellowship are cordially invited to attend the Officers Training School session which will be held at the St. John Christian Church, beginning at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The session will begin with a worship period with those attending dispersing afterwards into the various work shops made available to them. The meeting will conclude with an assembly followed by lunch.

Convention Planned By 'Witnesses'

Jehovah's Witnesses from the Monroe Unit East and West congregations today announced that plans were under way to attend an international convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in New York City this summer.

C. L. Hester, and Henry C. Trull, presiding ministers of the local group, said the convention could well be the largest in the history of Jehovah's Witnesses. It is scheduled for July 27 through August 3 and will be held in Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds simultaneously.

The last international convention attended by many of Monroe's Witnesses, was held in 1953 in Yankee Stadium and reached a peak attendance of 165,000 including the overflow audience. Watchtower officials, the ministers said, have arranged this year for the program to be held in both places, with most program features repeated at the Polo Grounds immediately following the first presentation in Yankee Stadium.

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, governing agency for Jehovah's Witnesses, has been making special travel arrangements for foreign delegates. Many missionaries who have served in other lands will also be brought to the United States for the Bible convention. Purpose of the gathering is to provide stimulus for the New World society of Jehovah's Witnesses in Christian association, Bible instruction and ministerial training.

It is not yet known how many Witnesses from the area will attend, but travel arrangements were being made. It was pointed out it may be necessary to make limited meeting arrangements or cancel meetings altogether during convention time.

Newly Arrived Priests Given Welcome Party

A reception and welcome party for Father David Daubre and Father Richard Fale was held Tuesday night at the Knights of Columbus Hall by the study club group of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine.

Father Daubre, who was assistant to Msgr. John C. Marsh of St. Matthews for two years, has returned after a three-year abscence to head as pastor the new scheduled Catholic parish. This parish, which will be named "Jesus, the Good Shepard," will cover approximately all of Monroe north and northeast of Hilton Street.

Father Fale will be the new assistant to Msgr. Marsh at St. Matthews, replacing Father Joe Montalbano who has been transferred to Shreveport.

Rev. W. D. Boddie Delegate To Meet In Washington

The Rev. W. D. Boddie, pastor of the Rayville Methodist Church and Louisiana Conference secretary of evangelism for the Methodist Church, will be a delegate of the Conference Board of Evangelism to the Methodist Convocation on evangelism in Washington, D. C., July 3-6.

On Saturday afternoon July 5, Rev. Boddie will speak to one of the discussion groups on the subject "Every Methodist An Evangelist." He will also be a member of the Preacher's Chorus, composed of several hundred Methodist ministers, which will sing Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings at Uline Arena and on Sunday evening as a part of the Massed Choir in the great Evangelistic service at Griffith Stadium.

Group Attends Conference At Sewanee

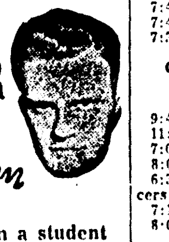
SEWANEE, Tenn. — Nearly 150 Episcopal laymen gathered at the University of the South last week for the annual Episcopal Laymen's Conference of the church's Fourth Province that includes 15 dioceses in nine Southern states. Conference theme was "Extending the Impact of Christianity."

Principal program speaker was Hugh C. Laughlin, president of the Owens - Illinois Glass Company, Toledo, Ohio, and chairman of Episcopal laymen in the church's Fifth Province. A special guest was Mrs. S. M. Montgomery of Blanton, Miss., president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Fourth Province.

Elected new chairman of Fourth Province laymen was Grover C. Willis, Jr., of Columbus, Ga., where he is a member of the new St. Thomas' Mission and formerly was a member of Trinity Church. He succeeds Frank C. Englesing of Port Gibson, Miss., who presided at the conference.

New vice - chairmen elected were: Maj. Gen. Charles H. Gerhardt of Winter Park, Fla., where he is a member of All Saints' Church; T. Fitzhugh Wilson of Monroe, La., where he is a member of Grace Church; and Mark C. Holmes of Erlanger, Ky., and a member of Grace Church in Florence, Ky. Their term of office will be three years.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham



QUESTION: I am a student in college. The friend who has supported me while studying has done so because he thought I was preparing for the ministry. Recently I have realized that I have no call to the ministry, though I still want to serve the Lord. How can I explain such a situation and still keep his support until I finish? D.B.

ANSWER: It seems to me that you are being too selfish in the matter. Certainly you don't expect to keep your decision from the one who is making it financially possible. That would not be honest nor Christian. He is entitled to know your intentions.

In fact, I detect a definite spiritual defect here that needs some heart searching on your part. There is nothing wrong whatever about your change of plan in view of a lack of calling to the Christian ministry. In fact, he and other Christians would admire you for your honesty in this matter. You must tell him, and risk losing his support, or you would be as guilty as one who misappropriates funds.

A call to the ministry must be very clear, though there may be no single sign or evidence that you have one. But the person God calls to preach has no doubt about it. One of the prophets once said, "The Lord hath spoken, who can but preach?" Amos 3, Verse 8.

At ship launchings in Japan, no wine is wasted in breaking a bottle over the prow. The Japanese release doves and balloons as means of good luck and then drink the wine.

Lawn, Fashion, Wedding Hints

By AUDREY DAWSON

Many of the home owners and landscape lovers in this area have planted the lawn grass known as Meyer Zoysia. To make a beautiful sod this grass needs some care during the summer. Our garden specialist recommends once each month during the summer to fertilize with five pounds of nitrogen per thousand square feet. Zoysia is recommended as a warm season grass that will grow and persist over a wide range of soil types and at low fertility levels. Nitrogen is the most important element for rapid top runner growth and root development of Zoysia. Never apply the solid fertilizers to wet grass. Remember to hose the ferilizer in to prevent burning.

Fall Fashions

The latest information we have received from our clothing specialist, Miss Margaret Brumby, gives the outlook for fall. The chemise look will be featured in an increased share of women's apparel but one concession will be made to male complaints. The fall styles will hug the female figure a little more than the first extreme versions of the chemise. The sack look will stay and even will have a heavy impact on women's coats, suits, sportswear and nightgowns. Also, the number of derivatives of the sack look—the trapeze, for example will continue to be offered in the fall fashions.

There are trends in other categories such as hosiery, jewelry, men's furnishings and sportswear that are expected to be important in completing the changes in the wardrobe. For example, emphasis on stockings will be greater because of shorter skirt lengths. Tinted hose black, navy and beige will be offered as accessories to the chemise look, but the gaudier shades will not be back in the fall of course the well known shades of hosiery will be available. Because of the plain look of the dress styles bright pins and rope length necklaces will be popular jewelry styles in the fall. Also, hip length, straight line sweaters will reflect the chemise look in women's sportswear. Bulky, 4-button sweaters for men will be popular, too.

Bride's Parents

To continue our wedding do's and don'ts here are reminders for parents. If you are the parents of the bride this is a day you have been thinking about for many years. Father has little to do but dress for the big day. His boutonniere is the same flower as that of the groom. Of course, the bills are his big headache. On the day of the wedding he will ride to the church with his daughter and will walk down the aisle with her on his right arm. He remains at the spot where the groom meets the bride. At the proper time the father steps forward, places the bride's right hand in that of the clergyman, this signifying that he gives the bride in marriage and then takes his place next to his wife at the end of the first pew on the left of the church.

The bride's mother has been busy with guest lists and other arrangements weeks before the wedding. As the bride's mother, you are the last person to be seated before the ceremony and are the first to leave after the bridal party has gone down the aisle. You and your husband leave the church together. At the reception you will receive first at the door of entrance. You may ask the groom's mother to assist you.

Groom's Parents

If you are the groom's parents, your role is little more than that of a guest, especially for the groom's father. Before the wedding, the groom's mother prepares a list of relatives and friends for the bride's mother to combine with her list for invitations.

On the day of the wedding you will wait in the vestibule until entire wedding party has arrived. Groom's mother is escorted by the head usher to the first pew on the right, her husband follows alone and stands beside her. The groom's mother is escorted from the church immediately after the bride's mother.

A Thought

You weren't born under a lucky star? So what! You're living under 48 of them.

'Red Menace' Means Trouble For Landscape

Red "dust" that moves spells trouble for your landscaping. That is because the animate specks undoubtedly will be pesky red spiders, or spider mites.

These tiny arachnids — they are not insects, at all — thrive in hot weather. And when their population soars, these sap-suckers can seriously weaken host plants, says E. J. Ledger, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

They usually are so tiny they are difficult to detect on trees or other plantings. There is a simple test that uncovers them quickly. Vigorously shake twigs and leaves over a clean sheet of white paper. If plant debris, dirt and what appears to be grains of dust show on the white paper, study the dust for a moment. Grains that suddenly become mobile usually indicate an abundance of red spiders.

Until recent years, forceful hosing down of plants was about the only means of keeping the spider population somewhat in check. Today, however miticides like malathion can keep the back yard red menaces under effective control. Spiders usually are so numerous at summer's peak that one spraying rarely effects 100 per cent kill. Periodic spraying for the rest of the growing season is indicated for heavy infestations.

Men's Garden Clubs Grow In Numbers

Yessir! You can have the most beautiful flowers on your block. You can exercise your secret yearning to cover the south fence with passion flowers, and the women won't rib you either—pretty soon you'll have them outnumbered

You'll be one of ten thousand men, and they're 100 per cent male, that belong to the nearly 200 clubs making up the fast-growing Men's Garden Clubs of America. A few members are pros, but for the most part they are learners who garden because it's a satisfying, rewarding way of life.

What do they do besides talk? They beautify cities, arrange flowers in great, robust shows that would curl the hair of women, give flowers and vegetables to hospitals, organize school gardens, and have a heck of a lot of fun in the process.

One of their most popular pastimes is testing flowers — the newer the better. Last year, for instance, plant breeders sent seeds of experimental flowers to a hot-shot flower grower in each club. They planted and carefully observed eleven different samples. Four came out looking real good all over the country. Want to know what they were?

Three were marigolds. A short yellow one for edgings, dainty Marietta, bloomed all summer long — even through hot southern summers. A medium height marigold, Crackerjack, yielded a tremendous number of large, carnation-like blooms, on plants that were as uniform as a clipped hedge. Serenade, a short, double-flowered variety, bloomed with a soft golden color that agreed with all other colors in the garden. Lastly, an F-2 petunia mixture, colorama, pleased the testers with its array of bright colors and continuous bloom.

Now, maybe roses are your favorite flower — or iris — or day lilies. Whatever your hobby plant, you'll find others who share your interest. So reclaim your pet trowel and pruning shears from your wife, and join your local Men's Garden Club of America!

TROPICAL TOUCH — Mimosa trees, now blooming in the Monroe area and throughout the south add a touch of the tropics to local lawns and parks.

Time Now To Plant Seed For Mulleins

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

What has happened to the Salvia called "Vatican Variety" that was so popular some years back? This handsome large-leaved plant might be grown for the fine fuzzy leaves alone, but the big fat bud —as big as a baby's fist—and the intriguing mother-of-pearl to lavender effect of the large heads of pinkish lavender bracts and light lavender flowers is something unique in a garden. Perhaps the fact that this salvia is a biennial is partly responsible for its disappearance from Southern gardens.

Like most biennials, salvia Vatican usually reseeds itself, and there are usually plenty of seedlings coming up everywhere near vacant spots in the shrub border the old plants. If you have some where you would like to have some bold foliage in summer, plant some seeds of Vatican right away.

Mulleins Adaptable

The mulleins are good for this sort of position, too. Dry places are to their liking, but be sure that they do not starve. We can tell how much they like potash and phosphorous from the way they respond to bone meal and come up in the woods around the ashes of wood fires. The most striking flowers are produced on the Greek mullein (Verbascum olympicum). Verbascum Thapsus, called Aaron's Rod and Hag Taper has straight, unbranching spikes of wooliness, with a flower only here and there at a time. For flower arrangements, this is a very striking plant.

The woolly mullein is the largest and showiest plant in the group. While its flowers are not as showy, singly, as those of the Greek kind, the plants of Woolly mullein produce enormous candelabra of yellow flowers that are real eye-catchers when planted at the back of borders or as occasional pieces near the front of borders.

Right now is a good time to sow the seeds of both salvia Vatican and of the mulleins. Look under Salvia sclarea for the Vatican variety. This is just a selected variety of the old plant called Clary that was grown in our grandmothers' gardens for brewing herb-wine. It has come down to us since before the time of Charlemagne as a plant grown in herb gardens.

While you are sowing these biennials, you may as well sow seeds of the different kinds of dusty miller for their grey foliage. Centaurea candidissima is the Latin name for one kind. The tall kind is Centaurea gymnocarpa. We have written about this one before in the column. It stays out all winter without freezing. Only the oldest parts of the plants froze in last winter's low temperatures. Under Cineraria maritima, you will find the other dusty millers. All of them come very easily from seed planted in summer. They will be big enough by August to transplant to their permanent place in the garden.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

June Flowers Are Featured

By MARY M. JARDINE

Flowers that bloom in June were featured by the talented arrangers of the Bayou DeSiard Garden Club Monroe in their display at the Garden Center this week. Cannas, zinnias and daylilies were the "stars" of this show.

Highlight of the show was Mrs. Marcus Mapp's eye - catching composition. Elise selected a high-heeled laced up ladies shoe (vin tage of the nineties; of soft brown leather for her container. This was placed on a brown plaque with a pair of great-grandmothers' spectacles as an accessory. The design was diagonal in pattern and featured canna bud stalks for height, strengthened by green canna leaves. Brilliant yellow and orange canna blooms were placed in the focal area. Elise bought the antique shoes at an auction several years ago. When used as a container a water glass filled with vermiculite is used as a mechanic, and placed inside the shoe. This design, originally planned for the family room in the Mapp home, is always a conversation piece. The shoes double for costume parties and amateur plays.

Zinnias

Mrs. Dan Cox created a lovely design featuring zinnias. The round pottery bowl was a deep rose color. Pat made a modified crescent design with curly brown dock for the primary lines. The crescent was emphasized with zinnias in shades of pink. This was very lovely staged against a pink background.

Mrs. E. J. Foster featured cannas in her mass arrangement for a living room table. She selected a rectangular black compote of modern design for her arrangement. Background placements were tall stalks of canna buds with green canna foliage. Maroon foliage was placed low on either side of the design providing a color transition. Yellow and orange canna blooms were massed as a center of interest. Very colorful and staged against a chartreuse background. The flowers and foliage of canna are very popular with flower arrangers.

Here's how to condition them. Cut when the first two florets are open. Buds develop well after cutting. Submerge flower and stem until all parts are crisp. Then split stems and place in cold water to condition overnight. For the foliage, split stems and submerge in cold water for an hour or two, then keep stems in cold water until used.

Kwanso

Pat Cox also made a beautiful vertical design using the Kwanso double daylily. Her container and matching base were of natural wood. The container was cylindrical in shape. The tall background placements were of brown dock followed by daylily buds and slender aspidistra leaves. A rippled leaf of the aspidistra was brought over the side of the container, thus softening the severe vertical line. Bright orange double daylilies, skillfully placed, enhanced the vertical pattern.

Summer time is reading time, and we are happy to announce that we have added the following books to our Garden Center library for your reading pleasure:

'Asta' Awards Presented To Top Writers

The Asta Awards are presented annually to outstanding writers in agricultural and horticultural journalism by the American Seed Trade Association.

True D. Morse, Under-Secretary of Agriculture, made the award presentations to the writers in recognition of their contributions to the advancement of agriculture and horticulture in 1957.

The judging board which determined this year's Asta winners consisted of leaders in the journalism and technical education departments of colleges and universities. Members of the judging board were: Professor Brison of Texas A. and M. College, Dr. L.R. Bryant of Washington State College, Professor Shideler of Oregon State College, Dr. Sabine of Michigan State University, Professor Kemmerer of the University of Illinois, Dr. Pollard of Utah State University, Dr. Copeland of the University of Illinois, Dr. Pollard of Utah State University, Dr. Copeland of the University of Oklahoma, Professor Marvin of Iowa State College, Professor Burchard of Texas A. and M. College, Dr. English of the University of Missouri, Dr. Pohlman of West Virginia University, Professor Lashbrook of Kansas State College, Dr. Kearl of the University of Wisconsin, Professor Holden of the University of Wisconsin, and Dr. Rogers of Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Schneider, Successful Farming Magazine's associate editor, is responsible for livestock, dairy, and poultry articles in the magazine.

Pyracantha Is Versatile Plant

By MILDRED SWIFT

What can't you do with a pyracantha? I never cease to be amazed at the versatility of the plant. About ten years ago we were touring the Jack Rogers' garden that had been planned by one of the south's leading landscape architects. That was my first introduction to the many charming habits of the pyracantha.

In the Rogers' garden this plant has been trained as a vine. Back to the tour. Everybody was exclaiming over the beauty of the vine. Mary Lee Milam asked me the name, and I answered, "If my glasses didn't need changing, I'd say it was a pyracantha." We laughed about that, only to find out later it wasn't a vine, but a pyracantha.

At 612 Auburn two pyracanthas have been trained on "forms," I guess you'd call them. Certainly not trellises. You go by and see them. The plants have been pruned and trained and are so interesting.

Of course you're familiar with the ease of espaliering the pyracantha. You don't get as many blooms and berries when you make the plant do what nature didn't plan for it to do. You have to prune so severely you keep the flowers and fruit cut off.

Lots of Blooms

When hydrangeas are in bloom, we wonder why we don't have this plant in our own garden. But — isn't that true of any plant as it reaches its height of glory? We can't have everything. We'd end up with a hodge - podge garden.

Back to hydrangeas — seen most often here is the familiar Hortensia variety. This you can make pink by working sulphur in the soil, or blue by using aluminum sulphate. This should be done between October and January — so write a note to yourself to do that job in one of those months. Usually the process has to be repeated two years in succession to get the desired change.

The flowers of the oak leaf hydrangea are beautiful but lesser known. It is so named because its large lobed medium green leaves resemble an oak leaf in shape. It grows as high as six feet or more and bears long panacles of creamy white flowers which are slightly fragrant. The blooming period lasts three to four weeks beginning in May. As the flowers age they change color. Thus the many arguments about the color of the blooms of the oak leaf hydrangea. This plant grows wild in Louisiana, but is among the 20 scarce plants on the conservation list. This forbids such plants to be used at flower shows except in educational or conservation exhibits. There are several gardens growing this type but I just can't remember now. Nurserymen sell this oak leaf variety.

Most varieties of hydrangeas are propagated by cuttings. Some gardeners prefer to make these when they prune the shrubs, right after they finish blooming. Some wait until August to get the summer rains. While others prefer to wait until October when the wood is more mature.

From our garden, we give hydrangea plants (of the Hortensia variety) to our friends. The plants are large. Those limbs that touch the ground take root and by winter are ready to be cut from the parent plant and transplanted.

Hydrangeas like a rich, moist soil and partial shade. Sun fades the blossom.

Berries are dropping from hollys for the same reason that leaves are falling and plants are wilting. The sudden change in temperature was too fast for the plant to adjust. Plants put on more berries than usual this year, too, and I guess the shrubs just couldn't feed them all.

Vinegar comes in for many household chores. A tablespoon added to the soap and water in which blue jeans are washed will keep them soft, lint free and easier to iron.

Stop hunting a bib every time you put baby in the high chair. Attach a cup hook on the back of the high chair and keep a bib or two hanging on it to save yourself steps.

Would you like to end the confusion of what cord to pull when opening or closing venetian blinds or draw draperies? Get out your red nail polish and paint a ring around the knob at the end of one of the cords. Then you'll know at a glance which cord to pull. Of course there's still the problem of remembering whether the red painted cord handle opens or closes the blind, but at least half the problem is solved.

Even the smallest household accessories are getting a new look these days. For instance, the waste basket has come into its own. It has been streamlined with a flat back so it will fit snugly against a wall or side of a desk, and it is available in a wide variety of decorator colors.

Making of junior sized washcloths that a small child can handle comfortably may be just the simple trick that leads to more joyous use for face and hand washing. Children who are intrigued by miniature items scaled to their own dimensions, love to use things that are indubitably their "very own."

When your supper menu consists of leftovers, heat them in a skillet the easy way. Line the skillet with aluminum foil and make individual pockets with extra foil for the different foods.

A Thought

You weren't born under a lucky star? So what! You're living under 48 of them.

'Red Menace' Means Trouble For Landscape

Red "dust" that moves spells trouble for your landscaping. That is because the animate specks undoubtedly will be pesky red spiders, or spider mites.

These tiny arachnids — they are not insects, at all — thrive in hot weather. And when their population soars, these sap-suckers can seriously weaken host plants, says E. J. Ledger, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

They usually are so tiny they are difficult to detect on trees or other plantings. There is a simple test that uncovers them quickly. Vigorously shake twigs and leaves over a clean sheet of white paper. If plant debris, dirt and what appears to be grains of dust show on the white paper, study the dust for a moment. Grains that suddenly become mobile usually indicate an abundance of red spiders.

Until recent years, forceful hosing down of plants was about the only means of keeping the spider population somewhat in check. Today, however miticides like malathion can keep the back yard red menaces under effective control. Spiders usually are so numerous at summer's peak that one spraying rarely effects 100 per cent kill. Periodic spraying for the rest of the growing season is indicated for heavy infestations.

Men's Garden Clubs Grow In Numbers

Yessir! You can have the most beautiful flowers on your block. You can exercise your secret yearning to cover the south fence with passion flowers, and the women won't rib you either—pretty soon you'll have them outnumbered

You'll be one of ten thousand men, and they're 100 per cent male, that belong to the nearly 200 clubs making up the fast-growing Men's Garden Clubs of America. A few members are pros, but for the most part they are learners who garden because it's a satisfying, rewarding way of life.

What do they do besides talk? They beautify cities, arrange flowers in great, robust shows that would curl the hair of women, give flowers and vegetables to hospitals, organize school gardens, and have a heck of a lot of fun in the process.

One of their most popular pastimes is testing flowers — the newer the better. Last year, for instance, plant breeders sent seeds of experimental flowers to a hot-shot flower grower in each club. They planted and carefully observed eleven different samples. Four came out looking real good all over the country. Want to know what they were?

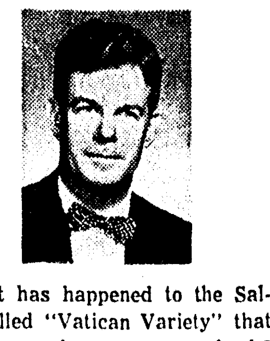
Three were marigolds. A short yellow one for edgings, dainty Marietta, bloomed all summer long — even through hot southern summers. A medium height marigold, Crackerjack, yielded a tremendous number of large, carnation-like blooms, on plants that were as uniform as a clipped hedge. Serenade, a short, double-flowered variety, bloomed with a soft golden color that agreed with all other colors in the garden. Lastly, an F-2 petunia mixture, colorama, pleased the testers with its array of bright colors and continuous bloom.

Now, maybe roses are your favorite flower — or iris — or day lilies. Whatever your hobby plant, you'll find others who share your interest. So reclaim your pet trowel and pruning shears from your wife, and join your local Men's Garden Club of America!

TROPICAL TOUCH — Mimosa trees, now blooming in the Monroe area and throughout the south add a touch of the tropics to local lawns and parks.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Time Now To Plant Seed For Mulleins



By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

What has happened to the Salvia called "Vatican Variety" that was so popular some years back? This handsome large-leaved plant might be grown for the fine fuzzy leaves alone, but the big fat bud —as big as a baby's fist—and the intriguing mother-of-pearl to lavender effect of the large heads of pinkish lavender bracts and light lavender flowers is something unique in a garden. Perhaps the fact that this salvia is a biennial is partly responsible for its disappearance from Southern gardens.

Like most biennials, salvia Vatican usually reseeds itself, and there are usually plenty of seedlings coming up everywhere near vacant spots in the shrub border the old plants. If you have some where you would like to have some bold foliage in summer, plant some seeds of Vatican right away.

Mulleins Adaptable

The mulleins are good for this sort of position, too. Dry places are to their liking, but be sure that they do not starve. We can tell how much they like potash and phosphorous from the way they respond to bone meal and come up in the woods around the ashes of wood fires. The most striking flowers are produced on the Greek mullein (Verbascum olympicum). Verbascum Thapsus, called Aaron's Rod and Hag Taper has straight, unbranching spikes of wooliness, with a flower only here and there at a time. For flower arrangements, this is a very striking plant.

The woolly mullein is the largest and showiest plant in the group. While its flowers are not as showy, singly, as those of the Greek kind, the plants of Woolly mullein produce enormous candelabra of yellow flowers that are real eye-catchers when planted at the back of borders or as occasional pieces near the front of borders.

Right now is a good time to sow the seeds of both salvia Vatican and of the mulleins. Look under Salvia sclarea for the Vatican variety. This is just a selected variety of the old plant called Clary that was grown in our grandmothers' gardens for brewing herb-wine. It has come down to us since before the time of Charlemagne as a plant grown in herb gardens.

While you are sowing these biennials, you may as well sow seeds of the different kinds of dusty miller for their grey foliage. Centaurea candidissima is the Latin name for one kind. The tall kind is Centaurea gymnocarpa. We have written about this one before in the column. It stays out all winter without freezing. Only the oldest parts of the plants froze in last winter's low temperatures. Under Cineraria maritima, you will find the other dusty millers. All of them come very easily from seed planted in summer. They will be big enough by August to transplant to their permanent place in the garden.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

June Flowers Are Featured

By MARY M. JARDINE

Flowers that bloom in June were featured by the talented arrangers of the Bayou DeSiard Garden Club Monroe in their display at the Garden Center this week. Cannas, zinnias and daylilies were the "stars" of this show.

Highlight of the show was Mrs. Marcus Mapp's eye - catching composition. Elise selected a high-heeled laced up ladies shoe (vintage of the nineties; of soft brown leather for her container. This was placed on a brown plaque with a pair of great-grandmothers' spectacles as an accessory. The design was diagonal in pattern and featured canna bud stalks for height, strengthened by green canna leaves. Brilliant yellow and orange canna blooms were placed in the focal area. Elise bought the antique shoes at an auction several years ago. When used as a container a water glass filled with vermiculite is used as a mechanic, and placed inside the shoe. This design, originally planned for the family room in the Mapp home, is always a conversation piece. The shoes double for costume parties and amateur plays.

Zinnias

Mrs. Dan Cox created a lovely design featuring zinnias. The round pottery bowl was a deep rose color. Pat made a modified crescent design with curly brown dock for the primary lines. The crescent was emphasized with zinnias in shades of pink. This was very lovely staged against a pink background.

Mrs. E. J. Foster featured cannas in her mass arrangement for a living room table. She selected a rectangular black compote of modern design for her arrangement. Background placements were tall stalks of canna buds with green canna foliage. Maroon foliage was placed low on either side of the design providing a color transition. Yellow and orange canna blooms were massed as a center of interest. Very colorful and staged against a chartreuse background. The flowers and foliage of canna are very popular with flower arrangers.

Here's how to condition them. Cut when the first two florets are open. Buds develop well after cutting. Submerge flower and stem until all parts are crisp. Then split stems and place in cold water to condition overnight. For the foliage, split stems and submerge in cold water for an hour or two, then keep stems in cold water until used.

Kwanso

Pat Cox also made a beautiful vertical design using the Kwanso double daylily. Her container and matching base were of natural wood. The container was cylindrical in shape. The tall background placements were of brown dock followed by daylily buds and slender aspidistra leaves. A rippled leaf of the aspidistra was brought over the side of the container, thus softening the severe vertical line. Bright orange double daylilies, skillfully placed, enhanced the vertical pattern.

Summer time is reading time, and we are happy to announce that we have added the following books to our Garden Center library for your reading pleasure:

Flowers Native to the Deep South, by Caroline Dormon, Flowers of the South, Native and Exotic by Green and Blomquist (this covers Flowers of Florida also), Conways Encyclopedia of Flower Arranging, Easy Ways to Good Flower Arranging by Mary B. 'Asta' Awards Presented To Top Writers

The Asta Awards are presented annually to outstanding writers in agricultural and horticultural journalism by the American Seed Trade Association.

True D. Morse, Under-Secretary of Agriculture, made the award presentations to the writers in recognition of their contributions to the advancement of agriculture and horticulture in 1957.

The judging board which determined this year's Asta winners consisted of leaders in the journalism and technical education departments of colleges and universities. Members of the judging board were: Professor Brison of Texas A. and M. College, Dr. L.R. Bryant of Washington State College, Professor Shideler of Oregon State College, Dr. Sabine of Michigan State University, Professor Kemmerer of the University of Illinois, Dr. Pollard of Utah State University, Dr. Copeland of the University of Illinois, Dr. Pollard of Utah State University, Dr. Copeland of the University of Oklahoma, Professor Marvin of Iowa State College, Professor Burchard of Texas A. and M. College, Dr. English of the University of Missouri, Dr. Pohlman of West Virginia University, Professor Lashbrook of Kansas State College, Dr. Kearl of the University of Wisconsin, Professor Holden of the University of Wisconsin, and Dr. Rogers of Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Schneider, Successful Farming Magazine's associate editor, is responsible for livestock, dairy, and poultry articles in the magazine.

THE HOME SHIFT

Pyracantha Is Versatile Plant

By MILDRED SWIFT

What can't you do with a pyracantha? I never cease to be amazed at the versatility of the plant. About ten years ago we were touring the Jack Rogers' garden that had been planned by one of the south's leading landscape architects. That was my first introduction to the many charming habits of the pyracantha.

In the Rogers' garden this plant has been trained as a vine. Back to the tour. Everybody was exclaiming over the beauty of the vine. Mary Lee Milam asked me the name, and I answered, "If my glasses didn't need changing, I'd say it was a pyracantha." We laughed about that, only to find out later it wasn't a vine, but a pyracantha.

At 612 Auburn two pyracanthas have been trained on "forms," I guess you'd call them. Certainly not trellises. You go by and see them. The plants have been pruned and trained and are so interesting.

Of course you're familiar with the ease of espaliering the pyracantha. You don't get as many blooms and berries when you make the plant do what nature didn't plan for it to do. You have to prune so severely you keep the flowers and fruit cut off.

Lots of Blooms

When hydrangeas are in bloom, we wonder why we don't have this plant in our own garden. But — isn't that true of any plant as it reaches its height of glory? We can't have everything. We'd end up with a hodge - podge garden.

Back to hydrangeas — seen most often here is the familiar Hortensia variety. This you can make pink by working sulphur in the soil, or blue by using aluminum sulphate. This should be done between October and January — so write a note to yourself to do that job in one of those months. Usually the process has to be repeated two years in succession to get the desired change.

The flowers of the oak leaf hydrangea are beautiful but lesser known. It is so named because its large lobed medium green leaves resemble an oak leaf in shape. It grows as high as six feet or more and bears long panacles of creamy white flowers which are slightly fragrant. The blooming period lasts three to four weeks beginning in May. As the flowers age they change color. Thus the many arguments about the color of the blooms of the oak leaf hydrangea. This plant grows wild in Louisiana, but is among the 20 scarce plants on the conservation list. This forbids such plants to be used at flower shows except in educational or conservation exhibits. There are several gardens growing this type but I just can't remember now. Nurserymen sell this oak leaf variety.

Most varieties of hydrangeas are propagated by cuttings. Some gardeners prefer to make these when they prune the shrubs, right after they finish blooming. Some wait until August to get the summer rains. While others prefer to wait until October when the wood is more mature.

From our garden, we give hydrangea plants (of the Hortensia variety) to our friends. The plants are large. Those limbs that touch the ground take root and by winter are ready to be cut from the parent plant and transplanted.

Hydrangeas like a rich, moist soil and partial shade. Sun fades the blossom.

Berries are dropping from hollys for the same reason that leaves are falling and plants are wilting. The sudden change in temperature was too fast for the plant to adjust. Plants put on more berries than usual this year, too, and I guess the shrubs just couldn't feed them all.

Vinegar comes in for many household chores. A tablespoon added to the soap and water in which blue jeans are washed will keep them soft, lint free and easier to iron.

Stop hunting a bib every time you put baby in the high chair. Attach a cup hook on the back of the high chair and keep a bib or two hanging on it to save yourself steps.

Would you like to end the confusion of what cord to pull when opening or closing venetian blinds or draw draperies? Get out your red nail polish and paint a ring around the knob at the end of one of the cords. Then you'll know at a glance which cord to pull. Of course there's still the problem of remembering whether the red painted cord handle opens or closes the blind, but at least half the problem is solved.

Even the smallest household accessories are getting a new look these days. For instance, the waste basket has come into its own. It has been streamlined with a flat back so it will fit snugly against a wall or side of a desk, and it is available in a wide variety of decorator colors.

Making of junior sized washcloths that a small child can handle comfortably may be just the simple trick that leads to more joyous use for face and hand washing. Children who are intrigued by miniature items scaled to their own dimensions, love to use things that are indubitably their "very own."

When your supper menu consists of leftovers, heat them in a skillet the easy way. Line the skillet with aluminum foil and make individual pockets with extra foil for the different foods.

Sale Of Alaska Destroyed Red Empire Dreams

By G. K. HODENFIELD
Associated Press
Newsfeatures Writer

It must have been the strangest real estate deal in history.

Here was a desolate parcel of land thousands of miles from nowhere. The man who owned it figured it was a liability and knew his days as owner were numbered.

So he asked 10 million dollars for it.

The man who wanted to buy it didn't have the slighest idea what he would do with it. He didn't know whether the people he worked for would approve. And he certainly didn't know where he was going to get the money.

So he offered five million.

At 4 a.m. one March day they compromised at just over seven million, sat down at a card table and signed the papers that transferred the vast territory of Alaska from Russia to the United States.

Now, some 91 years later, Alaska seems likely to become the 49th state. If she doesn't make it this year, her backers are confident she will become a full-fledged member of the Union next year.

Dismay in the Kremlin

It must make the gentlemen in the Kremlin very unhappy.

For $7,200,000 the United States purchased 375,000,000 acres of land — at a price of less than two cents an acre. It acquired billions of feet of timber; streams choked with fish; fabulously rich veins of gold copper, silver and lead; thousands upon thousands of fur bearing animals.

It was more than just a physical acquisition of land. It was an assumption of power that consolidated the dominant U. S. position on the Pacific slope. And it was a surrender of power that saw Russia abandon her strategic foothold in America and — for years to come — isolate herself from the Western world.

William H. Seward, secretary of state who negotiated the deal for the United States, had no idea what a buy he had made. Baron Edward de Stoeckl, Russian minister in Washington, figured he had come out of the deal lucky.

Seward and de Stoeckl signed their agreement in Washington on March 31, 1867. Half a year later, on Oct. 18, a dream of empire died in the misty rain that swept across Sitka, Alaska.

Final Frustration

Capt. Alexei Pestchourov, commissioner of the Czar, barked an order. The double eagle emblem of Imperial Russia moved slowly down the flagpole, then caught in the halyards. A Russian ensign scrambled up the pole, tore the flag loose and hurled it down on the upturned faces of the Czar's soldiers.

Thus — on this final note of frustration — ended the Russian occupation of North America.

Capt. Pestchourov saluted his American counterpart and said, "By authority from His Majesty, Emperor of all the Russians, I transfer to the United States the territory of Alaska."

There were ghosts of Russia's past in Sitka that day:

The ghost of Nikolai Rezanov, who schemed and dreamed of a Russian city on San Francisco Bay.

Of Alexander Baranov, who planned a series of Russian trading posts down the Pacific coast, supplied from Russian plantations in the Hawaiian Islands.

Of Baranov's faithful lieutenant, Ivan Kuskov, who built Ft. Rossiya (now Ft. Ross) and established a Russian colony just 50 miles north of San Francisco.

Builders Without Tools

These men were empire builders denied their tools, architects of expansion whose plans died on the drawing board. Had their visions and energies been shared in the courts of the czars in St. Petersburg, Alaska might yet belong to Russia; Northern California, Oregon and Washington might today be under the hammer and sickle.

It is a paradoxical picture that history paints of Russia's brave drive from the Volga to the Yukon, and her subsequent timid withdrawal into her massive Siberian shell.

Russia's pioneers were in Alaska more than 30 years before the 13 American colonies rebelled against the rule of England's King George III. They were hunting sea otters off the California coast when no white man had ventured west of the Missouri River. They were in the Hawaiian Islands while the United States was still licking the wounds of the War of 1812.

There was on one to say them nay in Alaska, save the primitive natives who were soon subdued.

Thre was no one to say them nay in California, save the unimaginative and lightly armed Spaniards who had no idea of the value of the land they occupied.

Yet the Russians merely marked time while Americans pushed relentlessly westward and possessed California at almost the very hour in history it revealed wealth that staggered the imagination.

They marked time in Alaska until it became apparent that St. Petersburg could no longer maintain her meager colonies and that it would be better to sell out than be forced out.

The last Russians left Ft. Rossiya Dec. 30, 1841. In another 25 years the Russian crown recognized "the manifest destiny of America" and opened negotiations to sell Alaska to the United States.

Russia began its move to the Pacific about 1576 — a half century before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock. In 66 years, the twinkling of an eye as history measures time, they pushed eastward nearly 6,000 miles to the Sea of Okhotsk, which pounds the shores of Japan and the Kurile Islands.

By comparison, it took the Americans nearly two centuries to span about half that distance, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Bering Charts Coast

In 1728 Vitus Bering, Danish-born sea captain in the Russian navy, charted the northern coast of Siberia, passed through the straits that now bear his name, and established that Asia and America were two separate continents.

In 1784, eight years after the American colonies declared their independence, Gregor Shelikov and his wife Natalya dropped anchor in Three Saints' Bay on Kodiak Island and established the first Russian colony in North America.

Fifteen years later Grand Duke Paul granted a royal charter to the Russian-American Co. giving it title to Alaska and the Aleutians. The company was also given full rights to fortify towns, use ships, declare war, hold commercial intercourse, and make treaties at its own discretion.

Shelikov, whose dream it was to establish a sprawling Russian dominion in the New World, had died in the meantime. Alexander Andreevich Baranov was named head of the company.

By the time the charter was granted, Baranov had already strengthened the company's position, launched the first ship ever built in Alaska and made an uneasy peace with the natives.

Baranov organized a hunting fleet of 1,000 Aleuts that fanned out over the Pacific and returned with rich cargoes of pelts. When Yankee traders from New England sailed around the horn and into the northwest, Baranov dealt himself into their profitable trade with the Indians.

Baranov decided he needed outposts in California to supply food, reap the rich fur harvest, and serve as bases for further expansion.

In April, 1806, Nikolai Rezanov sailed into San Francisco Bay with a cargo of tools fabrics and leather for barter with the Spanish.

Despite the strict law of Madrid — no colonial trading with foreigners — he soon had a full cargo of grains, meats and vegetables.

He had more than that. He had a vision of a great Russian city where the Spaniards had only a lightly defended fort and mission.

This was truly the promised land beyond the seas for Russia. The rich lands lay basking in the sun, begging for exploitation. A handful of men in tattered uniforms wouldn't stand much chance against the soldiers and sailors of the Czar.

But it was soon apparent that force might not be necessary.

Here was a chance for Rezanov to further Russia's expansion by peaceful means, a method that offered him greater personal prestige than would an armed conquest by the Czar's admirals and generals.

Conflicting Religions

Rezanov asked de Arguello for his daughter's hand. The commandant was flattered, but he was hesitant, too. Rezanov belonged to the Greek Orthodox church. There was no chance he would embrace the faith of Rome. To do so would cost him his career, possibly his life.

Finally, a compromise was reached:

Rezanov would take his shipload of supplies back to Sitka. Then he would go to St. Petersburg and lay before the Czar a plan for a treaty with Spain. After that he would go to Rome to seek the Pope's consent to the marriage.

Had it worked out that way, the course of California (and world) history might have been changed. The Russians would have had a solid foundation in California, an excellent base for further expansion — either by negotiation or armed might.

But, in crossing Siberia in the dead of winter, Rezanov fell from his horse into an icy stream. Next day he was feverish, but insisted on pushing forward. Several weeks later, still weak and ill, he fell from his horse again. This time a hoof struck him on the head. In a few days he was dead.

Even before the news of Rezanov's death drifted back to Alaska, Baranov had another plan in motion to colonize the rich lands to the south.

In 1808 he sent two ships to survey the coast from Washington to California. One commanded by Ivan Kuskov, sailed into Bodega Bay, about 40 miles north of San Francisco. He liked what he saw— no Europeans, and land especially suitable for agriculture.

Two years later Kuskov again dropped anchor in Bodega Bay. This time he had 95 Russian colonists, a fleet of 40 skin boats manned by 80 Aleuts, and all the equipment and tools necessary to found a permanent colony.

A stockade 250 by 300 feet was built. Cannon captured in Napolean's march on Moscow were mounted in blockhouses. Crops were planted and cattle put out to pasture. Grape vines were brought from Peru, peach trees from Chile.

Trade flourished with the Indians and Spaniards. Cargoes of foodstuffs were shipped north to the Russian settlements in Alaska.

The colony prospered, but it didn't last.

Why? Because the Russians hesitated, and were lost. Peering over their shoulders they saw hordes of Americans pressing on them from three sides. The Russians weren't prepared to negotiate for what they had, nor to fight for more.

They saw the handwriting on the wall in the Monroe Doctrine of 1823: ". . . The American continents are no longer subject to any European colonial establishments."

They tried to sell the colony to the British, but Britain had no desire to settle in the path of America's westward march.

Finally, in 1841, the Russians sold Ft. Rossiya to a Swissborn pioneer, John A. Sutter. He wanted it principally for those brass Napoleonic cannon.

Gold Came Too Late

It was typical Russian luck that a few years later gold was discovered in the millrace of another Sutter possession not far from the fort.

The Russian attempt to colonize Hawaii ran the same course. They established a plantation in the islands, but let themselves be kicked out when the Czar refused to support them against a militarily weak Hawaiian king.

In 1867 the Czar's minister of finance in St. Petersburg wrote to Baron de Stoeckl:

" . . . (Russia's) business in the future is to control, or at least hold her own in, the teeming markets of Japan and China, and not to contend with the British and Yankees for a fur trade that is vanishing or for gold mines that will soon be worked out . . . tell (Secretary of State) Seward that the Russian crown recognizes the manifest destiny of the United States . . ."

In the early morning hours of March 31, 1867, Seward was playing whist with some friends in his office when he heard that the baron had received final approval of the negotiations from St. Petersburg.

He invited the baron over, swept the cards from the table, and one of history's greatest bargains went into the books.

After 100 Years Zimbabwe Start Still A Riddle

By LYNN HEINZERLING

FORT VICTORIA, Southern Rhodesia, (AP)—The archaeologists are brooding again about the Zimbabwe ruins.

Despite a new round of digging, sifting and scholarly contemplation, they are still unable to explain the baffling mystery of the ancient and still impressive granite structures not far from this onetime British fort.

The ruins were discovered nearly a century ago and archaeologists have been at work on them for about 50 years. But Zimbabwe still clings to its secrets.

Who built this esoteric temple and surrounded it with an uncemeted granite wall 15 feet thick at the base? Why and when was it built? And how did the original inhabitants slip out of the stream of history, leaving not even a skeleton behind?

No Answers

The two scientists intend to spend the next year studying the measurements, examining the bits of tools and pottery found, and "tying everything together." But they admit already they haven't solved the riddle. When first discovered in 1868, the Zimbabwe ruins were covered by a tangle of vegetation. Several huge trees still grow within the enclosure, 350 feet across at its widest. The highest part of the wall rises up 32 feet.

Archaeologists estimate that more than 80,000 tons of granite slabs were used by the builders.

The most impressive sight is the Conical Tower. Beautifully fashioned from small granite slabs, it is apparently solid throughout. It is 34 feet high and has a circumference of 58 feet at the base.

Since the tower projects above the surrounding wall, some think it was a lookout post. Others regard it as a phallic symbol used perhaps in some of the weird fertility rites once practiced here.

Dr. Karl Mauch, German geologist and explorer, visited the site in 1872. He decided the conical tower must certainly be the local treasury and burrowed into the base. He found nothing.

Gold undoubtedly played an important part in the establishment of the mysterious settlement. This part of Rhodesia is dotted with old gold mines, some of which are still being operated. The nearest to Zimbabwe is about 20 miles away.

In fact, Zimbabwe is mentioned in some writings as the possible Ophir, of the Old Testament, celebrated for its fine gold. One cake of gold was found at Zimbabwe in 1902.

It is considered likely that Zimbabwe was a center for gold smelting at some point in its history since one ingot mold was found in the ruins. It was reported to be similar to ingots used by the Phoenicians in their trading days. Many gold trinkets also have been recovered in the earlier digging at Zimbabwe.

Other items unearthed included Arab glass from the 13th Century, Persian fabrics from the 13th Century and Chinese objects from about the same period.

The oldest identifiable objects found here included beads, iron, copper and bronze articles and pottery from the 10th to 13th centuries. Beads, of course, were used for barter throughout Africa and beads recovered include Indian, Persian, Arabian, Egyptian and European types. One gold bead was found under the conical tower.

Other objects found in the ruins include coiled wire armlets still worn by native women, cattle gongs, axe heads and spear and arrow heads.

One of the most enlightening discoveries was made by S. D. Sandes, curator at the ruins for the past 10 years. Sandes found two pieces of wood in one of the temple walls. The wood obviously had been employed to carry the weight of the wall over a drain in the foundation. No other wood has been found in the structure.

The wood was subjected to radio carbon tests and it was found the tree from which it had been cut died about 1,200 or 1,300 years ago.

This evidence has been accepted by some as establishing the date of construction at about 700 A.D. Others still insist that Zimbabwe dates back to pre-Biblical times.

JAZZ PIANIST

Erroll Garner Rides Phone Book To Concert Hall Fame

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfelatures

For a man who can't read—and can scarcely remember—a note of music, jazz great Erroll Garner keeps popping up in the most unlikely places.

Taken out of the smoky night clubs and put on the concert trail four years ago, Erroll proceeded to amaze and enthrall classical audiences with his wide key ranges, intricate stylings and deft improvisations.

Perched atop a copy of the Manhattan telephone book a pillow "just don't ride with me"), he tamed the skeptical critics the same way he used to calm belligerent drunks in the jazz joints, by engulfing them with wave after wave of soothing, wonderfully inventive melodies.

Garner won immediate acceptance as a jazz pianist of tremendous originality, an impromptu composer and arranger who never knows one minute what he will play the next, and tomorrow can scarcely remember what he played yesterday. Sellout concerts in Europe and the United States brought him international acclaim and a flock of awards, including the coveted Grand Prix du Disque of the French Academy of Arts. Sales of "Concert by the Sea," "Other Voices" and a half dozen other albums set new records for Columbia, and when stereo came along, he quickly established himself as the best selling artist both on tape and disc.

This month Garner popped up in another unlikely spot: in the concert cap of impresario Sol Hurok, alongside such classical artists as Artur Rubenstein, Gregor Piategorsky, Isaac Stern and the Moiseyev Dancers. As the first jazz artist ever signed by Hurok, the Casey Stengel of the long hairs, Garner will embark on a series of spring and fall concert tours, accompanied by a bassist and a drummer — and his Manhattan phone book.

Erroll first began crashing musical gates back in his native Pittsburgh when he got into football games free by pumping a tuba in the high school band. He oompah-ed in all the right places and never ran afoul of the bandmaster until a dent appeared one day in the big horn.

"I had to bring a dollar a week to pay for the tuba," Erroll recalls, "but he never did notice the dent in my musical education."

Erroll's mother tried to correct this dent by enrolling him for piano lessons, but his faultless ear for melody soon played havoc with the lesson book. "I was all the way up to lesson 12 when the teacher wanted me to go back to four. I couldn't remember how it went so I just blowed it and gave up the lessons," said Erroll.

He got his professional start playing piano on a children's show on a Pittsburgh radio station, soon graduated to "rent parties" and playing in neighborhood clubs with a small combo. Now 35, Garner makes $100,000 a year and is constantly developing the unique creative talent that he regards as gift. "The good Lord gave it to me and I'm trying to develop it."

so this month, in another happy wedding of jazz and the classics, Antal Dorati conducts the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in a brilliant performance of George Gershwin's "An American in Paris." The other side of this technically superb Mercury album features a symphonic treatment of "Porgy and Bess," arranged by Robert Russell Bennett, who does most of the orchestrations for Rodgers and Hammerstein.

London Records offer "Music for Hand Jiving," the English teen - age craze that is rapidly sweeping this country. Tommy Steele, The Four Jacks and a half dozen others help introduce this new dance form, which consists of using hands only to carry out a dance beat.

Husky voiced Jimmy Witherspoon with Jimmy McShann's orchestra sings jazz on a blue note in "Goin' to Kansas City Blues," a first rate RCA Victor album.

COUNTDOWN

Tense Minutes Are Described

By JIM ENGLAND
Managing Editor
Ogden Standard-Examiner

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —"T minus 600 minutes and counting," announces the test conductor.

And so begins the exhaustive, delicate countdown before the firing of an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile. Before the technicians are 80 typewritten pages listing some 36,000 parts that must function properly before the test missile blasts off.

When the big "beasts," as they're nicknamed here, become operational, warmup and launching procedure will be measured in minutes rather than hours. At present, though, the countdown lasts from seven to 12 hours, depending on the number of "holds."

The minute-by-minutes checks are necessary because research data are the primate purpose of the test firings. Scores of electrical circuits, instruments, valves, hydraulic systems, tanks, lines and hoses are checked one by one. Then attention turns to sub-systems and entire systems.

The testers don't get near the missile during the countdown. They do their work some 750 feet from the launching pad—in a tortois-shell-shaped concrete blockhouse jammed with testing equipment. They view the giant missile on four television receivers and through a like number of periscopes extending through the blockhouse roof.

The director of the four Atlas launching centers at this Air Force missile test center is F. M. MacNabb, a leathery-faced soft-talking Scot.

Before the Atlas is launched, he explains, it has been static test fired at full power on the pad. Then a guard is placed over it until a time is cleared for takeoff.

When the test conductor starts a countdown, he reads off each item separately. For example, he might ask for fueling valve check, and won't proceed to the next item until he receives verification that the valve can be activated remotely from the inside of the blockhouse and lights on the control panel show it is operational.

As you watch the procedure, he breaks in occasionally after a sequence to drone:

"T minus 380 minutes and counting."

Everything is unusually silent as the minutes tick by. You watch the sweep of a second hand on a specially constructed clock mounted just under the four TV receivers. The only real sound is the voice of the test conductor and responses from the various panel operators.

With an hour to go, the giant red and white 12-story service tower is rolled back and the area around the launching pad is cleared of all personnel. A red light goes on, the three blasts from an air horn is the final warning to clear the area. The fueling starts.

At about T minus 40 minutes the liquid oxygen and hydrocarbon go into the missile's cavernous tanks. A white plume rises from high on the "beast" indicating to observers that vent vales are open.

The fueling still continues at T minus 15 minutes by remote control. Five minutes later the last report is received on weather and from the range safety officer.

Then the tension increases. Not a head turns from the chart of instruments each man is watching.

At T minus ½ minutes a flow of water starts over a huge cornucopia-shaped flame deflector to preserve it from the white-hot blasts of the rocket engines. The fuel level is checked again—carefully. Through the TV cameras, now at closeup, you can see the missile sweat.

At T minus 2 minutes, electrical circuits in the missile are switched from the pad system to its own power sources. Then the test operator, a lanky curly-haired fellow, barks out:

"Command on internal." This means that the missile's control systems have been transferred.

"Roger," a young panel operator responds.

The same quick questions and responses go through checks of telemetry, range safety, range ready and at T minus 40 seconds the level of liquid oxygen is checked again and adjusted if necessary.

The test conductor glances at the panel in front of him—a row of eight orange lights on each side of three timers glows brilliantly. Everything checks out.

At T minus 27 seconds he pushes a black button, guarded on two sides by slight projections, and the last human act necessary for launching the atlas is complete.

For the next 37 seconds (yes, it extends after zero) an automatic sequencer, described by MacNabb as a ladder system, does all the work. Only if something goes wrong will the test conductor press a large red knob that cuts off everything.

At 15 seconds the water flow over the flame bucket is shooting out at the other set of cameras grinding. Each such piece of instrumentation is checked to make sure it is operating.

With the count of four the engines start. . .

At one, the last set of cameras, those that track the missile, are started.

Then . . . zero.

The periscope observers sing out almost in unison: 'Mainstage."

On the TV cameras you see the rocket engines belching out great streams of flame. You expect a thunderclap explosion, but in the unreal atmosphere of the giant blockhouse, all is fairly quiet.

The missile is held on the pad for 10 seconds to give the test conductor time to make sure everything is operating and that the Atlas is developing full power.

From the periscope observers: "First motion."

The test conductor jumps up from his desk almost in the center of the room to get a better view as the ponderous missile rises slowly. Its two tails of flame and smoke dance down onto the yellow steel of the pad.

To the north, a giant cloud of white smoke boils up. This is steam created from the contact of cooling water and the white-hot blast.

The flame thrusts downward from two round nozzles, creating two fiery legs about as long as the missile itself.

Newporrt News, Va. Gets Room To Grow

By HARRY NASH

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — With the slashing of ceremonial ribbons July 1, this bustling seaport will become Virginia's largest city in area and its third highest in population.

The ribbon - cutting will symbolize the consolidation of gusy, congested Newport News (50,000 residents in four square miles) and sprawling Warwick (65,000 in 70 square miles).

Newport News and Warwick voters approved the merger in an election last year. The new city will be called Newport News.

The consolidation has attracted the interest of a number of other cities beset by problems stemming from rapid growth of urban areas. Seldom in modern American history have two cities of such size voted to merge under one government.

Noted for its giant shipbuilding plant and a tremendous export of coal, Newport News has since 1952 been hemmed and Hampton — the latter a neighbor which not long ago enlarged its share of Virginia's historic Lower Peninsula by merging with Elizabeth City County and the town of Phoebus.

"We will try to make the consolidated city so desirable that other municipalities on the peninsula will be desirous of overall consolidation, which would provide political and economic advantages that would make the area second to none in Virginia," says O. J. Brittingham, probable mayor the new city.

"With the great industries already located on the peninsula, the undeveloped potential for future industrial growth gives us a challenging opportunity."

City manager of the new municipality will be J. C. Biggins, who has held that post in Newport News for 33 years.

Though it dates from 1621, Newport News barely survived as a fishing village until selected in 1882 as the coastal terminus of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway. Four years later the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. began operating.

One of the largest private shipyards in the United States, it has built 450 vessels — including the aircraft carriers Forrestal and Ranger and the S. S. United States, fastest passenger liner afloat.

As In Life, So In Death Inseparable

Her only toy was a cigarette lighter that a week ago ignited some scrap paper and left her critically burned.

Her only thoughts were of Trixy.

Eller Tuten, a 9-year-old cerebral palsy victim, and Trixy were inseparable in life.

Death claimed both within hours.

"The dog was her only companion," said Eller's uncle, William Tuten. "They were always together." He gave Eller the pup.

Eller's parents were divorced. Since birth she had lived with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Glover Mathis.

"Both my wife and I went to see her regularly," the father said. "She was in good hands. It was just a terrible accident."

He said that Eller went to school like healthy children.

"She only had an occasional attack, but no paralysis."

A week ago, the grandparents returned home and found the child on her hands and knees in the living room, her dress blazing. She was able to tell them she had set fire to some paper with the lighter.

Doctors said her body was 70 per cent covered with burns. While she was hospitalized some neighbors took in Trixy.

At 12:15 a.m. Friday, Eller died. Her last words were a call for Trixy.

Eight hours later, Trixy dashed under a car's wheels.

Her uncle William buried Trixy behind the grandparents' home. A small monument, he said, is planned.

School Is All Work, No Play

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Six days a week, a small group U. S. diplomats file into an obscure-looking house here for instruction so tough and concentrated that several have nearly had nervous breakdowns.

They are learning German.

The school is one of three which the U. S. State Department has recently established to give special, four-month language courses to American diplomats. The other schools are in Mexico City, where Spanish is taught, and Nice, France, where the subject is French.

The Nice school, partly because it is located in a villa on the romantic Riviera, has come under congressional criticism, something which the Frankfurt school has escaped.

The school here was set up in September of last year. It is headed by Dr. Fritz Frauchiger, 54, a Swiss-born American citizen.

"There must be something wrong with the way languages are taught in American schools," Frauchiger said in an interview. "We get students here who have had several years of language study at a university, but they can't even carry on simple conversations.

"I sometimes think American teaching methods are too 'liberal.' I know, because I've taught at American universities myself.

"I switched to government service in 1949 because here you can get more rewarding results. At the universities, your classes are too big and only about one out of ten students is interested in learning anyway. About all you can teach most of them is a bit of decoding and recoding. Here it's different.

"Our students come from a selected group of foreign service officers who need the language and want to learn it. They get 39 hours of instruction per week and we give them enough homework to keep them busy several hours every night. The course is so tough that several have nearly had nervous breakdowns. One man had to quit because the work was affecting his heart."

The present class has 14 members. Seven part-time instructors, all of them Germans, drill the students. When the students aren't being drilled, they are studying grammar books, German newspapers, listening to German recordings, watching German movies, or being tested by Frauchiger. English is used only for those students who are in beginning classes. Advanced students are required to speak German at all times inside the school.

Negro Gunman Robs Station

HOUMA, La. (AP) — A Negro gunman robbed a service station here of $100 in cash early today and fled on foot.

The two attendants, Percy Wyble and Leroy Bugquet, told police the bandit may have had a car parked nearby because they had seen an automobile drive past several times just before the holdup.

They said the man was about 5 feet 6 inches and weighed approximately 180 pounds. He was wearing a yellow short sleeve shirt, blue jeans and a cap.

Sale Of Alaska Destroyed Red Empire Dreams

By G. K. HODENFIELD

It must have been the strangest real estate deal in history.

Here was a desolate parcel of land thousands of miles from nowhere. The man who owned it figured it was a liability and knew his days as owner were numbered.

So he asked 10 million dollars for it.

The man who wanted to buy it didn't have the slighest idea what he would do with it. He didn't know whether the people he worked for would approve. And he certainly didn't know where he was going to get the money.

So he offered five million.

At 4 a.m. one March day they compromised at just over seven million, sat down at a card table and signed the papers that transferred the vast territory of Alaska from Russia to the United States.

Now, some 91 years later, Alaska seems likely to become the 49th state. If she doesn't make it this year, her backers are confident she will become a full-fledged member of the Union next year.

Dismay in the Kremlin

It must make the gentlemen in the Kremlin very unhappy.

For $7,200,000 the United States purchased 375,000,000 acres of land — at a price of less than two cents an acre. It acquired billions of feet of timber; streams choked with fish; fabulously rich veins of gold copper, silver and lead; thousands upon thousands of fur bearing animals.

It was more than just a physical acquisition of land. It was an assumption of power that consolidated the dominant U. S. position on the Pacific slope. And it was a surrender of power that saw Russia abandon her strategic foothold in America and — for years to come — isolate herself from the Western world.

William H. Seward, secretary of state who negotiated the deal for the United States, had no idea what a buy he had made. Baron Edward de Stoeckl, Russian minister in Washington, figured he had come out of the deal lucky.

Seward and de Stoeckl signed their agreement in Washington on March 31, 1867. Half a year later, on Oct. 18, a dream of empire died in the misty rain that swept across Sitka, Alaska.

Final Frustration

Capt. Alexei Pestchourov, commissioner of the Czar, barked an order. The double eagle emblem of Imperial Russia moved slowly down the flagpole, then caught in the halyards. A Russian ensign scrambled up the pole, tore the flag loose and hurled it down on the upturned faces of the Czar's soldiers.

Thus — on this final note of frustration — ended the Russian occupation of North America.

Capt. Pestchourov saluted his American counterpart and said, "By authority from His Majesty, Emperor of all the Russians, I transfer to the United States the territory of Alaska."

There were ghosts of Russia's past in Sitka that day:

The ghost of Nikolai Rezanov, who schemed and dreamed of a Russian city on San Francisco Bay.

Of Alexander Baranov, who planned a series of Russian trading posts down the Pacific coast, supplied from Russian plantations in the Hawaiian Islands.

Of Baranov's faithful lieutenant, Ivan Kuskov, who built Ft. Rossiya (now Ft. Ross) and established a Russian colony just 50 miles north of San Francisco.

Builders Without Tools

These men were empire builders denied their tools, architects of expansion whose plans died on the drawing board. Had their visions and energies been shared in the courts of the czars in St. Petersburg, Alaska might yet belong to Russia; Northern California, Oregon and Washington might today be under the hammer and sickle.

It is a paradoxical picture that history paints of Russia's brave drive from the Volga to the Yukon, and her subsequent timid withdrawal into her massive Siberian shell.

Russia's pioneers were in Alaska more than 30 years before the 13 American colonies rebelled against the rule of England's King George III. They were hunting sea otters off the California coast when no white man had ventured west of the Missouri River. They were in the Hawaiian Islands while the United States was still licking the wounds of the War of 1812.

There was on one to say them nay in Alaska, save the primitive natives who were soon subdued.

Thre was no one to say them nay in California, save the unimaginative and lightly armed Spaniards who had no idea of the value of the land they occupied.

Yet the Russians merely marked time while Americans pushed relentlessly westward and possessed California at almost the very hour in history it revealed wealth that staggered the imagination.

They marked time in Alaska until it became apparent that St. Petersburg could no longer maintain her meager colonies and that it would be better to sell out than be forced out.

The last Russians left Ft. Rossiya Dec. 30, 1841. In another 25 years the Russian crown recognized "the manifest destiny of America" and opened negotiations to sell Alaska to the United States.

Russia began its move to the Pacific about 1576 — a half century before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock. In 66 years, the twinkling of an eye as history measures time, they pushed eastward nearly 6,000 miles to the Sea of Okhotsk, which pounds the shores of Japan and the Kurile Islands.

By comparison, it took the Americans nearly two centuries to span about half that distance, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Bering Charts Coast

In 1728 Vitus Bering, Danish-born sea captain in the Russian navy, charted the northern coast of Siberia, passed through the straits that now bear his name, and established that Asia and America were two separate continents.

In 1784, eight years after the American colonies declared their independence, Gregor Shelikov and his wife Natalya dropped anchor in Three Saints' Bay on Kodiak Island and established the first Russian colony in North America.

Fifteen years later Grand Duke Paul granted a royal charter to the Russian-American Co. giving it title to Alaska and the Aleutians. The company was also given full rights to fortify towns, use ships, declare war, hold commercial intercourse, and make treaties at its own discretion.

Shelikov, whose dream it was to establish a sprawling Russian dominion in the New World, had died in the meantime. Alexander Andreevich Baranov was named head of the company.

By the time the charter was granted, Baranov had already strengthened the company's position, launched the first ship ever built in Alaska and made an uneasy peace with the natives.

Baranov organized a hunting fleet of 1,000 Aleuts that fanned out over the Pacific and returned with rich cargoes of pelts. When Yankee traders from New England sailed around the horn and into the northwest, Baranov dealt himself into their profitable trade with the Indians.

Baranov decided he needed outposts in California to supply food, reap the rich fur harvest, and serve as bases for further expansion.

In April, 1806, Nikolai Rezanov sailed into San Francisco Bay with a cargo of tools fabrics and leather for barter with the Spanish.

Despite the strict law of Madrid — no colonial trading with foreigners — he soon had a full cargo of grains, meats and vegetables.

He had more than that. He had a vision of a great Russian city where the Spaniards had only a lightly defended fort and mission.

This was truly the promised land beyond the seas for Russia. The rich lands lay basking in the sun, begging for exploitation. A handful of men in tattered uniforms wouldn't stand much chance against the soldiers and sailors of the Czar.

But it was soon apparent that force might not be necessary.

Here was a chance for Rezanov to further Russia's expansion by peaceful means, a method that offered him greater personal prestige than would an armed conquest by the Czar's admirals and generals.

Conflicting Religions

Rezanov asked de Arguello for his daughter's hand. The commandant was flattered, but he was hesitant, too. Rezanov belonged to the Greek Orthodox church. There was no chance he would embrace the faith of Rome. To do so would cost him his career, possibly his life.

Finally, a compromise was reached:

Rezanov would take his shipload of supplies back to Sitka. Then he would go to St. Petersburg and lay before the Czar a plan for a treaty with Spain. After that he would go to Rome to seek the Pope's consent to the marriage.

Had it worked out that way, the course of California (and world) history might have been changed. The Russians would have had a solid foundation in California, an excellent base for further expansion — either by negotiation or armed might.

But, in crossing Siberia in the dead of winter, Rezanov fell from his horse into an icy stream. Next day he was feverish, but insisted on pushing forward. Several weeks later, still weak and ill, he fell from his horse again. This time a hoof struck him on the head. In a few days he was dead.

Even before the news of Rezanov's death drifted back to Alaska, Baranov had another plan in motion to colonize the rich lands to the south.

In 1808 he sent two ships to survey the coast from Washington to California. One commanded by Ivan Kuskov, sailed into Bodega Bay, about 40 miles north of San Francisco. He liked what he saw—no Europeans, and land especially suitable for agriculture.

Two years later Kuskov again dropped anchor in Bodega Bay. This time he had 95 Russian colonists, a fleet of 40 skin boats manned by 80 Aleuts, and all the equipment and tools necessary to found a permanent colony.

A stockade 250 by 300 feet was built. Cannon captured in Napolean's march on Moscow were mounted in blockhouses. Crops were planted and cattle put out to pasture. Grape vines were brought from Peru, peach trees from Chile.

Trade flourished with the Indians and Spaniards. Cargoes of foodstuffs were shipped north to the Russian settlements in Alaska.

The colony prospered, but it didn't last.

Why? Because the Russians hesitated, and were lost. Peering over their shoulders they saw hordes of Americans pressing on them from three sides. The Russians weren't prepared to negotiate for what they had, nor to fight for more.

They saw the handwriting on the wall in the Monroe Doctrine of 1823: "... The American continents are no longer subject to any European colonial establishments."

They tried to sell the colony to the British, but Britain had no desire to settle in the path of America's westward march.

Finally, in 1841, the Russians sold Ft. Rossiya to a Swissborn pioneer, John A. Sutter. He wanted it principally for those brass Napoleonic cannon.

Gold Came Too Late

It was typical Russian luck that a few years later gold was discovered in the millrace of another Sutter possession not far from the fort.

The Russian attempt to colonize Hawaii ran the same course. They established a plantation in the islands, but let themselves be kicked out when the Czar refused to support them against a militarily weak Hawaiian king.

In 1867 the Czar's minister of finance in St. Petersburg wrote to Baron de Stoeckl:

"... (Russia's) business in the future is to control, or at least hold her own in, the teeming markets of Japan and China, and not to contend with the British and Yankees for a fur trade that is vanishing or for gold mines that will soon be worked out ... tell (Secretary of State) Seward that the Russian crown recognizes the manifest destiny of the United States ..."

In the early morning hours of March 31, 1867, Seward was playing whist with some friends in his office when he heard that the baron had received final approval of the negotiations from St. Petersburg.

He invited the baron over, swept the cards from the table, and one of history's greatest bargains went into the books.

After 100 Years Zimbabwe Start Still A Riddle

By LYNN HEINZERLING

FORT VICTORIA, Southern Rhodesia, (AP)—The archaeologists are brooding again about the Zimbabwe ruins.

Despite a new round of digging, sifting and scholarly contemplation, they are still unable to explain the baffling mystery of the ancient and still impressive granite structures not far from this one-time British fort.

The ruins were discovered nearly a century ago and archaeologists have been at work on them for about 50 years. But Zimbabwe still clings to its secrets.

Who built this esoteric temple and surrounded it with an uncemeted granite wall 15 feet thick at the base? Why and when was it built? And how did the original inhabitants slip out of the stream of history, leaving not even a skeleton behind?

No Answers

The two scientists intend to spend the next year studying the measurements, examining the bits of tools and pottery found, and "tying everything together." But they admit already they haven't solved the riddle. When first discovered in 1868, the Zimbabwe ruins were covered by a tangle of vegetation. Several huge trees still grow within the enclosure, 350 feet across at its widest. The highest part of the wall rises up 32 feet.

Archaeologists estimate that more than 80,000 tons of granite slabs were used by the builders.

The most impressive sight is the Conical Tower. Beautifully fashioned from small granite slabs, it is apparently solid throughout. It is 34 feet high and has a circumference of 58 feet at the base.

Since the tower projects above the surrounding wall, some think it was a lookout post. Others regard it as a phallic symbol used perhaps in some of the weird fertility rites once practiced here.

Dr. Karl Mauch, German geologist and explorer, visited the site in 1872. He decided the conical tower must certainly be the local treasury and burrowed into the base. He found nothing.

Gold undoubtedly played an important part in the establishment of the mysterious settlement. This part of Rhodesia is dotted with old gold mines, some of which are still being operated. The nearest to Zimbabwe is about 20 miles away.

In fact, Zimbabwe is mentioned in some writings as the possible Ophir, of the Old Testament, celebrated for its fine gold. One cake of gold was found at Zimbabwe in 1902.

It is considered likely that Zimbabwe was a center for gold smelting at some point in its history since one ingot mold was found in the ruins. It was reported to be similar to ingots used by the Phoenicians in their trading days. Many gold trinkets also have been recovered in the earlier digging at Zimbabwe.

Other items unearthed included Arab glass from the 13th Century, Persian fabrics from the 13th Century and Chinese objects from about the same period.

The oldest identifiable objects found here included beads, iron, copper and bronze articles and pottery from the 10th to 13th centuries. Beads, of course, were used for barter throughout Africa and beads recovered include Indian, Persian, Arabian, Egyptian and European types. One gold bead was found under the conical tower.

Other objects found in the ruins include coiled wire armlets still worn by native women, cattle gongs, axe heads and spear and arrow heads.

One of the most enlightening discoveries was made by S. D. Sandes, curator at the ruins for the past 10 years. Sandes found two pieces of wood in one of the temple walls. The wood obviously had been employed to carry the weight of the wall over a drain in the foundation. No other wood has been found in the structure.

The wood was subjected to radio carbon tests and it was found the tree from which it had been cut died about 1,200 or 1,300 years ago.

This evidence has been accepted by some as establishing the date of construction at about 700 A.D. Others still insist that Zimbabwe dates back to pre-Biblical times.

JAZZ PIANIST

Erroll Garner Rides Phone Book To Concert Hall Fame

By HUGH MULLIGAN
AP Newsfeatures

For a man who can't read—and can scarcely remember—a note of music, jazz great Erroll Garner keeps popping up in the most unlikely places.

Taken out of the smoky night clubs and put on the concert trail four years ago, Erroll proceeded to amaze and enthrall classical audiences with his wide key ranges, intricate stylings and deft improvisations.

Perched atop a copy of the Manhattan telephone book a pillow "just don't ride with me"), he tamed the skeptical critics the same way he used to calm belligerent drunks in the jazz joints, by engulfing them with wave after wave of soothing, wonderfully inventive melodies.

Garner won immediate acceptance as a jazz pianist of tremendous originality, an impromptu composer and arranger who never knows one minute what he will play the next, and tomorrow can scarcely remember what he played yesterday. Sellout concerts in Europe and the United States brought him international acclaim and a flock of awards, including the coveted Grand Prix du Disque of the French Academy of Arts. Sales of "Concert by the Sea," "Other Voices" and a half dozen other albums set new records for Columbia, and when stereo came along, he quickly established himself as the best selling artist both on tape and disc.

This month Garner popped up in another unlikely spot: in the concert cap of impresario Sol Hurok, alongside such classical artists as Artur Rubenstein, Gregor Piatigorsky, Isaac Stern and the Moiseyev Dancers. As the first jazz artist ever signed by Hurok, the Casey Stengel of the long hairs, Garner will embark on a series of spring and fall concert tours, accompanied by a bassist and a drummer — and his Manhattan phone book.

Erroll first began crashing musical gates back in his native Pittsburgh when he got into football games free by pumping a tuba in the high school band. He oompah-ed in all the right places and never ran afoul of the bandmaster until a dent appeared one day in the big horn.

"I had to bring a dollar a week to pay for the tuba," Erroll recalls, "but he never did notice the dent in my musical education."

Erroll's mother tried to correct this dent by enrolling him for piano lessons, but his faultless ear for melody soon played havoc with the lesson book. "I was all the way up to lesson 12 when the teacher wanted me to go back to four. I couldn't remember how it went so I just blowed it and gave up the lessons," said Erroll.

He got his professional start playing piano on a children's show on a Pittsburgh radio station, soon graduated to "rent parties" and playing in neighborhood clubs with a small combo. Now 35, Garner makes $100,000 a year and is constantly developing the unique creative talent that he regards as gift. "The good Lord gave it to me and I'm trying to develop it."

so this month, in another happy wedding of jazz and the classics, Antal Dorati conducts the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in a brilliant performance of George Gershwin's "An American in Paris." The other side of this technically superb Mercury album features a symphonic treatment of "Porgy and Bess," arranged by Robert Russell Bennett, who does most of the orchestrations for Rodgers and Hammerstein.

London Records offer "Music for Hand Jiving," the English teen - age craze that is rapidly sweeping this country. Tommy Steele, The Four Jacks and a half dozen others help introduce this new dance form, which consists of using hands only to carry out a dance beat.

Husky voiced Jimmy Witherspoon with Jimmy McShann's orchestra sings jazz on a blue note in "Goin' to Kansas City Blues," a first rate RCA Victor album.

COUNTDOWN

Tense Minutes Are Described

By JIM ENGLAND
Managing Editor
Ogden Standard-Examiner

And so begins the exhaustive, delicate countdown before the firing of an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile. Before the technicians can begin there are 80 typewritten pages listing some 36,000 parts that must function properly before the test missile blasts off.

When the big "beasts," as they're nicknamed here, become operational, warmup and launching procedure will be measured in minutes rather than hours. At present, though, the countdown lasts from seven to 12 hours, depending on the number of "holds."

The minute-by-minutes checks are necessary because research data are the primate purpose of the test firings. Scores of electrical circuits, instruments, valves, hydraulic systems, tanks, lines and hoses are checked one by one. Then attention turns to sub-systems and entire systems.

The testers don't get near the missile during the countdown. They do their work some 750 feet from the launching pad—in a tortois-shell-shaped concrete blockhouse jammed with testing equipment. They view the giant missile on four television receivers and through a like number of periscopes extending through the blockhouse roof.

The director of the four Atlas launching centers at this Air Force missile test center is F. M. MacNabb, a leathery-faced soft-talking Scot.

Before the Atlas is launched, he explains, it has been static test fired at full power on the pad. Then a guard is placed over it until a time is cleared for takeoff.

When the test conductor starts a countdown, he reads off each item separately. For example, he might ask for fueling valve check, and won't proceed to the next item until he receives verification that the valve can be activated remotely from the inside of the blockhouse and lights on the control panel show it is operational.

As you watch the procedure, he breaks in occasionally after a sequence to drone:

"T minus 380 minutes and counting."

Everything is unusually silent as the minutes tick by. You watch the sweep of a second hand on a specially constructed clock mounted just under the four TV receivers. The only real sound is the voice of the test conductor and responses from the various panel operators.

With an hour to go, the giant red and white 12-story service tower is rolled back and the area around the launching pad is cleared of all personnel. A red light goes on, the three blasts from an air horn is the final warning to clear the area. The fueling starts.

At about T minus 40 minutes the liquid oxygen and hydrocarbon go into the missile's cavernous tanks. A white plume rises from high on the "beast" indicating to observers that vent vales are open.

The fueling still continues at T minus 15 minutes by remote control. Five minutes later the last report is received on weather and from the range safety officer.

Then the tension increases. Not a head turns from the chart of instruments each man is watching.

At T minus ½ minutes a flow of water starts over a huge cornucopia-shaped flame deflector to preserve it from the white-hot blasts of the rocket engines. The fuel level is checked again—carefully. Through the TV cameras, now at closeup, you can see the missile sweat.

At T minus 2 minutes, electrical circuits in the missile are switched from the pad system to its own power sources. Then the test operator, a lanky curly-haired fellow, barks out:

"Command on internal." This means that the missile's control systems have been transferred.

"Roger," a young panel operator responds.

The same quick questions and responses go through checks of telemetry, range safety, range ready and at T minus 40 seconds the level of liquid oxygen is checked again and adjusted if necessary.

The test conductor glances at the panel in front of him—a row of eight orange lights on each side of three timers glows brilliantly. Everything checks out.

At T minus 27 seconds he pushes a black button, guarded on two sides by slight projections, and the last human act necessary for launching the atlas is complete.

For the next 37 seconds (yes, it extends after zero) an automatic sequencer, described by MacNabb as a ladder system, does all the work. Only if something goes wrong will the test conductor press a large red knob that cuts off everything.

At 15 seconds the water flow over the flame bucket is shooting out at the other set of cameras grinding. Each such piece of instrumentation is checked to make sure it is operating.

With the count of four the engines start. . .

At one, the last set of cameras, those that track the missile, are started.

Then . . . zero.

The periscope observers sing out almost in unison: 'Mainstage."

On the TV cameras you see the rocket engines belching out great streams of flame. You expect a thunderclap explosion, but in the unreal atmosphere of the giant blockhouse, all is fairly quiet.

The missile is held on the pad for 10 seconds to give the test conductor time to make sure everything is operating and that the Atlas is developing full power.

From the periscope observers: "First motion."

The test conductor jumps up from his desk almost in the center of the room to get a better view as the ponderous missile rises slowly. Its two tails of flame and smoke dance down onto the yellow steel of the pad.

To the north, a giant cloud of white smoke boils up. This is steam created from the contact of cooling water and the white-hot blast.

The flame thrusts downward from two round nozzles, creating two fiery legs about as long as the missile itself.

Newporrt News, Va. Gets Room To Grow

By HARRY NASH

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — With the slashing of ceremonial ribbons July 1, this bustling seaport will become Virginia's largest city in area and its third highest in population.

The ribbon - cutting will symbolize the consolidation of gusy, congested Newport News (50,000 residents in four square miles) and sprawling Warwick (65,000 in 70 square miles).

Newport News and Warwick voters approved the merger in an election last year. The new city will be called Newport News.

The consolidation has attracted the interest of a number of other cities beset by problems stemming from rapid growth of urban areas. Seldom in modern American history have two cities of such size voted to merge under one government.

Noted for its giant shipbuilding plant and a tremendous export of coal, Newport News has since 1952 been hemmed and Hampton — the latter a neighbor which not long ago enlarged its share of Virginia's historic Lower Peninsula by merging with Elizabeth City County and the town of Phoebus.

"We will try to make the consolidated city so desirable that other municipalities on the peninsula will be desirous of overall consolidation, which would provide political and economic advantages that would make the area second to none in Virginia," says O. J. Brittingham, probable mayor the new city.

"With the great industries already located on the peninsula, the undeveloped potential for future industrial growth gives us a challenging opportunity."

City manager of the new municipality will be J. C. Biggins, who has held that post in Newport News for 33 years.

Though it dates from 1621, Newport News barely survived as a fishing village until selected in 1882 as the coastal terminus of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway. Four years later the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. began operating.

One of the largest private shipyards in the United States, it has built 450 vessels — including the aircraft carriers Forrestal and Ranger and the S. S. United States, fastest passenger liner afloat.

As In Life, So In Death Inseparable

Her only toy was a cigarette lighter that a week ago ignited some scrap paper and left her critically burned.

Her only thoughts were of Trixy.

Eller Tuten, a 9-year-old cerebral palsy victim, and Trixy were inseparable in life.

Death claimed both within hours.

"The dog was her only companion," said Eller's uncle, William Tuten. "They were always together." He gave Eller the pup.

Eller's parents were divorced. Since birth she had lived with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Glover Mathis.

"Both my wife and I went to see her regularly," the father said. "She was in good hands. It was just a terrible accident."

He said that Eller went to school like healthy children.

"She only had an occasional attack, but no paralysis."

A week ago, the grandparents returned home and found the child on her hands and knees in the living room, her dress blazing. She was able to tell them she had set fire to some paper with the lighter.

Doctors said her body was 70 per cent covered with burns. While she was hospitalized some neighbors took in Trixy.

At 12:15 a.m. Friday, Eller died. Her last words were a call for Trixy.

Eight hours later, Trixy dashed under a car's wheels.

Her uncle William buried Trixy behind the grandparents' home. A small monument, he said, is planned.

School Is All Work, No Play

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Six days a week, a small group U. S. diplomats file into an obscure-looking house here for instruction so tough and concentrated that several have nearly had nervous breakdowns.

They are learning German.

The school is one of three which the U. S. State Department has recently established to give special, four-month language courses to American diplomats. The other schools are in Mexico City, where Spanish is taught, and Nice, France, where the subject is French.

The Nice school, partly because it is located in a villa on the romantic Riviera, has come under congressional criticism, something which the Frankfurt school has escaped.

The school here was set up in September of last year. It is headed by Dr. Fritz Frauchiger, 54, a Swiss-born American citizen.

"There must be something wrong with the way languages are taught in American schools," Frauchiger said in an interview. "We get students here who have had several years of language study at a university, but they can't even carry on simple conversations.

"I sometimes think American teaching methods are too 'liberal.' I know, because I've taught at American universities myself.

"I switched to government service in 1949 because here you can get more rewarding results. At the universities, your classes are too big and only about one out of ten students is interested in learning anyway. About all you can teach most of them is a bit of decoding and recoding. Here it's different.

"Our students come from a selected group of foreign service officers who need the language and want to learn it. They get 39 hours of instruction per week and we give them enough homework to keep them busy several hours every night. The course is so tough that several have nearly had nervous breakdowns. One man had to quit because the work was affecting his heart."

The present class has 14 members. Seven part-time instructors, all of them Germans, drill the students. When the students aren't being drilled, they are studying grammar books, German newspapers, listening to German recordings, watching German movies, or being tested by Frauchiger. English is used only for those students who are in beginning classes. Advanced students are required to speak German at all times inside the school.

Negro Gunman Robs Station

HOUMA, La. (AP) — A Negro gunman robbed a service station here of $100 in cash early today and fled on foot.

The two attendants, Percy Wyble and Leroy Bugquet, told police the bandit may have had a car parked nearby because they had seen an automobile drive past several times just before the holdup.

They said the man was about 5 feet 6 inches and weighed approximately 180 pounds. He was wearing a yellow short sleeve shirt, blue jeans and a cap.

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The setting for the ninth annual "Miss Louisiana Beauty Pageant" is in one of the oldest and most historic towns in the entire state. During the early 1700's a small trading post grew up here on the Mississippi river bank. The rich river trade of that era brought out gangs of desperadoes and pirates. Legend has it that a notorious pirate named Bunch was the leader of one of the largest and most daring of the gangs that operated in and around "Old River," a bend in the upper northeast part of the parish. This bend was given the name Bunche's Bend because his gang made it their hiding place as they preyed on the heavily loaded flatboats.

Such loss of cargo and crew was sustained that those who were fortunate enough to slip past the pirate's hiding place and land safely at the trading post below, thanked "Providence" for their escape, hence the small post soon became known as "Providence."

The name remained "Providence" until 1918 when an act of the legislature granted permission for the municipality (which was chartered way back in 1876) to change its name to that of the United States Post Office located within the municipality so the town became known as "Lake Providence" which name it still bears.

Visitors to the beauty pageant often visit the site of the famed "Grant's Canal", which was built during the Civil War in an attempt to make a shorter route for the siege of Vicksburg. It was to be a water link to the Mississippi River and was begun in 1863 in Grant's proposed campaign to capture Vicksburg. The final outcome of the war between the states was supposed to lie in the early diggings of this waterway. The plan was never completed and the canal itself has been recently filled in, with only a marker to show tourists the site of the once-famous undertaking.

1. Miss Thibodaux — Darlene Marie Robichaux
2. Miss Bossier City — Mary Beth Bomar
3. Miss Lincoln Parish — Dainne Williams
4. Miss Washington Parish — Gloria Dell Kirby
5. Miss Louisiana Tech — Lou Ann Locke
6. Miss Shreveport — Helen Elizabeth Gulley
7. Miss Franklin Parish — Claudia Curry
8. Miss Delhi — Sallye Ann Sumlin
9. Miss Lake Charles
10. Miss Tangipahoa Parish, Alberta Futch
11. Miss Baton Rouge — Patricia Ann Planchard
12. Miss Hammond — Jean R. Branch
13. Miss Bossier Parish — Anita Thomason
14. Miss West Carroll — Della Jane Edmonson
15. Miss Minden — Betty Claire Rhea
16. Miss Condordia Parish
17. Miss Arcadia

The talent to be portrayed by the contestants will include vocal selections, piano solos, fire and baton twirling and dramatic readings.

MICHAEL ANN TERRAL

Hostess Selected For Contestants

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — Michael Ann Terral, 18-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Forrest M. Terral has been chosen to serve as official hostess for the ninth annual Miss Louisiana Beauty Pageant, which is scheduled to begin on Thursday.

Michael Ann is a sophomore at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., where she is majoring in English. Her interests lie in the creative field of art and writing and Michael Ann considers them as her hobby, although each could qualify as an avocation. She prefers drawing rather than painting and likes to use charcoal or pencil for her caricatures. Her talents were often called on during the college year just past in designing decorations for dances and special events. A float which she designed to enter in the ATO sorority sweepstakes depicting "A Bacchanalian Festival" won first place.

Michael Ann has also won acclaim for her themes, short stories and poetry. "I like to put things down on paper," Michael Ann said, "but I never use an outline, even for my longest stories. I work it all out in my head first and then begin writing." One of her favorite types of writing is prose, although she has written quite a few verses of poetry, also.

The tall brownette will officially welcome the contestants to Lake Providence, help in chauffeuring them to the various activities which will fill the three day pageant and attend all the social functions scheduled for the young ladies who will be competing for the coveted title "Miss Louisiana of 1958."

L. Providence Garden Spot Of The Delta

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — "The garden spot of the delta" — Lake Providence is fast gaining popularity as a vacation spot. Each Sunday hundreds of visitors throng the banks of the lake to participate in the water skiing, boating, fishing and swimming for which the town is noted. It has been truly said that the lake here is one of the most beautiful in the Southland, and affords pleasure to tourists and homefolks alike Each year more and more emphasis is being placed on the tourist trade, which has been growing by leaps and bounds. Two modern up to date tourist courts and a hotel are being filled to capacity almost every night in the week and the tourists continue to come.

A number of businessmen from various parts of Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas have built summer camps on Lake Providence and spend their week-ends and vacations enjoying the water sports and fishing. Boat traffic on the take has become so heavy on Sundays and holidays that the Sheriff's Department has added a special deputy to patrol the lake, reminding people to obey the safety rules and speed laws which affect certain areas of the lake near the shore.

Many antebellum homes in and around Lake Providence also create interest of tourists including Arlington House, Gossyppia Plantation and Stamboul. Stamboul is built of hand hewn cypress timbers, all mortized and pegged without the use of nails. All of the original woodwork was hand planed.

Coronation Ball Saturday For Miss Louisiana Of '58

WILL RELINQUISH CROWN — Miss Beverly Norman, Miss Louisiana of 1957, will hand over her crown and title to the new queen of the 1958 pageant on Saturday.

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —Tommy Carroll and his orchestra of Shaw, Mississippi will play for the coronation ball at which the Miss Louisiana of 1958 will be crowned on Saturday, following the final night of the three-day pageant.

The activities will get underway when contestants begin arriving in Lake Providence on Wednesday. They will register at the American Legion Home and will have their first practice session on Thursday, July 3rd. Each of the girls will appear on stage the first night of the pageant and be introduced to the crowd. Then half of them will appear in evening gown and talent competition and the other half in swim suits.

The second evening the order will be reversed. On the final night of the pageant, the ten top finalists will be selected and they will again compete in both swim suit, evening dress and talent competition. The top five will be named and will be asked a series of questions, before the final selection is made. Crowning of the new Miss Louisiana will be done by Miss America of 1957, Miss Marilyn Van Derbur. Miss Van Derbur will be a feature attraction each night of the three day event.

Other activities slated for the contestants include the Judges Tea on July 3, a luncheon on July 4th, an informal party July 5th, and the grand finale, the coronation ball. A dance will also be held on the nights of July 4th and 5th.

The winner of the Miss Louisiana contest will receive an all-expense paid trip to Atlantic City to participate in the "Miss America" contest; a four year scholarship to La. Tech, a four-year scholarship to Northeast State, a $500 scholarship to the school of her choice, a "Miss America" wrist watch and a free wardrobe from the local Jaycee Chapter.

The first runner-up will receive a $300. scholarship, and the second, a $200. scholarship.

A total of 16 entries have already been filed, according to Tom Davis, President of the Lake Providence Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring organization. Entries are still being received due to the fact that many Junior Chambers of Commerce are just now holding their local pageants.

Saturday, July 5th, a parade through downtown Lake Providence will feature the Lake Providence High School Band, a number of floats, and the bevy of lovely beauties who are entering the competition. Also in the parade with the contestants will be the official East Carroll hostess, Miss Michael Ann Terral.

Governor Earl K. Long issued a proclamation recently proclaiming the week of June 29 through July 6 as "Miss Louisiana" week, in recognition of the Lake Providence pageant. Beginning with nine contestants in 1951, the pageant has grown each year and drawn larger and larger crowds to participate in the three day schedule of events.

Bob Evans of Helena, Arkansas, will again serve as Master of Ceremonies. Evans has emceed the local pageant for a number of years and has also been director of pageants in Arkansas, and North Carolina.

AT LAKE PROVIDENCE

7 Judges Named For Beauty Show

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —A total of seven judges have been selected to serve during the Miss Louisiana Beauty Pageant, according to Tom Davis, President of the Lake Providence J. C.'s. They are — Miss Peggy O'-Neal, official chaperone to Miss America, (Marilyn Van Derbur), Mary Lou Young, of Monroe, co-owner and operator of a dance studio, Oran Teague, Professor of speech and drama at Louisiana State University, Paul Hewitt, owner and operator of a music store in Monroe; Mrs. Judith Moses of Lake Providence, a dancing instructor who has been dancing since the age of 3; Tom Marshall, President of the State Mississippi Chamber of Commerce and Tom Ruffin, newly elected State President of the Louisiana Chamber of Commerce.

The judges will score the girls on talent, beauty, personality and intelligence. They will be given the opportunity to question the girls individually at the judges tea on July 3rd, in addition to seeing them perform on stage for the three nights of the competition.

Errant Wife Taken Back By Clergyman

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A clergyman has taken back his errant wife whose brief romance with an ex-convict cowboy came to light after the cowboy was arrested on charges of defrauding her of a $203,000 inheritance.

The Rev. James A. Doubleday, 39, and his wife emerged solemn-faced from their suburban Kirkwood home to see newsmen Friday.

The clergyman, rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Kirkwood, would say only that there had been a reconciliation and "there will be no divorce."

He would not let reporters question his wife, Mrs. Barbara Fox Doubleday, 33.

Mrs. Doubleday, mother of two, went to Reno four months ago and filed suit for divorce. There she took up with Raymond Lewis Headspeth, 37, a husky, tattooed dormer Texan working on a dude ranch.

The FBI said she cashed $200,000 in bonds, which she inherited last spring from her grandfather, and went with Headspeth to Tucson, Ariz., where they registered at a motel eight days ago.

Next morning she found her cowboy friend, her money, car and other belongings were gone. She went to the FBI Monday.

Headspeth, seized in Miami Thursday after attracting notice by his free spending, insisted she gave him the money.

"I reckon she'll have to come to Miami to testify for me," he said. "An' I reckon I better not say any more till I talk to my lawyers."

The dude ranch hand, whose record includes convictions for forgery, grand larceny and auto theft, is charged in a federal warrant with traveling across state lines with the clergyman's wife in order to defraud her.

At Miami he had acted as if he had nothing to hide. He bought an expensive, conspicuous sports car and deposited $184,000 of the money in a hotel safe deposit box in his own name.

When Mrs. Doubleday filed suit charging the minister with mental cruelty, he called a special meeting of the church's vestrymen, the governing body, and offered to resign. The vestrymen refused to accept his resignation.

$1,100 In Prize Money Give At Beauty Pageant

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) —A total of $1100.00 in prize money will be awarded to the winners of the outboard motor boat races to be held on Lake Providence Saturday, July 5th, beginning at 1:00 p.m. The races are being sponsored jointly by the Lake Providence Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Baton Rouge Boat Club.

Co-chairmen of the event, Marvin W. Hart of Baton Rouge and Joseph Titone of Lake Providence stated that six classes will be entered, including the Class A, B, and C Hydros and Class CR and CS Runabouts. Two heats will be held for each class. The races will continue until 5:00 p.m.

A large number of entries is expected in these races, which are sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association. No entry fee will be charged.

SEN. CASE

Hits Builder Of White Community

WASHINGTON (AP) —Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ) said Saturday the builder of a proposed 15,000-home community in New Jersey "clearly intends" to violate the state's law and policy against discrimination.

The builder, William P. Levitt, has said the project will be an "all white community." It is scheduled to be built on a 4,000-acre tract midway between Trenton and Camden N.J.

Case, in a letter to commissioner Norman Mason of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), reminded Mason that he had been quoted as saying that his agency "expected to issue mortgage insurance commitments" for the development.

"You are further quoted," Case said, "as stating that this project would be re-examined if the New Jersey agency enforcing the state's antidiscrimination law officially informs the FHA that the projects violated a state law.

"On the face of the matter, Mr. Levitt clearly intends to violate the New Jersey state law. . . . and certainly his announced position is in direct conflict with the whole policy of the present national administration."

Case said he could not believe that Mason's agency will issue mortgage commitments to Levitt "unless and until he has given satisfactory and credible assurance that his policies in regard to this development will conform to our state law and policy."

Case said that instead of waiting for action by the New Jersey State Division against Discrimination "FHA has the responsibility to withhold mortgage commitments until it is affirmatively satisfied that Mr. Levitt will not follow his announced policies in regard to this development."

Case said for the FHA to ignore Levitt's own statements "would be tantamount to assisting in the violation of state law and policy and the policy of this administration."

The new store building, the second Morgan and Lindsay store for the City of Bastrop, was formerly occupied by Turner's store at 105 North Washington and has been completely remodelled. According to company officials it will offer additional merchandise other than that carried at the present store.

Hundred U.S. Sailors Fight A Young Bull

The bull had padded horns and for an hour, spectators in the stands roared as the sailors threw or rode the bull or got thrown or butted by him.

The young bull was turned loose for the sailors at the end of a bullfight in honor of Vice Adm. Bernard Liege Austin, commander of the U.S. 2nd Fleet, and his men.

Ike Signs Bill On Production

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Saturday signed a bill extending the 1950 Defense Production Act for two more years, until June 30, 1960.

The act was to expire Monday. The administration had asked for an extension, saying the authority is needed to assure prompt performance on contracts for guided missiles and other essential defense procurement.

Under the act, the President may establish priorities for defense contracts. It also gives him limited power to allocate materials for defense purposes.

The President also has authority to make loans and purchases to build up defense capacity and to establish a reserve of trained executives to fill government positions in time of mobilization.

Solons' Vote Record Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — How Louisiana and Mississippi members of Congress were recorded on recent roll calls:

House

On motion to take up for consideration an omnibus farm bill, defeated 214 to 171 (thus in effect killing the bill): For the motion —Abernethy, Colmer, Smith, Whitten, Williams, Winstead, Boggs, Morrison, Passman, Willis. Not voting — Hebert, Brooks, Thompson. (Hebert, Brooks and Thompson were paired for the motion.)

On motion to suspend rules and pass bill authorizing appointment of an assistant secretary of state for African affairs, defeated 145-224 (two-thirds majority required) thus defeating bill: For the motion — Smith, Boggs, Morrison, Willis. Against — Abernethy, Colmer, Whitten, Williams, Winstead, Passman. Not voting — Hebert, Brooks, Thompson.

(No major Senate roll calls).

The grand opening of the new Morgan and Lindsey store in Bastrop is scheduled for Thursday. Bob Pearce of Lafayette has been named the store manager.

LEGISLATURE

Longer La. Meet Urged By Solon

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Rep. Richard Bertrand said Saturday his proposal for a longer, split session of the Louisiana Legislature was "a step in the right direction."

But even if it passes the Legislature and is accepted by the voters next fall, he thinks a lot more changes are needed.

Bertrand said he would call a House vote Monday on the constitutional proposal for an 80-day session. It calls for a 20-day period for bill introduction, 30 days for study, and then 60 days to act on the legislation.

In addition, however, before legislation can properly be studied by lawmakers, Betrand also suggests:

1. A secretary pool for legislators, in addition to committee secretaries, to help answer correspondence.
2. An investigative staff answerable only to the Legislature.
3. More attention to special study comittees, who often are ignored after hard work between sessions.

Bertrand is chairman of the Joint Committee on Narcotics which drafted a bill passed by the House this week calling for the death penalty for sale of narcotics to juveniles.

The Lafayette lawmaker said the Legislative Council, research arm of the Legislature, "is worth every dollar we appropriate for it."

But he said it was not able to do more than limited research on laws. Bertrand proposed a staff similar to those on congressional investigating committees.

FIRE CHIEF SETS FIRE

NARA, Japan —(UPI) —Volunteer fire chief Masayuki Onishi, angered the citizens in his small farming village refused to donate money for a new water tank, set fire to the barn of the leader of the opposition, sounded the alarm and then directed the fire-fighting. Police found him out.

The officials also stated that they had complete confidence in the business out-look in this area.

Not voting — Hebert, Brooks, Thompson. (Hebert, Brooks and Thompson were paired for the motion.)

On motion to suspend rules and pass bill authorizing appointment of an assistant secretary of state for African affairs, defeated 145-224 (two-thirds majority required) thus defeating bill: For the motion — Smith, Boggs, Morrison, Willis. Against — Abernethy, Colmer, Whitten, Williams, Winstead, Passman. Not voting — Hebert, Brooks, Thompson.

(No major Senate roll calls).

The grand opening of the new Morgan and Lindsey store in Bastrop is scheduled for Thursday. Bob Pearce of Lafayette has been named the store manager.

LEGISLATURE

Longer La. Meet Urged By Solon

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Rep. Richard Bertrand said Saturday his proposal for a longer, split session of the Louisiana Legislature was "a step in the right direction."

But even if it passes the Legislature and is accepted by the voters next fall, he thinks a lot more changes are needed.

Bertrand said he would call a House vote Monday on the constitutional proposal for an 80-day session. It calls for a 20-day period for bill introduction, 30 days for study, and then 60 days to act on the legislation.

In addition, however, before legislation can properly be studied by lawmakers, Betrand also suggests:

1. A secretary pool for legislators, in addition to committee secretaries, to help answer correspondence.
2. An investigative staff answerable only to the Legislature.
3. More attention to special study comittees, who often are ignored after hard work between sessions.

Bertrand is chairman of the Joint Committee on Narcotics which drafted a bill passed by the House this week calling for the death penalty for sale of narcotics to juveniles.

The Lafayette lawmaker said the Legislative Council, research arm of the Legislature, "is worth every dollar we appropriate for it."

But he said it was not able to do more than limited research on laws. Bertrand proposed a staff similar to those on congressional investigating committees.

FIRE CHIEF SETS FIRE

NAHA, Japan —(UPI) —Volunteer fire chief Masayuki Onishi, angered the citizens in his small farming village refused to donate money for a new water tank, set fire to the barn of the leader of the opposition, sounded the alarm and then directed the fire-fighting. Police found him out.

The officials also stated that they had complete confidence in the business out-look in this area.

Errant Wife Taken Back By Clergyman

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A clergyman has taken back his errant wife whose brief romance with an ex-convict cowboy came to light after the cowboy was arrested on charges of defrauding her of a $203,0?0 inheritance.

The Rev. James A. Doubleday, 39, and his wife emerged solemn-faced from their suburban Kirkwood home to see newsmen Friday.

The clergyman, rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Kirkwood, would say only that there had been a reconciliation and "there will be no divorce."

He would not let reporters question his wife, Mrs. Barbara Fox Doubleday, 33.

Mrs. Doubleday, mother of two, went to Reno four months ago and filed suit for divorce. There she took up with Raymond Lewis Headspeth, 37, a husky, tattooed dormer Texan working on a dude ranch.

The FBI said she cashed $200,000 in bonds, which she inherited last spring from her grandfather, and went with Headspeth to Tucson, Ariz., where they registered at a motel eight days ago.

Next morning she found her cowboy friend, her money, car and other belongings were gone. She went to the FBI Monday.

Headspeth, seized in Miami Thursday after attracting notice by his free spending, insisted she gave him the money.

"I reckon she'll have to come to Miami to testify for me," he said. "An' I reckon I better not say any more till I talk to my lawyers."

The dude ranch hand, whose record includes convictions for forgery, grand larceny and auto theft, is charged in a federal warrant with traveling across state lines with the clergyman's wife in order to defraud her.

At Miami he had acted as if he had nothing to hide. He bought an expensive, conspicuous sports car and deposited $184,000 of the money in a hotel safe deposit box in his own name.

When Mrs. Doubleday filed suit charging the minister with mental cruelty, he called a special meeting of the church's vestrymen, the governing body, and offered to resign. The vestrymen refused to accept his resignation.

JET STRATOTANKER

Thorough Probe Of Crash Begins

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—Ten teams of specialists began a thorough investigation Saturday of a jet Stratotanker crash that took 15 lives early Friday on a planned speed flight to London.

The groups met separately and then went on to the scene of the crash—a cornfield about a mile and a half from this air base.

The specialists include such teams as flying safety research, structures and dynamics, explosion and fire pattern, power plants, fuel systems electronics flight operation, survival and oxygen, maintenance and hydraulics.

Meanwhile, special memorial services were planned for Sunday morning at the base chapel for the dead which included six newsmen.

Brig. Gen. Donald W. Saunders, who was in command of the four-plane group that planned an assault on the New York to London flight record, was in the ill-fated KC135. Funeral services for him will be held in his home town, Athens, N.Y., on Monday.

Four of the huge planes had been scheduled to make the transocean flight. Two got off safely but the crash ended further takeoffs.

The two jet tankers which made record-breaking flights to London are scheduled to begin their return runs early Sunday morning.

The first—Alpha—will take off at 7:50 a.m., EDT, from Brize Norton air base with the expected time of arrival at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, set for 1:54p.m. EDT.

Fifteen minutes later, at 8:05 a.m. EDT, the Bravo will set off for Westover, and is expected to touch down at 3:25 p.m., EDT.

The Air Force headquarters in Washington Saturday sent a message to Benjamin M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star and president of the Associated Press, expressing regrets at the death of Daniel J. Couglin, 31, of the Boston Associated Press staff, one of the victims.

It said: "We of the United States Air Force share your sorrow in the loss of Mr. Daniel J. Couglin in the recent accident at Westover Air Force Base. His participation with us in this demonstration of our global readiness marked the close relationship between the members of The Associated Press and the U.S. Air Force in our national endeavor to preserve the peace. His personal heroism reflects the essential role of the press in this continuing and vital effort. Please convey our profound sympathy to the members of your organization."

Similar messages of condolence were sent to the home offices of the other five newsmen involved in the crash.

CURED ONLY BY TIME

GOP In State Of Shock On Adams

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Sherman Adams case has plunged the Republican Party into a state of shock which can be cured only by time and some good issues to be used against the Democrats.

At this point, with four months still to go before the fall congressional elections, GOP morale seems about as low as it has ever been since the debacle of 1936.

However, while they are not bursting with optimism, Republican leaders keep reminding that public opinion can shift rapidly. Farm discontent, sputniks and the recession have flared and subsided as political issues in the past year.

As one of the GOP professionals put it Saturday:

"The Republican Party is bigger than Sherman Adams. This is not calamity. The strong party organizations which we have in many of the states are not suddenly going to fall apart because of this."

But right now the party still appears numb from the challenge to Adams' integrity, raised by House investigators. There is a tendency to await further developments, to see if the inquiry takes a new turn and if Adams stays as President Eisenhower's No. 1 aide.

Hints have been thrown out that the Democrats, who suffered much from influence - peddling charges near the close of the Truman administration, will not escape unhurt from the current squabble.

Bernard Goldfine, Boston businessman whose gifts and hospitality were accepted by Adams, is scheduled to testify Tuesday. Apparently the Republicans expect to hear that Democrats also shared his generosity.

'Sonic Boom' In Florida Is Studied

GAINEVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—An aeronautical engineering professor said Saturday that damage caused by an apparent "sonic boom" here last week was the greatest reported anywhere in the country from such an incident.

The blast shook this university city June 17 when 84 reports of broken windows were called in to local officers. Damage was estimated at between $10,000 and $20,000.

John W. Hoover, University of Florida instructor, said generally "sonic blasts occur when aircraft attain speed equal to or faster than the speed of sound." But he said the specific reason for the explosions was difficult to explain.

Several witnesses reported seeing Navy jets at about the time of the exposion which knocked out windows in business and residential buildings.

A Navy spokesman at Jacksonville told United Press International that a board of inquiry, headed by Rear Adm. Wendell G. Switzer, had failed to determine if the blast was caused by a Navy plane breaking the sound barrier.

The spokesman said it was still unknown to them if the blast was even a result of a sonic boom, although indications were that it was.

Dodd Is Named Demo Nominee

The 51-year old former congressman won the nomination by acclamation by a first roll call gave him enough votes for victory.

The semiofficial count gave him 469 votes to 322 for former Gov. Chester Bowles and 98 for former Sen. William Benton.

Bowles and Benton then moved that Dogg get a unanimous vote, even though Bowles had enough ballots at the end of the roll call to force a primary.

Alaska Bill Pigeon-Hole Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. A.S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) said Saturday that unless a southern "talkathon" against the Alaskan statehood bill is broken, the measure may be pigeon-holed.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) floor manager of the legislation, said however, that the way is clear for "an overwhelming vote for final passage, probably by Wednesday."

Wednesday is July 2. The text of the bill already passed by the House requires that President Eisenhower notify the Alaskan governor no later than July 3 that the bill has been passed.

Monroney told United Press International that southern opponents are trying to continue debate beyond July 3 and thus force a Senate-House conference which could shelve the measure.

Jackson, armed with a legal opinion from the Interior Department, said that forcing the bill past July 3 would not necessitate a change in the House deadline provision.

Acting Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield (Mont.), joined Jackson in claiming enough votes to defeat all pending amendments. He said he hopes for passage next week. He believes 60 to 70 senators will vote to make Alaska the 49th state.

Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.), a leader in the group opposed to statehood, said he knows nothing of any talkathon. But he said he cannot predict when a final vote will come.

Eastland said he will offer a second constitutional point of order Monday. It will assert that a provision in the Alaska Constitution for election senators, one to a long term, the second to a short term, is unconstitutional.

He said he also plans to move to recommit the bill to the Judiciary Committee for a study of constitutional points that fall within its jurisdiction and outside the province of the Interior Committee which drafted the bill.

Jackson a. ted that opposition "crumbled" Friday when crippling amendments were rejected. Monroney's proposal to make Alaska a commonwealth failed by a 50 to 29 vote. An Eastland constitutional challenge against public land withdrawals lost on a 53 to 28 roll call.

Full-time enrollments in 79 accredited New England colleges and universities at the end of 1957 totaled 130,267.

Suspect Held In Bank Robbery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI Saturday announced the arrest at El Paso, Tex., of Alvin Curtis Amos III on charges of robbing a bank at Glen Burnie, Maryland.

The FBI said its agents and El Paso police picked up Amos in front of the Mason hotel. The FBI said Amos was not armed and offered no resistance. The agency added that two loaded guns were found in Amos' room.

The Glen Burnie bank was robbed of $6,386 by two men on June 25.

THE ONE TRUE NATIONAL ADVERTISING MEDIUM IS

THE DAILY NEWSPAPER . . . because 88% of America's families get a newspaper every day. That's national coverage!

Over 100 million people read a newspaper on an average day. Every one of these readers has the opportunity to see every advertisement in the newspaper. Only a few of these people can be reached by any radio, television or magazine message.

Unlike television and radio, newspaper advertising is always ready and waiting to suit the time, place and convenience of the consumer. The newspaper is always selling—and always selling to more people than any other medium.

If you want to sell more products to more people, use the daily newspaper—the one true national advertising medium!

JET STRATOTANKER

Thorough Probe Of Crash Begins

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—Ten teams of specialists began a thorough investigation Saturday of a jet Stratotanker crash that took 15 lives early Friday on a planned speed flight to London.

The groups met separately and then went on to the scene of the crash—a cornfield about a mile and a half from this air base.

The specialists include such teams as flying safety research, structures and dynamics, explosion and fire pattern, power plants, fuel systems electronics flight operation, survival and oxygen, maintenance and hydraulics.

Meanwhile, special memorial services were planned for Sunday morning at the base chapel for the dead which included six newsmen.

Brig. Gen. Donald W. Saunders, who was in command of the four-plane group that planned an assault on the New York to London flight record, was in the ill-fated KC135. Funeral services for him will be held in his home town, Athens, N.Y., on Monday.

Four of the huge planes had been scheduled to make the trans-ocean flight. Two got off safely but the crash ended further takeoffs.

The two jet tankers which made record-breaking flights to London are scheduled to begin their return runs early Sunday morning.

The first—Alpha—will take off at 7:50 a.m., EDT, from Brize Norton air base with the expected time of arrival at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, set for 1:54p.m. EDT.

Fifteen minutes later, at 8:05 a.m. EDT, the Bravo will set off for Westover, and is expected to touch down at 3:25 p.m., EDT.

The Air Force headquarters in Washington Saturday sent a message to Benjamin M. McKelway editor of the Washington Star and president of the Associated Press, expressing regrets at the death of Daniel J. Couglin, 31, of the Boston Associated Press staff, one of the victims.

It said: "We of the United States Air Force share your sorrow in the loss of Mr. Daniel J. Couglin in the recent accident at Westover Air Force Base. His participation with us in this demonstration of our global readiness marked the close relationship between the members of The Associated Press and the U.S. Air Force in our national endeavor to preserve the peace. His personal heroism reflects the essential role of the press in this continuing and vital effort. Please convey our profound sympathy to the members of your organization."

Similar messages of condolence were sent to the home offices of the other five newsmen involved in the crash.

CURED ONLY BY TIME

GOP In State Of Shock On Adams

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Sherman Adams case has plunged the Republican Party into a state of shock which can be cured only by time and some good issues to be used against the Democrats.

At this point, with four months still to go before the fall congressional elections, GOP morale seems about as low as it has ever been since the debacle of 1936.

However, while they are not bursting with optimism, Republican leaders keep reminding that public opinion can shift rapidly. Farm discontent, sputniks and the recession have flared and subsided as political issues in the past year.

As one of the GOP professionals put it Saturday:

"The Republican Party is bigger than Sherman Adams. This is not calamity. The strong party organizations which we have in many of the states are not suddenly going to fall apart because of this."

But right now the party still appears numb from the challenge to Adams' integrity, raised by House investigators. There is a tendency to await further developments, to see if the inquiry takes a new turn and if Adams stays as President Eisenhower's No. 1 aide.

Hints have been thrown out that the Democrats, who suffered much from influence - peddling charges near the close of the Truman administration, will not escape unhurt from the current squabble.

Bernard Goldfine, Boston businessman whose gifts and hospitality were accepted by Adams, is scheduled to testify Tuesday. Apparently the Republicans expect to hear that Democrats also shared his generosity.

'Sonic Boom' In Florida Is Studied

GAINEVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—An aeronautical engineering professor said Saturday that damage caused by an apparent "sonic boom" here last week was the greatest reported anywhere in the country from such an incident.

The blast shook this university city June 17 when 84 reports of broken windows were called in to local officers. Damage was estimated at between $10,000 and $20,000.

John W. Hoover, University of Florida instructor, said generally "sonic blasts occur when aircraft attain speed equal to or faster than the speed of sound." But he said the specific reason for the explosions was difficult to explain.

Several witnesses reported seeing Navy jets at about the time of the exposion which knocked out windows in business and residential buildings.

A Navy spokesman at Jacksonville told United Press International that a board of inquiry, headed by Rear Adm. Wendell G. Switzer, had failed to determine if the blast was caused by a Navy plane breaking the sound barrier.

The spokesman said it was still unknown to them if the blast was even a result of a sonic boom, although indications were that it was.

Dodd Is Named Demo Nominee

The 51-year old former congressman won the nomination by acclamation by a first roll call gave him enough votes for victory.

The semiofficial count gave him 469 votes to 322 for former Gov. [illegible] Bowles and 98 for former Sen. William Benton.

Bowles and Benton then moved that Dogg get a unanimous vote, even though Bowles had enough ballots at the end of the roll call to force a primary.

Alaska Bill Pigeon-Hole Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. A.S. Mike Monroney (D-Okla.) said Saturday that unless a southern "talkathon" against the Alaskan statehood bill is broken, the measure may be pigeon-holed.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) floor manager of the legislation, said however, that the way is clear for "an overwhelming vote for final passage, probably by Wednesday."

Wednesday is July 2. The text of the bill already passed by the House requires that President Eisenhower notify the Alaskan governor no later than July 3 that the bill has been passed.

Monroney told United Press International that southern opponents are trying to continue debate beyond July 3 and thus force a Senate-House conference which could shelve the measure.

Jackson, armed with a legal opinion from the Interior Department, said that forcing the bill past July 3 would not necessitate a change in the House deadline provision.

Acting Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield (Mont.), joined Jackson in claiming enough votes to defeat all pending amendments. He said he hopes for passage next week. He believes 60 to 70 senators will vote to make Alaska the 49th state.

Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.), a leader in the group opposed to statehood, said he knows nothing of any talkathon. But he said he cannot predict when a final vote will come.

Eastland said he will offer a second constitutional point of order Monday. It will assert that a provision in the Alaska Constitution for election senators, one to a long term, the second to a short term, is unconstitutional.

He said he also plans to move to recommit the bill to the Judiciary Committee for a study of constitutional points that fall within its jurisdiction and outside the province of the Interior Committee which drafted the bill.

Jackson a[illegible]ted that opposition "crumbled" Friday when crippling amendments were rejected. Monroney's proposal to make Alaska a commonwealth failed by a 50 to 29 vote. An Eastland constitutional challenge against public land withdrawals lost on a 53 to 28 roll call.

Full-time enrollments in 79 accredited New England colleges and universities at the end of 1957 totaled 130,267.

Suspect Held In Bank Robbery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI Saturday announced the arrest at El Paso, Tex., of Alvin Curtis Amos III on charges of robbing a bank at Glen Burnie, Maryland.

The FBI said its agents and El Paso police picked up Amos in front of the Mason hotel. The FBI said Amos was not armed and offered no resistance. The agency added that two loaded guns were found in Amos' room.

The Glen Burnie bank was robbed of $6,386 by two men on June 25.

If you are crowded now, don't just think about it, act now to remove the cramps by buying this nice home for only $12,500. It's modern in every respect, remodeled, and nice. Located on South 3rd St., so convenient to everything.

SOUH 7TH ST.
Everything pleasant is incorporated in this well - constructed 3 bedroom and large den (20x24 ft.) home on South 7th. Double closets in each bedroom, ceramic tile bath, central heat, and air conditioned. You'll need to see it, and you'll agree it's a real buy at $16,000. FHA financing available.

BON AIRE
Exclusive design. Really attractive, extra large rooms. It's hard to describe, but easy to see — just call us. The used brick and stone masonry, uniquely designed and expertly done, is most striking. The huge fireplace brings that homey, dreamy mood. Three bedrooms, separate dining room, large garage and store room — and much more. On a large lot (125x250 ft.) on Bon Aire Drive. Just outside Monroe's city limits.

WEST AVE.
Wake up and live in the house of your dreams. You'll find it on West Ave. with 3 bedrooms, two tile baths, kitchen and family room combination. Fenced back yard. It's only a few minutes from town in a pleasant neighborhood.

SOUTH 5TH
School will soon begin — so begins preparations for the little ones now. Buy this nice 2 bedroom home on South 5th St., near the elementary and junior high school. The oak floors, large rooms, fenced yard, carport and store room is just the place for Mom and the kids. Priced at only $9750 — $300 down plus closing costs.

WEST MONROE

CLARK ST.
No rent — just $45 per month — after $750 down payment — buys this attractive, completely redecorated 2 bedroom home. Convenient to Olin Mathieson. Nice corner lot on Smith and Clark St.

NORTH EIGHTH
Big enough to entertain — small enough to maintain — this spacious 2 bedroom home located on 80x156 ft. lot close to shopping center and schools. Big 15x26 living room with Permastone fireplace, 12x12 dining room (2) 11x15 bedrooms carport. $350 down plus closing costs buys this one.

NORTH SEVENTH
For the thrifty — monthly notes of only $49.50 including taxes and insurance—after down payment, assuming present loan. Very clean 2 bedroom home. Living room, large kitchen and bath. Nice oak floors, double closet in master bedroom, Venetian blinds. Well kept lawn with several trees. Good neighborhood. Immediate possession.

WHITE'S FERRY RD.
The last move You'll never want to move again after you've lived in this tree-shaded brick home featuring 3 large bedrooms, living room with fireplace, combination kitchen and dining area with loads of pine paneled cabinets, double sink, Vent-a-hood, Formica tops. Screened 8x25 breezeway, carport. Beautiful 100x300 ft. lot with plenty of large cool trees. Plenty of clear soft water from own well. $800 down on new FHA loan.

NORTH EIGHTH
Happiness is where you find it, and I'm sure you can find it in this neat 2 bedroom home located near the new West Monroe Country Club. Only $300 down plus closing cost makes the move.

OUACHITA DRIVE
Near Olin Mathieson. 2 bedrooms, living room, kitchen and dining area. Small down payment and monthly payments of $46 including taxes and insurance. No need to pay rent when you can buy for less.

MALLARD ST.
Abruptly ended. Yes, your endless searching and hopeless house - hunting will be abruptly ended when you see this unusual and practical 6 room brick home that's just been completed. It has an exceptionally large kitchen and family room with an oversized Westinghouse oven and table top range, exquisite mahogany paneling throughout the kitchen and family room, 3 extra large bedrooms, 1½ tile baths. Only a couple of blocks from new country club.

GULPHA DRIVE
Discriminating buyers will stop looking after seeing this charming 2 bedroom home that's completely carpeted. The kitchen is so nice with its many natural finish cabinets, double sink, and copper vent-a-hood. Yes! Every feature is so tempting you'll want to move right in.

SOUTH 7TH
Nice 2 bedroom home with gleaming oak floors in the living room. Convenient corner lot and only a stone's throw to the school. $300 down plus closing cost will turn the key.

MORELAND DRIVE
Close in. 2 bedroom and den home that is awaiting your inspection. $300 down plus closing cost is the required amount to make the move. Will consider renting for $65 per month.

NEAR WEST MONROE HIGH
Ideal location for a beauty shop!! Infact, one is already in operation at this address on Short North Fifth St. Plus this is a neat 2 bedroom home with a separate dining room. $400 down plus closing cost on FHA makes the move.

SHADY OAKS DRIVE NEW LISTING
New home (6 months) — new low price—in the new "Shady Oaks Subdivision" just outside West Monroe. It's brick, with two bedrooms. Priced at $10,500. It's looking for a new owner.

PINE RIDGE ROAD
Life is worth living. Fresh vegetables from your own garden, fried chicken, and eggs so fresh they'll "stand up and look you in the eye." Yes, indeed — own your acres (3) just outside West Monroe on Pine Ridge Road. Plenty of trees, plenty room, plenty good living in this 2 bedroom and den home priced at only $11,500.

GULPHA DRIVE
Location is important, but that's not all you'll get in this modern 3 bedroom home on Gulpha Drive, near the new West Monroe Country Club and golf course. The large kitchen with loads of natural finish cabinets (Formica tops), built-in oven and range, ceramic tile bath, large living room and dining area with oak floors (professionally draped), screened porch — oh, so nice! Many shrubs are extra attractions, but not extra cost. $17,750. Easily financed. See it at your convenience.

PELICAN DRIVE
Here's what he'll say —"You mean it's priced at only $7500! There must be a mistake!" This very neat 2 bedroom home on Pelican is priced at only $7500. Only $250 down plus closing cost and it's yours. Take a good look now.

ANDERSON
Hard to find — but, here it is. In a nice neighborhood, only one block from Mitchell School (West Monroe). A neat 3 bedroom home in excellent condition and priced at only $9900 — and easily financed, too. The front yard is all fenced

SHADY OAKS DR.
You want to live out of the city? So, we have it! A new bungalow with modern kitchen boasting a built-in Suburban range and oven. Its three bedrooms and two ceramic tile baths are roomy and inviting. It's located on Shady Oaks Drive in West Monroe and priced to sell!

UNION DRIVE
In beautiful new Shady Oaks on a corner lot (both streets blacktopped) is this distinctive ranch style home. The large living room has a Roman brick fireplace. The kitchen-family room is attractively pine - paneled throughout with sliding glass door opening to the shady back yard. You couldn't ask for more cabinets (Formica tops), and the built-in Universal gas oven and range just sets it off to perfection. The roomy ceramic tile bath and three bedrooms with large closets are so nice. 'Twas built for "real living" — and with that you'll agree when you see it. Priced at only $16,250 with financing available.

ADA
Don't show the family — unless you plan to buy it for them! They'll love the large shady lot, the beautiful ranch type brick home with a double carport. The wife will thrill at the sight of the kitchen with its many birch cabinets (Formica tops), built-in Suburban oven and range. The living room is so inviting with the Roman brick fireplace, carpeted floor, and sliding glass door to the back yard — you'll just want to sit, relax, and enjoy it. The three bedrooms are roomy with large closets. Tile bath with large built - in mirror and dressing table. It's so conveniently located, too. The back yard adjoins Highland School ground, only a few blocks from shopping areas and churches. If you are not afraid of buying the best, let's take the family out to see it. Priced at only $16,950 . . . . FHA financing available.

PARKWOOD
A little bit of heaven — that's what your reaction will be when you see this spic and span 2 bedroom home, beautifully located on large well-landscaped 100x150 lot, shaded by many trees. The home is very large, comprising 2 bedrooms, living room, dining room, kitchen and utility room. Other features are . . . . oak floors, Venetian blinds, nice garage with storage. May we show you today?

Report Girl Hurt In Wreck Better Now

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP) —Hospital attendants today reported that a 9-year-old Shreveport, La., girl, who was injured seriously yesterday in an auto crash that killed her parents and older sister, is in "satisfactory condition and responding nicely to treatment."

The girl, Linda Lee Featherngill, suffered a brain concussion and other injuries. She regained consciousness late yesterday.

The car in which Linda Lee was riding smashed into a concrete bridge railing, killing Charles A. Featherngill, 37; his wife, Jeanette, and their daughter Bonnie Jean, 12.

A son, Samuel Harris, 6, escaped injured and was found wandering about the wreckage.

State trooper Thomas Newby said Mrs. Featherngill apparently was driving. There was no witness to the crash on U.S. Highway 79 between Wabbaseka and Humphrey.

Shreveport business associates of Featherngill said the vacationing family had been enroute to Collinsville, Ill., to visit relatives and later planned to visit kinfolk at Indianapolis and Franklin, Ind.

$278,849 Suit Is Filed By Army Captain

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) —A Ft. Polk Army captain has filed a $278,849 damage suit against an Alexandria doctor claiming his daughter was injured and permanently disfigured by X-ray treatments.

Capt. Ollie M. Crenshaw asks $263,200 for his daughter, Mary Catheryn, 15, and $15,649 for himself from Dr. A. M. Alexander Jr.

Crenshaw claims his daughter's appendectomy incision has not healed properly because of X-ray treatments administered by Dr. Alexander in 1957.

The doctor is to appear in the ninth judicial court here Monday to file a deposition in answer to the suit.

Salamanders have a very slippery skin due to the secretions of many mucous cells.

Cops Hopping As Kid Toys Rounded Up

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP) —Bears, panthers, tigers, cats and dogs were all over the place —and so were kids and cops.

But it was the kids who had the cops hopping around the New York Central's freight station.

The varmints were only cute, cuddly stuffed toys. And hordes of tots running merrily about, all seemed to have them.

It seemed three little boys had gotten into a boxcar and hauled out three cases of the stuffed toys, which they hid under the station platform until "later."

Not very much later, though. Other youngsters discovered the treasure trove and it was a great day—until the big roundup began.

The car in which Linda Lee was riding smashed into a concrete bridge railing, killing Charles A. Featherngill, 37; his wife, Jeanette, and their daughter Bonnie Jean, 12.

A son, Samuel Harris, 6, escaped injured and was found wandering about the wreckage.

State trooper Thomas Newby said Mrs. Featherngill apparently was driving. There was no witness to the crash on U.S. Highway 79 between Wabbaseka and Humphrey.

Shreveport business associates of Featherngill said the vacationing family had been enroute to Collinsville, Ill., to visit relatives and later planned to visit kinfolk at Indianapolis and Franklin, Ind.

$278,849 Suit Is Filed By Army Captain

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) —A Ft. Polk Army captain has filed a $278,849 damage suit against an Alexandria doctor claiming his daughter was injured and permanently disfigured by X-ray treatments.

Capt. Ollie M. Crenshaw asks $263,200 for his daughter, Mary Catheryn, 15, and $15,649 for himself from Dr. A. M. Alexander Jr.

Crenshaw claims his daughter's appendectomy incision has not healed properly because of X-ray treatments administered by Dr. Alexander in 1957.

The doctor is to appear in the ninth judicial court here Monday to file a deposition in answer to the suit.

Salamanders have a very slippery skin due to the secretions of many mucous cells.

Cops Hopping As Kid Toys Rounded Up

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. (AP) —Bears, panthers, tigers, cats and dogs were all over the place—and so were kids and cops.

But it was the kids who had the cops hopping around the New York Central's freight station. The varmints were only cute, cuddly stuffed toys. And hordes of tots running merrily about, all seemed to have them.

It seemed three little boys had gotten into a boxcar and hauled out three cases of the stuffed toys, which they hid under the station platform until "later."

Not very much later, though. Other youngsters discovered the treasure trove and it was a great day—until the big roundup began.

TRAGEDY STRIKES PAT GOONE AGAIN !!
Scarcely recovered from the shock of having her last bride-groom pulverized by a falling meteor, one second before they were to be married last week, heiress Pat Goone attempted marriage again yesterday —
This photo taken while entering church —
ANOTHER PORE GROOM DONE BIT TH' DUST!?
ON THE BULLMOOSE PHONE
TOO BAD!!
HAW! HAW!! — SHE'LL TRY AGAIN, AND AGAIN, AND AGAIN — BUT NEVER LEAVE HER SIDE, EMPLOYEE BTFSPLK!!
A FEW WEEKS LATER — PAT GOONE LOSES 19th STRAIGHT BRIDEGROOM AT THE ALTAR !!
THIS ONE DROPS TO DEATH THROUGH LONG-FORGOTTEN MANHOLE UNDER WEAKENED FLOOR
TODAY THE "MAN IN THE STREET" PROGRAM INTERVIEWS THE LOWEST OF BOWERY BUMS
TODAY'S QUESTION, SIR, IS: "WOULD YOU MARRY PAT GOONE?"
NOT ME, BUB!! SHE MIGHT BRING ME HARD LUCK!!
EMPLOYEE BTFSPLK CALLIN'!! — IT'S BIN WEEKS SINCE MISS GOONE ATTEMPTED TO GIT MARRIED AGIN!! — WHUT'LL AH DO ?
MISS GOONE TO SEE YOU, SIR !!
SOB!! — I SAID I WOULDN'T MARRY YOU —
— UNLESS YOU WERE THE LAST MAN ON EARTH —
— BUT, NOW YOU ARE THE LAST MAN ON EARTH WHO'LL MARRY ME!! — THAT IS, IF YOU'RE NOT AFRAID!!
CHUCKLE!! — THERE WON'T BE ANYTHING TO BE AFRAID OF — IN JUST ONE MINUTE —

WILLEY 4-HITTER

Braves Finally Overcome Torments Of Dodgers, 7-3

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The pace setting Milwaukee Braves, with nothing to show for seven games with the lowly Dodgers except defeat, finally turned on their tormentors Saturday to hammer out a resounding 7-3 victory. Rookie right-hander Carl Willey went the distance as he limited Los Angeles to four hits.

It was Willey's second straight major league victory. He shut out San Francisco 7-0 in his debut last Monday.

The Braves backed up Willey with an 11-hit attack that included homers by Johnny Logan and Henry Aaron. The Dodgers used four pitchers, starting with left-hander Johnny Podres, who failed to last a full inning, but suffered his 7th loss against 7 defeats.

Willey got stronger as the game wore on, having his principal trouble from Gil Hodges. The big Dodger first sacker lined a sacrifice fly with the bags loaded in the opening frame to drive in one run, and crashed his 12th homer with none on in the sixth, a shot into the left field bleachers. Willey went along nicely then until the ninth when the Dodgers scored an unearned run. This came on a throw by Ed Mathews that hit Dick Gray who was trying to score from third on a bunt.

Podres yielded two singles, three walks and forced in two runs before right-hander Johnny Klippstein came to his rescue.

Logan slammed his eighth homer over the left field fence in the fifth.

The Braves landed on Erskine and Fred Kipp for two more runs in the eighth. With two on and two out, and Kipp pitching, Frank Torre singled home one run and when Don Zimmer fumbled Andy Pafko's grounder, Aaron scored from third.

Lepcio Homers For Bosox Win

By JERRY GREEN

DETROIT (AP) — Ted Lepcio, who was hitting below .200, smashed a pinch-hit home run in the 12th inning Saturday, giving the Boston Red Sox a 6-5 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

Lepcio was the first batter to face southpaw Billy Hoeft—the Tigers' fifth pitcher. He sent his third pitch zooming into the left field seats.

Bob "Riverboat" Smith, a rookie southpaw gained his fourth victory with three innings of relief work. Twice he retired the Tigers, leaving two runners stranded.

The loss dropped the Tigers back into a tie for third place with the Red Sox.

Jensen clouted two home runs—his 21st and 22nd of the season—and accounted for four of the Red Sox's tallies. They came in successive times at bat off starter Jim Bunning and reliever Herman Wehmeier.

Jensen now has hit six homers on the Red Sox's current road trip and is one under his output of all last season. The American League home run leader hit 26 in his best season of 1955.

The Tigers went ahead in the first inning on singles by Gail Harris, Charlie Maxwell and Billy Martin off starter Dave Sisler.

But the Red Sox tied the score in the fourth as Gene Stephens, subbing for the ill Ted Williams, singled home Marty Keough, who had walked and stole second.

The Tigers narrowed the gap to 4-3 in the bottom of the sixth when they scored two unearned runs after Don Buddin misplayed a doubleplay grounder. Jensen cracked his second homer with none on in the top of the eighth and Al Kaline tied it 5-5 with a two-run blast into the right field seats in the bottom half of the inning.

Williams, who complained of a headache, was used as a pinch hitter in the ninth and struck out.

Hoeft suffered his eighth defeat against six victories.

Grid Bears Sign Veteran Tackles

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bears Saturday announced the signing of two veteran tackles and halfback Jim Swink, former Texas Christian star.

Veterans Fred Williams and Bill Bishop signed for their seventh National Football League contracts while Swink will be making his debut in professional circles.

Swink led the nation in scoring in 1955 and completed his collegiate career in 1956. He was the Bears' No. 2 draft choice but did not compete last season because of medical studies.

RADEMACHER RELAXES ON WATER SKIS — Pete Rademacher takes time out from training for his July 25 bout with Zora Folley for an afternoon of water skiing on Santa Monica bay of the California coast. Big Pete, kayoed by champion Floyd Patterson in his only previous pro start, hopes the Folley fight will lead to another shot at Patterson. (AP Wirephoto)

TWO EXTREMES

Nutria Spreading As Shrimp Decline

By SAM HANNA

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special)—Two of Louisiana's major wildlife problems—the rapidly spreading nutria and the deminishing shrimp population—have come into f s of the current legislature.

While North Louisiana sportsmen are primarily interested in proposed laws concerning upland game and fish, nutria and shrimp are of importance to all Louisianaians.

And strangely enough, they are of chief concern in the state today because of two entirely different reasons.

Director F. Lamar Clement, Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commissioner, appeared pleased during the past week with the progress of a major shrimp bill.

"It's the first time we've had any type of law concerning shrimp that will stand up," Clement said in commenting on the legislature's passage of a bill that will send all shrimp law violators to district court.

But Clements, on the contrary, was unhappy with a bill reported favorably by the Fish and Game Committee that will outlaw nutria, the South American rodent that is literally eating up the marshes.

With a population increase from a lonely six to approximately eleven million, it would seem natural that to outlaw nutria is the proper solution to reducing his numbers.

But Clement pointed out that the South Louisiana fur market will take a dip because of the bill, which, and most important, will eliminate the incentive to kill the rodent.

Nutria have become such a problem in the marshes in Louisiana's coastal parishes that many rabbit hunters lose their beagles to the water-living rat, Clement explained.

"I want to cut the nutria down in population," Clement said. "An I hope I'm not misunderstood in saying to outlaw the nutria is not the proper solution."

He agreed that there is a possibility that the nutria problem could spread in North Louisiana. Nutria already have been seen on some North Louisiana lakes.

Touching on the shrimp bill, Clement said it was similar to the commission's measure to send all game law violators to district court.

Justice of the Peace officers levy fines in many parishes now, but the new law will prohibit the violator from being taken to a JP office.

Clement attributed the decline of Louisiana's shrimp population to a combination of several different factors, including pollution, violators, canals and over-fishing.

Nutria and shrimp are merely two examples of serious problems facing the Louisiana sportsman and his commission.

Molly Pitcher Handicap Goes To Searching

OCEANPORT, N. J. (AP) — Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Searching, under top weight of 120 pounds, circled the leaders entering the stretch and won the $28,850 Molly Pitcher Handicap for fillies and mares Saturday at Monmouth Park.

Overlooked by the crowd of 26,925, the 6-year-old bay mare by War Admiral returned $14.20, $8.40 and $5.60. Under the veteran Harold "Red" Keene, she ran the mile and a sixteenth over a fast track in 1:44 1-5.

George D. Widener's Rare Treat second to Manotick in this race a year ago, closed from last place to be a length and a half behind the winner and a length and a quarter in advance of Pardala.

Searching, saddled by Hirsch Jacobs, picked up $18,452.50.

Willie Hartack, Monmouth's leading rider, scored his third riding triple of the meeting. He won both sections of the $19 daily double, and the fifth, astride Manticora, who paid $21.60.

Mr. Jr. Easily Wins Bay State Race By Length

BOSTON (AP)—Mr. Jr., owned and bred by Oklahoman Everett Lowrance, went to the front early and scampered to a length victory Saturday in the $10,000-added Bay State Kindergarten Stakes before a spring meeting windup crowd of 2,836 at Suffolk Downs.

The 2-year-old brown gelding by Everett Jr.-Black Beauty easily held off a closing drive by John Gibson's Sun Better in the 5-furlong test for juveniles. True Davis' Sin-Jex, the 7-10 favorite, was a distant third.

Mr. Jr. paid $9, $4.60 and $2.80. Sun Better paid $7.40 and $3. Sin-Jex returned $2.20 to show.

The closing day crowd wagered a total of $1,455,988, boosting the daily average for the 36-day meeting to $934,658. It marked the first time a spring meeting average has gone over $900,000 since 1947. Last year's average for a 35-day meet was $895,377.

LAST AT FINAL TURN

Cavan Rallies For Win In Richards

STANTON, Del. (AP) — Irish-bred Cavan, last of 11 starters at the final turn, came up fast and outdistanced the entire field Saturday to win the $47,900 Leonard Richards Stakes at Delaware Park.

Cavan took the $35,000 first money by two lengths, running the mile and a furlong in 1:49 2-5 and returning $3.00, $2.60 and $2.20 to his backers.

The conqueror of Derby and Preakness winner Tim Tam in the Belmont Stakes, Cavan appeared slightly lame as he headed for the winner's circle. Jockey Pete Anderson dismounted before the Richards Trophy, named for the late Delaware Racing Commission chairman, was presented to Cavan's owner, retired Boston banker Joseph E. O'Connell. Trailer Tom Barry said the injury to Cavan's left foot did not appear to be serious.

Piano Jim, owned by Walter M. Jeffords, was second and returned $4.60 and $2.80. Two lengths back was Windfield Farm's Grey Monarch, who paid $3.80.

Cavan, a 1 to 2 favorite with the crowd of 21,222, made his big move in the home stretch from several lengths behind and sped along the inside as he overtook the rest of the field.

Track veterinarian Dr. Arthur P. Mayer examined Cavan after the race and said there was a slight pulsation in Cavan's left ankle. He said he planned to treat the horse with cold packs, and added Cavan was walking "just about normally."

Trainer Barry said, "I think he'll be alright tomorrow. Anderson told Barry he believed Can may have stepped on some hard object at the five-eighths pole.

Anderson, praising his mount, said:

"Cavan is the biggest-hearted Horse I ever sat on. He's as big as Delaware Park." Barry said the race was run "just the way I thought and hoped it would be."

Palmer Increases Lead To 5 Strokes In Long Island

By WHITNEY MARTIN

EAST NORWICH, N.Y. (AP)—With 18 more holes to go, Arnold Palmer apparently had the $9,000 first prize in the $50,000 Long Island Open Golf Tournament wrapped up in a neat package Saturday.

The muscular, placid young man from Latrobe, Pa., added a four under par 67 Saturday to bring his three-round tital to 202. He now holds a five-stroke lead and the steady manner in which he has been playing indicates he won't fall flat on his putter the final round, which he would have to do to lose.

He increased his lead by two strokes Saturday. Jimmy DeMaret of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., had trailed him by three strokes at the end of Friday's round. But Jimmy took a one-over-par 72 to drop eight strokes behind.

It was the unassuming Ted Kroll who climbed to the runner-up spot. Kroll, playing out of Sarasota, Fla., matched Palmer's 67, thanks to a spectacular 30 on the home nine.

Don Fairfield, in the 139 bracket at the end of two rounds, took over third place alone, shooting a 70. The Casey, Ill., player had a first round 73, and a 66 in the second round.

Six players shared the 210 bracket—Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., Ken Venturi of San Francisco; Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va.; Demaret and Henry Ransom of St. Andrews Ill. Rosburg, Venturi and Snead all had 68s as the field began to solve the rough greens.

Canadian Stan Leonard and Cary Middlecoff, playing out of Hollywood, Fla., also had 67s, a discouraging situation in that they failed to gain an inch on the high-flying leader.

The leaders:

Arnold Palmer	66-69-67—202
Ted Kroll	69-71-67—207
Don Fairfield	73-66-70—209
Bob Rosburg	72-70-68—210

2ND TOP WINNER

Round Table In Arch Ward Romp

By JOE MOOSHIL

CHICAGO (AP)—Round Table, racing's only active millionaire thoroughbred, romped to victory Saturday in the $56,050 Arch Ward Memorial Handicap to gain second place in the all-time money winning list.

The victory, Round Table's 22nd in his last 24 starts, was worth $33,000 and boosted his earnings to $1,090,014. He surpassed Citation who earned $1,085,760 and is second only to Nashua who has earned $1,288,565.

Willie Shoemaker kept Round Table, owned by Travis M. Kerr, within range as Sysha, one of three horses entered by Hasty House Farms, set the pace. Round Table took the lead after turning into the home stretch and finished the 1 3-16 miles race on Washington's Park's turf in 1:54 4-5 seconds. The time was one-fifth of a second slower than the track record set by Swaps in 1955 and matched by Hoop Band in 1957.

Tall Chief II, Round Table's running mate owned by William G. Gilmore, finished second. One length behind him was Aysha, the early pace setter. The entry of Round Table and Tall Chief II paid $2.60 $3.40 and $2.20. Aysha returned $2.20.

Second place was worth $10,000 third place $7,500 and Shan Pac took the $5,000 fourth money.

After the race, Shoemaker said, "Round Table ran a big race today, a good one. No, I wasn't especially worried about Aysha getting out in front. Round Table just simply galloped off the lead and when he had to make his move, he did."

Round Table, a 4-year-old last year voted the nation's No. 1 grass horse, has never been beaten in six grass starts. The victory was another in a string of stake triumphs he has been compiling this year.

Among his stakes wins are the Santa Anita and Gulfstream Park Handicap's and the Santa Anita Maturity.

Also this year, Round Table has set four records and equalled a fifth. The Ward Memorial was his 11th start of the year. He has won 10 and finished second once.

Annie-Lu-San Wins Vanity With Skuse Up

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Five - year - old Annie-Lu - San scored a repeat victory in the $38,700 Vanity Handicap at Hollywood Park Saturday, defeating 11 other mares and fillies for the mythical lady-horse championship of the meeting.

Ridden ably by jockey Bill Skuse, Annie-Lu-San hit the wire more than a length in front of a long shot, Ballet Khal, with Summer Story third.

Born Rich, the favorite, ran well out of the money and was never a threat in the mile and one eighth feature.

Annie - Lu - San, who won the event last year, was the second choice of the crowd of 44,750.

The time was 1:50 flat.

Annie-Lu-San returned $8.20 $5.00 and $3.40. Ballet Khal $15 even and $7.20 and Summer Story $3.60.

Annie-Lu-San, beaten by the Poltex Stable's Born Rich in the recent Milady Handicap, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Jack D. Rogers.
